'MAD SCHOOLMASTER' KILLER

Parole For Ex-Marinite

VACAVILLE (UPI) — Former Marin school teacher Verlin J. Spencer who gained fame in 1940 as the "Mad Schoolmaster" by gunning down five fellow school employees in Pasadena, won parole yesterday after 30 years of imprisonment for the slayings.

The state parole board decided the 68-year-old killer will be released Nov. 9 to work in Hawaii with the John Howard Society, a social service agency for ex-convicts.

Spencer is at the California Medical Facility here.

He started his teaching career in 1926 at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School and in 1927 moved to the San Rafael Grammar School where he taught arithmetic and woodshop until 1928.

Spencer wrote that he wanted a $200 increase in his yearly salary of $1500 because of extra curricular activities he performed. He claimed having initiated elementry debating, the school newspaper and individual study methods for students.

The school countered with a $100 increase proposal, but Spencer stood firm. So did the school and in June of 7928 Spencer was no longer employeed in San Rafael.

Nicknamed "Doc" by inmates, 68-year-old Spencer was a south Pasadena Junior High school principal when he committed the series of slayings on a spring day in 1940 then fired a bullet into his own chest in a suicide attempt.

Max May, Vacaville's program administrator, told Spencer the news. He said the impact did not hit Spencer at once.

"Initially he didn't show any reaction," May said. "There was nothing in terms of facial expressions or surprise or anything else. He sat for a while and sort of reminisced about how long he'd known us."

But later Spencer was "delighted," May said.

"He's a good tennis player," May said of Spencer. "He still plays almost every day. He won the institutional championship a couple of times, and he's still a top competitor."

He recalled that Spencer had not had any disciplinary problems while serving his time. A spokesman for the state corrections department called him a "model prisoner" and reported that he had been kept under minimum security for the past 20 years.

He led an active life behind bars. He worked as a clerk in prison psychological and aptitude testing programs. A candidate for a doctorate degree at USC at the time of the killings, he took technical courses in radio and television while behind bars.

Spencer, who suffered a nervous breakdown at the start of the 1939-40 school year, was described by some psycholo-

Test On Vote Age Is Next

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon reluctantly has signed the Voting Rights Act and ordered an early court ruling whether it is constitutional for Congress to lower the voting age to 18.

Nixon Monday signed the measure which would enfranchise between 10 and 11 million persons between 18 and 21, and extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act under which more than one million Negroes won the vote in the South.

The President, as he has before, said it was unconstitutional to lower the voting age by statute rather than by constitutional amendment. He ordered Attorney General John N. Mitchell to seek an early court ruling on that issue.

SOME CONCERN

Nixon also, expressing concern that the young might raise their hopes only to have them dashed, asked Congress to press ahead on a constitutional amendment in case the new enfranchisement law is overturned.

However, it seems certain the House, at least, merely will sit by and learn the fate of the new law before making any move toward an amendment. Emanuel Celler. D-N.Y., Chairman of the key House Judiciary Committee, already is on record to that effect.

Celler also has doubts about the law's constitutionality, but feels there is an outside chance it will prevail, giving the vote to those 18 or older in all national, state and local elections.

In any event, Celler's panel already faces enough important legislation to occupy it for the rest of the congressional session, including the administration's high-priority crime bills.

JOINS NIXON

In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has generally opposed lowering the minimum voting age, joined Nixon in hoping for an early ruling on the new federal 18-year-old voting law.

A spokesman for the governor said that Reagan "joins with President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell in hoping the court will render a swift decision on the constitutionality of the legislation."

The Republican governor, running for re-election to a second term, has said he has an "open mind" on the issue but also expressed some "reservations." He previously said that allowing 18-year-olds to vote would enable politicians to organize campus youth for work on election campaigns and could threaten academic freedom in the classroom.

740,000 Protest Security Treaty

Japanese Marchers Clash With Police

TOKYO (UPI) — National Police said 740,000 persons demonstrated throughout Japan today against Japan's renewal of its military security pact with the United States. It was the largest antigovernment demonstration ever staged in Japan.

The daylong demonstrations flared into street fighting in Tokyo tonight between radical students throwing Molotov cocktails and swinging steel bars and police using aluminum shields and plastic face masks and wielding clubs, waterhose and teargas.

In Tokyo, where the largest crowd demonstrated—estimated by police at 130,000-Molotov cocktails hurled by students lit up the night as the flaming gasoline spilled into the streets. Buddhist priests in brown robes and rice straw sandals marched with Communists, Socialists, union members and students, beating drums and chanting prayers.

The largest antigovernment demonstration previously reported was on June 4, 1960, also against the security pact, when 505,000 persons took to the streets.

There were battles for control of the key railroad tracks near Tokyo and fights near the British Embassy near the 17th Century Imperial Palace grounds where emperor Hirohito lives. Police closed the huge plank doors of the palace and placed heavy guards on duty. Police nearby captured a student car loaded with firebombs and steel pipes.

The rail yard riots broke out before dawn as did other demonstrations throughout the nation. By 3 p.m. police had arrested 157 persons, mostly students, throughout Japan, they said. A total of 135 anti-American demonstrators was arrested Monday.

Some passenger and freight trains were halted near Tokyo while police with clubs and aluminum shields battled to drive the students away from the tracks.

There was fighting at a rail station near a suburban U.S. Air Force base and on the busy Yamate commuter line.

Short strikes were called throughout the day today by a score of labor unions, including railway workers who maintain Japanese freight trains used to haul U.S. munitions and other military supplies.

Thousands of workers, students and housewives gathered at dusk in parks around the nation to shout their protests against Japan's military alliance with the United States.

About 70 Japanese pacifists chartered six harbor boats and sailed among sea-going vessels anchored in Tokyo Bay delivering speeches over loudspeakers against the military treaty.

About 2,600 staged a sitdown strike on the tracks of a railroad station near a U.S. airbase in Tokyo's western suburbs.

Riot police, protected by aluminum shields, waded in with clubs swinging and handcuffed 73 of the students before order was restored.

Edward Hageman Selected To Marin Planning Panel

Edward Hageman, a 54-year-old building designer, was named to the Marin County Planning Commission today on a 3-2 vote of the board of supervisors.

Hageman, of Sleepy Hollow, will succeed Michael R. Praszker of Mill Valley, who quit the at-large post earlier this year because of business pressures. The term expires in July, 1971.

The appointee was nominated for the post by the Marin Builders Exchange and is a partner in the San Rafael firm of Hageman and Eklund Building Designers. He is national vice president of the American Institute of Building Design and a member of the California State Board of Architectural Design.

Meyer was a last-minute nominee of supervisor Michael Wornum. Other candidates were attorney Arnold M. Greenberg of San Rafael; former Fairfax councilman Adelaide Wilson; Hugh Dougherty, currently the fourth supervisorial district representative on the commission; Dr. William F. Upton, former commissioner; Stephen Kramer, San Rafael real estate consultant; John Russell of Greenbrae, a landscape architect, and Niels Schulz Jr., also a former commissioner.

New planning commissioner

Hageman's three winning votes were believed to have come from Chairman John F. McInnis, William A. Gnoss and Louis H. Baar, with Peter R. Arrigoni joining Wornum in the vote for Meyer.

Said Hageman after his appointment, "I realize there is concern for ecology and conservation and that I'm the representative of the building industry, but I feel I'm for development and construction but with good taste."

Hageman, of 310 Hidden Valley Lane, has a wife, Bette, and two children. He is an Air Force veteran of World War II.

Squabble Over Subdividing Novato Area

By THERON A. NEWELL

It was horses versus people, septic tanks versus sewers, large lots versus urbanization of the unincorporated areas around Novato yesterday at the Marin County Planning Commission meeting. (See another story page 28.)

After more than two hours of arguments the commission voted 4-2 — with commissioners Hugh Dougherty and Margaret Azevedo against — to delay decision pending more information on the entire problem of subdividing rural Novato.

Involved is approximately 30 square miles bounded on the east by Highway 101 and on the south by big rock Ridge. The vast area includes the entire watershed of Novato Creek, north to Mount Burdell and West of Stafford Lake.

Chairman Walter F. Freitas was to ask for information from the public health department, the planning staff and sanitary engineers on facts pertaining to the West Novato, Indian Valley and other suburban areas.

Rowland Darnell of the county planning staff, presenter the plan to increase the lot size from 7,500 square feet to one-half and one-acre lots.

He was backed by George Douglas Vaughn, of 1862 Indian Valley Road, who represented West Novato Associates, a newly formed organization of residents of the area. He presented a petition with 219 signatures asking for the increase in lot size.

"This is rural America; we want elbow room, fresh air and horses," Vaughn said, adding that providing large lots today would solve tomorrow's problems.

Edwin V. Grundstrom, of 1709 Indian Valley Road, a member of the Novato Sanitary District board, said that the sewage effluent was coming out of the septic tanks and polluting the ditches of the area. "It is 19 years too late to make this proposal for larger lots, because there are at least 200 nonconforming lots and houses in the area," he said.

He pointed out that the sanitary district had tried unsuccessfully for three years to get sewers into the area to solve the sanitation problem.

He estimated that it would cost $4,000 to put sewers in front of acre lots, making development too expensive.

Darnell questioned Grundstrom's figure of houses, but Grundstrom cited areas of heavy density where houses were on 7,500-square-foot lots or less than half an acre.

Ralph T. McGrath, of 1796 Indian Valley Road, read a letter from Dr. Carolyn D. Albrecht, Marin County health officer, in which she reported that of 80 septic tanks inspected in the In-

U.S. Planes Pound Major Supply Lines

SAIGON (UPI) — American B52 bombers raided Communist supply lines and other targets in Cambodia and Laos today, military sources said.

The eight-engine bombers dropped hundreds of tons of bombs in the raids, the sources said, hitting the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in eastern Laos and an area of Cambodia described only as its northeastern region.

The U.S. Military Command said Monday that American participation and penetration in the aerial war over Cambodia are not affected by the 21.7-mile limitation on U.S. ground operations there or the deadline one week from today for withdrawal of all American ground forces.

B52s have bombed Cambodian border areas since the Allied thrust into the country began May 1, and jet fighters have reportedly penetrated 100 miles beyond he border.

In ground fighting in Cambodia, the Viet Cong were reported to have attacked the village of Prek Tameak outside the capital of Phnom Penh and to be tightening their hold on the centuries-old ruins at Angor Wat.

Two major government setbacks were reported in Laos.

Vientiane dispatches said the Communists captured Nongboua Village, the government's latest strategic position 12 miles from Saravane, thus dashing hopes of recapturing Saravane.

North Vietnamese also overran a government position at

Suspect Hunted In Police Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police broadcast an all-points bulletin today for the arrest of a man in the sniper-slaying of patrolman Richard Radetich of Ignacio.

Inspector Walter Kracke in the Homicide Bureau described the wanted man as Joe Allen Johnson, also known as Wesley Johnson. He said the wanted man is a male Negro of about 30 years.

Johnson, who lived at Hamilton Air Force Base as a youth, was at one time sent to Marin Juvenile Hall and after escaping and stealing a car in 1960, was sentenced to the California Youth Authority by Marin County officials.

Inspector Guio Battaglia of the Marin Sheriff's Department said that his office has no record of Johnson after 1960, when Johnson was 16 years old.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto yesterday authorized a $5,000 reward for the capture and conviction of Radetich's killer. The reward is the maximum allowed by city statue.

In addition to seeking the man in connection with the Radetich case, police have a warrant charging him with the attempted murder of a police officer last December.

Johnson was arrested then during a shootout at a Western Union telegraph office on Market Street, was wounded and then escaped from a hospital, Kracke said.

Kracke said the Police Deqartment has witnesses connecting Johnson with the assassination of Radetich, 25, who was shot in the head last Friday while writing out a citation in the Haight-Ashbury District for an automobile with illegal license plates.

The hunted man was last seen in San Francisco, his home, the night Radetich was killed, Kracke said.

Radetich was the third policeman to be killed in San Francisco this year. His funeral was held yesterday.

Kracke said that as far as police can determine the wanted man is not connected with any political or racial organization.

Study Urges Public Lands Law Revamp

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal laws dealing with public lands need a thorough overhaul to eliminate conflicts and meet the changing demands of modern America, a special commission reported today.

This conclusion — and hundreds of recommendations for change — resulted from a five-year, $7 million study of the old statutes by the Public Land Law Review Commission.

The commission proposed, in a 342-page report to President Nixon, some revisions that could have political reverberations, such as:

—Reimbursing states for tax revenues they lose because of sparse population on public land

—Adding new fees for use of federal land.

— Adding environmental protection clauses to all public land laws.

—Setting aside some areas for more extensive timber production.

One third of the nation is federal land, most of it in the West. Alaska is 95 per cent federal property. Ninety per cent of the rest is in California, Oregon, Washington, Utah, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming, Ida-

Bill To Ban Enforced Busing Draws Attacks

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The chairman of the Senate Education Committee today condemned legislation prohibiting compulsory busing of schoolchildren as "bad" but said it probably would pass his committee as now constituted.

"I wouldn't vote for it," said Democratic Sen. Albert Rodda of Sacramento. "It's a bad bill. It'll have to move along with other legislation. I'm not going to give it any priority."

He said that his committee "as constituted would pass it." The bill would forbid a school district from transporting any public school student for any reason unless his parent gave written permission.

Rodda noted that the fate of the bill may depend on whether Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, is present when a vote is taken in committee. Schmitz is a candidate for Congress and a special election to fill the vacant seat will be held next week.

Schmitz is regarded as the favorite. If he won, he probably would resign his state Senate seat before a committee vote was taken on the bill.

The Senate Rules Committee then could replace Schmitz with an antibusing member, a probusing member or not replace him at all.

Author Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, denied in debate prior to Monday's passage the measure had any connection with preventing integration.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, warned the bill would "outlaw" Berkeley's current school setup. He denounced the proposal as "a state action to promote segregation in the schools."

But Wakefield told Mrs. Brathwaite the bill simply required that "when you move that black child you have to get permission."

Marin Girl Wins At Wimbledon

Sharon Walsh, 18, of San Rafael won her first round match in the All-England Tennis Championships at Wimbledon, England today by defeating fellow Californian Patti Hogan of La Jolla, 8-6, 6-3.

United Press International reported Miss Walsh, a recent graduate of San Rafael High School playing in her first Wimbledon classic, was the second American to advance today in women's play. Earlier Julie Heldman of New York downed Australia's Fay Moore, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh of 246 D Street, is the U.S. girls' 18 and under national champion.

Test On Vote Age Is Next

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon reluctantly has signed the Voting Rights Act and ordered an early court ruling whether it is constitutional for Congress to lower the voting age to 18.

Nixon Monday signed the measure which would enfranchise between 10 and 11 million persons between 18 and 21, and extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act under which more than one million Negroes won the vote in the South.

The President, as he has before, said it was unconstitutional to lower the voting age by statute rather than by constitutional amendment. He ordered Attorney General John N. Mitchell to seek an early court ruling on that issue.

Nixon also, expressing concern that the young might raise their hopes only to have them dashed, asked Congress to press ahead on a constitutional amendment in case the new enfranchisement law is overturned.

However, it seems certain the House, at least, merely will sit by and learn the fate of the new law before making any move toward an amendment. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., Chairman of the key House Judiciary Committee, already is on record to that effect.

Celler also has doubts about the law's constitutionality, but feels there is an outside chance it will prevail, giving the vote to those 18 or older in all national, state and local elections.

In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has generally opposed lowering the minimum voting age, joined Nixon in hoping for an early ruling on the new federal 18-year-old voting law.

A spokesman for the governor said that Reagan "joins with President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell in hoping the court will render a swift decision on the constitutionality of the legislation."

The Republican governor, running for re-election to a second term, has said he has an "open mind" on the issue but also expressed some "reservations." He previously said that allowing 18-year-olds to vote would enable politicians to organize campus youth for work on election campaigns and could threaten academic freedom in the classroom.

Suspect Hunted In Police Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Police broadcast an all-points bulletin today for the arrest of a man in the sniper-slaying of patrolman Richard Radetich of Ignacio.

Inspector Walter Kracke in the Homicide Bureau described the wanted man as Joe Allen Johnson, also known as Wesley Johnson. He said the wanted man is a male Negro of about 30 years.

Johnson, who lived at Hamilton Air Force Base as a youth, was at one time sent to Marin Juvenile Hall and after escaping and stealing a car in 1960, was sentenced to the California Youth Authority by Marin County officials.

Inspector Guio Battaglia of the Marin Sheriff's Department said that his office has no record of Johnson after 1960, when Johnson was 16 years old.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto yesterday authorized a $5,000 reward for the capture and conviction of Radetich's killer. The reward is the maximum allowed by city statue.

In addition to seeking the man in connection with the Radetich case, police have a warrant charging him with the attempted murder of a police officer last December.

Johnson was arrested then during a shootout at a Western Union telegraph office on Market Street, was wounded and then escaped from a hospital, Kracke said.

Kracke said the Police Deqartment has witnesses connecting Johnson with the assassination of Radetich, 25, who was shot in the head last Friday while writing out a citation in the Haight-Ashbury District for an automobile with illegal license plates.

The hunted man was last seen in San Francisco, his home, the night Radetich was killed, Kracke said.

Sought for questioning

Radetich was the third policeman to be killed in San Francisco this year. His funeral was held yesterday.

Kracke said that as far as police can determine the wanted man is not connected with any political or racial organization.

Study Urges Public Lands Law Revamp

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal laws dealing with public lands need a thorough overhaul to eliminate conflicts and meet the changing demands of modern America, a special commission reported today.

This conclusion — and hundreds of recommendations for change — resulted from a five-year, $7 million study of the old statutes by the Public Land Law Review Commission.

The commission proposed, in a 342-page report to President Nixon, some revisions that could have political reverberations, such as:

—Reimbursing states for tax revenues they lose because of sparse population on public land

—Adding new fees for use of federal land.

— Adding environmental protection clauses to all public land laws.

—Setting aside some areas for more extensive timber production.

One third of the nation is federal land, most of it in the West. Alaska is 95 per cent federal property. Ninety per cent of the rest is in California, Oregon, Washington, Utah, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming, Ida-

Bill To Ban Enforced Busing Draws Attacks

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The chairman of the Senate Education Committee today condemned legislation prohibiting compulsory busing of schoolchildren as "bad" but said it probably would pass his committee as now constituted.

"I wouldn't vote for it," said Democratic Sen. Albert Rodda of Sacramento. "It's a bad bill. It'll have to move along with other legislation. I'm not going to give it any priority."

He said that his committee "as constituted would pass it." The bill would forbid a school district from transporting any public school student for any reason unless his parent gave written permission.

Rodda noted that the fate of the bill may depend on whether Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, is present when a vote is taken in committee. Schmitz is a candidate for Congress and a special election to fill the vacant seat will be held next week.

Schmitz is regarded as the favorite. If he won, he probably would resign his state Senate seat before a committee vote was taken on the bill.

The Senate Rules Committee then could replace Schmitz with an antibusing member, a probusing member or not replace him at all.

Author Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, denied in debate prior to Monday's passage the measure had any connection with preventing integration.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, warned the bill would "outlaw" Berkeley's current school setup. He denounced the proposal as "a state action to promote segregation in the schools."

But Wakefield told Mrs. Brathwaite the bill simply required that "when you move that black child you have to get permission."

Israeli Copters Inflict Damage On Egyptian Base

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel said its helicopter-borne commandos crossed the Gulf of Suez early today and inflicted heavy damage on an Egyptian military base 42 miles inside Egypt. Cairo said Israeli victory claims were imaginary and that the Egyptians inflicted heavy casualties.

The Israeli commando raid was the third such strike in 12 days. A Tel Aviv spokesman said the commandos shelled the post at Bir Araiyida, 42 miles inland from the gulf and 80 miles southeast of Cairo. He said the post was the military administrative headquarters for the area.

The spokesman and an Israeli military correspondent said the Israelis destroyed two armored personnel carriers, each with four or five soldiers aboard, and that all were killed. The spokesman said all the Israelis returned safely and suffered no casualties.

A Cairo spokesman said the attack occurred in the Zafarana area, which is on the coast, and that three Israeli helicopters landed two vehicles and a number of troops "in an attempt to attack an isolated observation post." Orders were given to attack and the Egyptians killed or wounded 20 Israelis, he said.

The Cairo spokesman said four Egyptians were wounded.

"The enemy was not able to reach its objective and what it is claiming now is nothing but the fabrication of its imagination," the spokesman said. "It seems that Israel now is depending on its imagination to issue military communiques."

An earlier Cairo statement sad the attack came at 2:30 a.m. and that the Israels inflicted neither damage nor casualties.

Coin Boxes, Change Are Reported Taken

Thieves between 12:20 and 8 a.m. Sunday stole coin boxes valued at $48 and containing about $45 in change from the laundry room of Franciscan Court Apartments, 90 Hoag Street, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A key apparently was used to take the coinboxes from the machines, according to police.

Indians Invade Park; Some Flee

LASSEN NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—U.S. Forest Service rangers early today arrested 22 Indians who invaded Lassen Volcanic National Park to claim the land as their own. This was their second attempt.

Shasta County sheriff's deputies said the 22 persons were charged with violating a federal regulation banning open fires in places other than in designated areas. They were booked at county jail in Redding.

A sheriff's spokesman said the Indians built "a fairly large bonfire in a meadow" in the park. He said they drove into the park shortly after midnight "like any other camper," but were "kept under constant surveillance."

Those arrested included 17 men and five women.

A month ago a caravan of 40 cars tried to enter the park but were turned back when they were met by rifle-carrying rangers. There were no arrests.

The park was closed by park supt. Dick Boyer for several days because of a threat of another invasion

The Indians then traveled to a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. employe campground near Big Bend where they set up camp. In all, 49 Indians were arrested there on charges of trespassing.

Most of the Indians involved in the invasions in Shasta County belong to the Pit River Tribe.

They claimed that some 3.5 million acres in Northern California were illegally taken from them by the white men in the mid 1800s during the Gold Rush days.

Attorneys for the 49 arrested filed an action Monday in Redding with Judge William Phelps, asking dismissal of the trespass charges.

They cited a 1964 ruling by the U.S. Indian Claims Commission that the tribe's land had been taken "taken without compensation" by white men in 1853.

3 More Facing Obscenity Count

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Three students on the staff of the UC Riverside campus newspaper were charged Monday in an obscenity complaint for reprinting a photograph that resulted in the arrest of two editors of the UCLA campus newspaper.

Charged wits publishing allegedly obscene material were Richard Maxwell, 21, editor of the Highlander, John Zaller, 23, a staff writer, and William Ellege, 21.

The photo, which appeared in the UCLA Daily Bruin last month, depicted a couple making love in a cemetery. The two UCLA editors were arrested on the same charge two weeks ago.

Up Teacher Pay, Hayakawa Asks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, urging a 5 per cent cost of living pay boost for state college faculty members, contends it is unfair to penalize professors who "supported academic responsibility...along with the trouble making minority."

Dr. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College, was speaking at a news conference Monday concerning a proposal in the Legislature that all state employes except teachers be granted the increase.

"You have not heard of riots at Humboldt State or Stanislaus State or Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo," he said. "Even San Francisco State College has had a delightfully quiet and productive year."

MINIS OUT ON PICKET LINE BIKINIS IN,

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Bikinis were the uniform of the day Monday for stewardesses picketing World Airways, Inc., in a labor contract dispute.

Stewardesses had decided not enough attention was being paid to their six-week strike and shed their miniskirts for the scanty swim suits.

On strike are more than 400 employes of the charter airline, including pilots, flight engineers and navigators, all seeking 20 per cent wage boosts and fringe benefits.

Negotiations broke down 10 days ago but the line says it is maintaining operations.

Some Jury Progress

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Eight jurors tentatively were approved Monday in the murder trial of four "Manson Family" members. A defense attorney tried to force a meeting with the young woman expected to be granted immunity from prosecution as the state's key witness.

During the third day of jury selection for the Tate-LaBianca slayings, Daye Shinn, attorney for Susan Atkins, complained that defense lawyers had been unable to speak with Linda Kasabian, 20, another cult member.

Although Mrs. Kasabian also has been charged in the killings, her trial has been delayed until August and she is expected to be granted immunity for her testimony against hippie chieftain Charles Manson and the others.

Criticism For Critics Of Critic With Agnew In The Middle Of It

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew today took the Washington Post and The New York Times to task for criticizing his call for the resignation of Harvard student Joseph Rhodes Jr. from the White House Commission investigating campus unrest.

In similar letters to the editor appearing in today's editions of both newspapers, Agnew asked whether the papers' editorial reactions would have been to demand the resignation of a "conservative person" if he had made statements similar to those attributed to Rhodes, a Negro.

The Post responded in a 700-word editorial on the same page that there was "an even chance that we would have done just that."

The Times did not reply to the Vice President's current letter. However in an editorial Thursday the newspaper said Agnew's criticism of Rhodes for "verbal posturing" at first glance looks like "deliberate parody."

"The basic issues continue to elude him," the Times said. "...The real issues are war and peace, social justice and racial equality. The students are certainly unwilling to accept political strategies that rely on thinly disguised appeals to the instincts of prejudice and fear."

In his letter to the Post Agnew said its editorial of June 19 failed to note that "his feelings about the appointment of Mr. Rhodes were based on a number of statements by Mr. Rhodes, among which was assertion, unsupported by any evidence that 'Governor Ronald Reagan was bent on killing people for his own political gain.'"

"Ask yourself and answer honestly—what would your editorial reaction have been if a conservative person on a panel investigating police deaths from left wing militant action stated, 'Ralph Abernathy was bent on killing people for his own political gain.'

"Of course, we know Mr. Abernathy would not do that; but we also know that Governor Reagan would not do that. . ."

In its reply, the Post said it welcomed the letter as a "breakthrough in direct communication as far as we are concerned."

"Answer 'honestly' Mr. Agnew says, and we shall: there is at least an even chance that we would have done just that—that we would have fallen victim to the distorted and disabling perspectives of which we have written before and from which we hardly consider ourselves uniquely (or even uniquely) free. It is, at this moment of heightened and hate-filled national argument, especially important that everyone beware of his own predispositions and built-in biases and blindness on certain questions," the Post editorial said.

"And in that regard, we ask the Vice President to give a little thought to his own perspective on things. For even as Mr. Agnew was expressing his indignation over the motives and crimes Mr. Rhodes ascribed to Governor Reagan and conjuring up another situation in which the same principle might be at work, he was also delivering one of the most godawful, slanderous attacks on a collection of former and present Democratic office-holders he has yet come up with—suggesting that somehow Averell Harriman was personally responsible for the enslavement and death of thousands upon thousands of persons and that he has been acting throughout from a combination of gullibility and discreditable motives."

Tam Budget Gets Tentative Nod

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night hesitatingly approved a $10,045,407 tentative budget but made it clear that the approval was granted only to meet legal requirements that the district have a tentative budget by June 30 and that major revisions will probably be made before final adoption in August.

If adopted as now proposed, the district's general fund tax rate would climb to $2.165 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of two cents over the present rate. Total tax rate this year is $2.29.

The proposed budget is an increase of $578,199 over this year's and includes a 6.7 per cent pay raise for district teachers, a pay package that will cost taxpayers an additional $357,165 this year.

The proposed budget does not include increases for the district's classified personnel since salary negotiations are still going on. An indication that a long battle over classified salaries looms came in a seperate item last night when trustees acted to extend the deadline on negotiations from June 30 to Sept. 30.

The trustees pored over the budget for nearly three hours last night and then almost balked when Business Mgr. Frank A. Cassou asked them for tentative approval.

"There are a lot of questions I still have. This is really the first time I've studied this," trustee David D. Ring said. Several other trustees agreed, but Cassou explained that their approval was only to meet a state requirement that the board take tentative action on a budget by June 30.

"You can still make changes in the budget right up through the month of July," Cassou said.

Cassou said that the board will have to approve a budget for publication on July 20 and set a public hearing and final adoption in August.

A breakdown of the proposed tax rate, exclusive of bond interest and redemption, shows $1.90 for general operation; 5.1 cents in district payment for teacher's retirement fund; 2.5 cents for payment to classified retirment fund; 1.6 cents for social security payment; 8.9 cents for health and welfare premiums; 5 cents for the community services programs and 3.4 cents for the Opportunity School — a total of $2.165.

Cassou said that the district's assessed valuation jumped approximately 8 per cent this year when only a 4 per cent hike had been expected.

This raised a question from Ring: "That's one of my concerns about the budget. The taxpayer may be right in asking why the tax rate should go up when the assessed valuation jumped so much."

Ring said he also questions the 6 cents override for the community services program, which last year carried a 3-cent tax.

The trustees indicated they would study the budget in the next few days and will be prepared to ask specific questions at the July 6 meeting.

A student representative from Redwood High School's Executive Council told the board that his organization had drafted a letter asking the trustees not to budget money for transportation of athletes to away-games but instead use the money for transportation of students to school. The board last year was forced to curtail the free bus transportation to school from many areas.

Trustees indicated that the entire matter of the athletic budget, particularly the transportation costs, would be a matter of close scrutiny in the upcoming budget sessions.

"The matter of the athletic budget has been hanging over us for a long time and I don't want it to hang over us for another year," board chairman Bette Wallace said.

Novato Council Delays Teen Center Decision

The Novato City Council and parks and recreation commission could not agree last night on a teen center, whereupon the council assigned $38,000 to unallocated reserves in the 1970-71 budget for park use or partially for a teen center.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown had included $7,000 in the budget for a teen center.

Councilman Joseph Gargiulo said a teen center was a "must."

Commissioner John Kassenbrock said he would support a teen center "when someone presents plans for a teen center that do not duplicate existing programs.

"Nobody knows what is to go on at the teen center, including the teen-agers," he said. The commission had held two meetings with teen-agers on a proposed center.

"They want us to turn over a building to them and they would run it without supervision. Why within a few months, it would turn into a pot smoking house," said Commissioner Jack Hollclaw. He said that the vast majority of teen-agers were too busy to need a place to congregate "just to drink coffee."

The council favored some development at Novato Creek Park for the pre-history museum access road, some work at the tank site on Seventh Street and work on Pioneer Memorial Park.

It could not agree on the amounts for each, so put the $38,000 in unallocated reserves for future decisions.

The council then reviewed the complete budget again, adding a little to one account and taking from another. It wound up with a budget of $2,073,485 for next fiscal year, $850 more than proposed by Brown.

It will require a tax rate increase from the present 81 cents to $1.05 per $100 assessed valuation. This breaks down in to 48 cents for general fund operation, 26 cents for parks and recreation, 1 cent for bond interest and redemption and increases the street construction tax from 6 to 30 cents.

The council discussed but took no action on requests for salary increases ranging from 2.5 to 17.5 per cent.

The first public hearing on the budget will be at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House. It will be an item in the regular council agenda.

Burglary Suspect, 18, To Face Jury Trial

Motorcyclist Fair From 101 Accident

The California Highway Patrol said he was thrown from the motorcycle while attempting a hill climb beneath Highway 101 at the Petaluma River bridge.

Trustees Set Election To Fill Vacancy

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night set Sept. 15 as the date of a special election to elect a replacement for Gloria Melbostad, who resigned last month effective July 1.

The trustees debated for nearly 30 minutes before deciding on the Sept. 15 date. They also considered putting the matter on the Nov. 15 general election ballot.

Persons interested in filing for a spot on the Sept. 15 ballot must do so before July 15, board chairman Bette Wallace said last night.

Mrs. Melbostad, who had been a trustee since 1964, resigned last month because her new job as a history teacher at the College of Marin took up too much of her time, she said.

The district's election will coincide with special school board elections in Mill Valley and Sausalito, trustees noted and the cost of the special ballot will be shared by all three districts.

Retiring Trustee Pleads For Integrity By Board

A call for integrity in dealing with the public has been issued by Gloria W. Melbostad of Mill Valley in her "swan song" as a trustee of Tamalpais High School District.

Mrs. Melbostad, who has resigned from the board effective the end of this month, reviewed her feelings after nearly six years of service in an article in the Board Bulletin Board, a monthly publication of the district.

"Any institution or organization, to do the kinds of socially valuable things we want it to do, must have a solid foundation of integrity," she wrote. "To me that means making decisions in an open and forthright manner based on valid and carefully weighed considerations, not on favoritism or inside politics."

Prime responsibility for assuring that everyone believes the structure has credibility lies with board and superintendent, she suggested. (Tam district will have a new superintendent, Wilber D. Hawkins, taking office at the same time Mrs. Melbostad leaves the board.)

"That crucial man at the top, the superintendent, must be a symbol not only of the purposes of the district, but must demonstrate his faith of open techniques and firmness in sticking to decisions openly arrived at," continued the retiring trustee, who tendered her resignation because, she said, she has become a teacher at College of Marin and lacks time and energy to devote to both assignments.

She noted that making decisions in this manner is not easy and sometimes leads to unpleasant confrontations. She then sounded a warning:

"Understandably, perhaps, some people would prefer the traditional pattern where matters are settled behind closed doors by maneuvering between boards and administrators. For some this method of operation has become so established over the years that it functions almost automatically and the pattern becomes increasingly rigid."

Noting the recent calls for accountability by the schools, she wrote:

Mrs. Melbostad said her own work as teacher had made her realize the importance of making students understand the teacher cares. But, she added: "To me the teacher who is perpetually competing in a popularity contest for student approval is the antithesis of responsibility. Conviviality is no substitute for academic achievement."

She suggested that the school district must resolve the argument over priorities between teaching factual material and relevance or understanding.

"Such questions must be weighed by the individual teacher. . . But there must be an overall framework that is developed by, agreed to, and understood by the entire school community," she concluded. "At the moment I feel such a framework is lacking in the district."

Nixon Vetoes Bill On Hospital Construction

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon may be facing another determined confrontation with Congress over his veto of a hospital construction bill that unanimously passed the House and the Senate.

At issue is a bill authorizing $1.2 billion in grants over a three-year period beginning in 1971 to continue construction of hospitals and other medical facilities as part of the Hill-Burton hospital construction program. The medical construction and modernization act — passed 70-0 in the Senate and 377-0 in the House—also authorizes $1.5 billion in guaranteed loans.

Nixon vetoed the measure Monday, calling it "a long step down the road of fiscal irresponsibility." It was his first veto in the current session of congress.

Goldberg Is Favored To Carry Vote

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, in his first bid for elective office, was the slight favorite today in the Democratic primary for the right to face three-term Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in November.

Goldberg, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, squared off against millionaire industrialist Howard J. Samuels after a lackluster campaign that was expected to attract fewer than one million of the state's 3.6 million Democratic voters.

Theodore C. Sorensen, a speech writer for the late President Kennedy, was rated the slight favorite. He had party's endorsement in the race against Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, Rep. Richard D. McCarthy and Paul O'Dwyer, the peace candidate and the party's 1968 nominee.

Marin County Supervisors' approval yesterday of the county library budget will raise the tax rate 2.5 cents to 22.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The Independent-Journal erred in its report yesterday saying the increased would be added to a rate of 22.5 cents.

Goldberg Is Favored To Carry Vote

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, in his first bid for elective office, was the slight favorite today in the Democratic primary for the right to face three-term Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in November.

Goldberg, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, squared off against millionaire industrialist Howard J. Samuels after a lackluster campaign that was expected to attract fewer than one million of the state's 3.6 million Democratic voters.

dian Valley area, 50 per cent had failures in the tank or leeching line.

Dr. Albrecht urged nothing less than two-acre lots where there was no sewer because the land could not absorb septic tank leechings.

"It's the key issue because the health hazard is the outstanding problem there today," retorted Harold Bloom, of 1853 Indian Valley Road.

Bloom was backed by Franklin Gustafson, of 1970 Indian Valley Road, a member of the North Marin County Water District board who said it would make dividing his place too prohibitive because it would cost $18,000 per acre with a sewer.

Thomas Keena who owns 20 acres adjacent to the city limits at 610 McClay Road, summarized it, saying, "It's horses or humans."

Mrs. Philip J. Leonard, of 2220 Oak Knoll Road, said she bought her house so she could have horses.

John G. Wiersma, of 1615 Hill Road, objected to bulldozing of hills and trees for subdivisions, wanting to keep the landscape as it is.

"It's a lot of property and a lot of people; we could do a better job if we could have more time," Freitas said, asking the commission for a delay until its July 13 meeting.

An expert marksman, Spencer had been principal of the junior high school for two years when he arranged a meeting on May 6, 1940, with officials of the school district at South Pasadena High School.

There was an argument. He shot and killed them with his target pistol—the same weapon he used for practice sessions with a tin can on a soap box.

Killed were George C. Bush, 64, superintendent of the district, John Alman, 50, principal of the high school, and Will R. Speer, 52, district purchasing agent.

In an outer office he shot Miss Dortha Talbot, 30, Bush's secretary. She was left paralyzed with a bullet in her spine.

Spencer then got into his car and drove to the junior high school a few blocks away. There he fatally shot manual arts instructor Verner Vanderlip, 35, and art teacher Ruth Sturgeon, 45, who died a few days later.

An hour later police found Spencer unconcious in the locked cafeteria of the junior high school. He had a self-inflicted bullet wound under his heart.

Later, in the hospital he was told that four of his victims died instantly.

"Are only four of them dead?" he was quoted at the time as asking. "Too bad they didn't all go—and me too." Witnesses said he smiled and lapsed into unconsciousness.

He was sentenced to five life terms for murder.

In South Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported an Army transport helicopter shot down Monday 17 miles southwest of the Central Highlands city of An Khe, wounding three Americans. Seven other Americans were wounded in 14 Communist shelling attacks during the 24-hour period ended at 8 a.m. today.

A military spokesman said the attack on Prek Tameak, 15 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, began as a skirmish Monday afternoon but had developed into a major battle today.

Cambodian military sources said the South Vietnamese had strong reinforcements ready to move into the area if necessary and were patrolling the Mekong River to make sure the Communists made no attempt to cross to the Phnom Penh side.

An increasing number of Norh Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are gathering in the 25 square mile temple and shrine complex at Angkor Wat 180 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, the military spokesman said. It is considered so sacred by Cambodians they have declared it a noncombat area.

The commission recommendations would change some policies dating back to pioneer days. It suggested doing away with the Homestead Act, under which thousands of farmers have settled in the West. It would change the way mining and oil drilling leases are worked out.

The report said much of the commission's work had to do with sorting out the overlapping bureaucracy that touches on public lands. It should all be streamlined and made easier to follow, the commission suggested.

Federal responsibilities should be consolidated more and the committees in Congress that deal with public land matters should be boiled down to one committee for each house of Congress, the report said.

The commission chairman, Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., recognized change might come slowly because of the many voters and taxpayers who could be affected by the commission's recommendations.

Master Plan For Hilarita Units Approved

The Tiburon City Council last night approved a master plan for development of the Hilarita site, permitting a maximum of 112 moderate income housing units on eight acres.

The 3-1 vote came after more than one-and-one-half hours of discussion by the council and interested citizens who packed the council room, and announcement of passage brought sustained applause from spectators.

The Tiburon Ecumenical Association, an alliance of churches, is the project sponsor.

Stewart Hopkins of the Hill Haven Property Owners' Association said he opposed the plan because "Tiburon needs an instant slum like it needs a hole in the head."

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood, speaking for the move, won applause when she asked, "How can a redevelopment of the area depreciate the property value?"

Asst. City Atty. Richard Breiner said the plan may be changed at the specific plan stage, but substantial changes would require further council action.

In a related matter, the city council established a committee under former Mayor Gordon Strawbridge to study the feasibility of acquiring a 4.8 acre portion of the Hilarita site for development, along with some adjacent areas, as a park.

The Tiburon City Council also:

CABLE TV — Appointed Councilmen Ellinwood and Albert H. Sennett to study the franchise application of Cable TV of Marin to hook up some areas not presently served by franchisee Clear View Cable Systems, Inc., and to continue to serve in areas of Tiburon annexed after Cable TV of Marin was. Discussion was set for July 27.

LOCAL TRANSIT — Voted to express approval of commute operations of Marin County Transit Systems, to Tiburon and to recommend to the public utilities commission that three routes affecting the city, which the firm has applied for, be approved.

MARK TERRACE — Banned parking on the northwesterly side of Mark Terrace and appropriated $400 to build barricades to prevent cars from rolling into a house at the bottom of the hill on Mark Terrace.

UNDERGROUND WIRES — Postponed until July 13 a hearing on progress of utility companies in removing overhead wires from the previously designated underground wiring district.

HILARY DRIVE — Voted to place a stop sign on Hilary Drive at Maravista Court and to remove the stop sign at the corner of Theresa Court and Hilary Drive.

CLUSTER ZONING — Set for July 13 a hearing on cluster zoning, zoning for densely populated areas separated by open areas.

MAR WEST SLIDE — Authorized the city engineer to spend $2000 on studies preliminary to repairing the landslide damage to Mar West Street. Application to the California Disaster Office for financial assistance in the project has been made.

Can Drive Paying Off

I-J Special Report

GOLDEN, Colo. — Adolph Coors Co.'s cash-for-cans program has, at its five-month point, resulted in the recovery of more than a million pounds of aluminum — some 26 million cans — at the dime-per-pound price set by the regional brewery, the company has announced.

The program (also underway in Marin), which applies to all aluminum containers, has recovered 1,139,075 pounds thus far and has netted $113,907 for civic organizations and individuals. Some groups are averaging more than $200 per month, the company said.

Early estimates that 2.5 million pounds would be recovered and recycled by the end of 1970 have had to be revised upward. Now, the company estimates, some four million pounds of aluminum will be purchased by its distributors by Jan. 1, 1971 at the dime-a-pound rate.

That would mean a $400,000 payout to those who pick up the cans.

The aluminum recovery program will be continued indefinitely, Coors officials said, as part of a company effort to help keep America clean.

Other states in which the program is underway are Colorado, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Utah.

Russia Wooing British Royalty

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet government wants Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip of Britain to visit Russia as a sign of Britain's independent role in world politics, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the Kremlin has tapped several recent British visitors, men of some influence in London, to tell Buckingham Palace of its interest in a royal visit.

Soviet sources have said such an invitation was suggested informally in 1957 by Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, then visiting London as the Soviet premier of the day in company with party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Fairfax Gets Proposed Tax, Budget Hikes

A proposed $556,171 1970-71 budget with a 15-cent tax rate increase was presented to the Fairfax City Council last night by City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet.

The budget proposal was not discussed by the council last night.

The $556,171 in proposed expenditures is $14,049 more than this year's budget, but $11,189 less than this year's estimated expenditures.

If adopted by the council, the 15-cent tax increase will raise the city's tax rate to $1.89 per $100 assessed valuation.

SALARY BOOST

The budget proposal includes a 5 per cent salary increase for all full-time city employees, and estimates spending $371,493 for personnel.

Some $112,957 is proposed for materials and supplies, with an additional $5,000 reserve, and $66,721 is proposed for capital improvements.

Major increases in the proposal include the $19,066 proposed for central services, up $9,091 from this year. The proposal includes $9,000 for repairs to the city office building.

The proposed $148,132 for the police department represents an $11,665 increase, and the $127,232 proposed for the fire department is $11,961 over this year's budget.

OTHER OUTLAYS

The proposed expenditures, with this year's figures in parentheses, for the three public works divisions are: engineering, $4,500 ($4,000); streets, $80,815 ($109,074), and street lighting, $20,000 ($18,950).

Other city departments are: city council, $9,850 ($10,050); administrator, $26,156 ($26,455); treasurer, $830 ($780); attorney, $6,500 ($4,900) and planning commission, $2,140 ($2,010).

Retirement, $44,416 ($41,243); audit service, $750 ($750); insurance, $10,700 ($8,885); community promotions, $1,750 ($1,000); building department, $11,548 ($10,842); animal services, $3,300 ($4,000); park, $18,725 ($19,362); recreation, $14,661 ($14,228), and a new expenditure of $100 for civil defense.

Fairfax Rejects Plea To Clear Slide Debris

The Fairfax City Council last night rejected an appeal to clear debris from a winter slide at 29 Canyon Road because the owner of the property has filed a claim for damages against the city.

The council had authorized $3,400 April 13 to remove the debris, even though the home of Peter A. Wynne, which was destroyed in the slide, was not within the Fairfax city limits.

The authorization was held up, however, when Wynne filed a claim in May against the city.

Last night, Richard T. Tarrant, San Rafael attorney representing Wynne, again asked the city to finance the debris removal and promised that such action would not be construed as admission of city blame for the slide.

He pleaded that the Wynnes were financially wiped out with the slide and didn't have the money to clear the debris.

He said the claim against the city was filed only to meet a 100-day deadline to file, adding that he did not believe the city was to blame.

He declined however to withdraw the claim.

"We're nice guys, but they've got a knife at our throat," Councilman Francis J. O'Connell said.

The council voted unanimously to reject the appeal, but Mayor Frank J. Egger told Tarrant to contact the city if Wynne would agree to drop the suit.

The Fairfax City Council also:

APPEAL — Rejected an appeal by Councilman Robert R. Souza of a planning commission decision granting a conditional use permit to Max Holsinger for property on Fawn Drive. Souza claimed the permit was in violation of the city's private road ordinance.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of William D. Chapman Jr. from the planning commission for personal and health reasons, and Paul C. Steinmetz from the design review board. Steinmetz had submitted his resignation earlier, but was asked by the council to reconsider. He is still resigning. Egger announced that applications for both positions would be accepted.

GLASS — Referred to City Atty. Wallace Myers a proposed ordinance banning glass containers in the ballfield area of the city park. Councilman Lee Nelder suggested the proposal be amended to allow canteen operators to bring bottled liquids for sale onto the ballfield as long as they do not sell the liquid in bottles.

FIRE TRAILS — Referred to Myers and Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton a proposed ordinance concerning autos parked on fire roads and public road easements.

TRAFFIC — Passed a resolution providing for four stop signs at the intersection of Manor and Scenic roads. In addition, because no record could be found of it having been done officially in the past, the council appointed Police Chief James R. Orr the city traffic engineer.

TREES — Referred to the park and recreation commission a proposal by Egger for an ordinance providing that for every tree the city is forced to destroy, two trees be planted in the city.

FUNDS — Passed a resolution to notify the state department of public works that the city intends to accumulate funds available to it under the federal Traffic Operations to Improve Capacity and Safety program during fiscal 1969-70 and 1970-71 to use for traffic studies prior to June 30, 1972.

ANNEXATION — Directed the planning commission to hold a special meeting to consider prezoning two pieces of property west of the city which are being considered for annexation.

ROAD — Put over for further study a request from Willetta Taft of 104 Crest Road that Crest Road from beginning to her property be established as a city maintained road.

MEETING — Put over the rest of its agenda until 8 p.m. next Monday. The city's first budget session will follow completion of the agenda items.

Petaluma Council Begins Review Of Proposed Budget

The Petaluma City Council found little to quibble abut last night in the first of a series of reviews of he proposed $3,119,473 budget for 1970-71.

Most discussion was limited to cost of materials, supplies and departmental services since City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer was absent due to illness.

Salaries and proposed capital improvements will be delayed until the completion of preliminary studies, the council said, as it scheduled more meetings for today at tomorrow at 7 p.m.

The recommended budget of $324,111 for the police department brought questions as Police Chief Larry D. Higgins disputed the city manager's reduction for repair service for patrol cars from $6,400 to $5,400. He said he could not foresee spending less on repairs.

City Engineer David A. Young also asked that some of his requests that were cut by Meyer be reinstated. He said that costs for street lighting had been set at $64,000 but were cut to $62,000.

Young noted that nearly $60,000 would be spent this year and said the cost will be much higher next year since some stronger lights have been installed in old sections of the city and new lights would be added in the growing subdivisions.

The city engineer also asked that his request for $225 for travel and meeting expenses not be cut to $75 as recommended by the city manager.

Young said that other departments have been allocated more funds and that his staff should also have the opportunity to attend regional professional meetings.

Oil Is Stolen

Thieves between 11 a.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday pried open an outside storage box at Triple S Auto Service Centers, 1837 Fourth Street, and stole 24 quarts of oil valued at $17, San Rafael police reported today.

Albanian is spoken by 3 million persons.

U.N. Birthday Rituals Begin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city that gave birth to the United Nations has begun celebration of its 25th birthday on a note of confusion.

A noon ceremony Monday in Union Square included international music and folk dances and beauties representing many countries. But there were also problems with sound equipment and it took an hour to raise flags of 36 member nations on the facade of Macy's department store.

The Silver Anniversary celebration will take on a true international flavor Thursday and Friday when statesmen from 125 of the 126 U.N. nations arrive. Only troubled Cambodia will not be represented.

Nickel Chewing Gum May Be Thing Of Past

NEW YORK (AP) — Now there's even more reason not to talk while the flavor lasts—chewing gum costs have risen.

"Nickel gum has been a nickel for so long," lamented a Beech Nut, Inc. spokesman Monday as he told of a pack's suggested retail price rise to six cents.

He said increased raw material and labor costs have pushed the wholesale price of a box of 20 packs from 60 to 80 cents.

San Anselmo Probes Rash Of Bicycle Thefts

Fairfax Boy Hurt In Ross Car Crash

A two-year-old Fairfax boy was treated at Marin General Hospital at 7:42 p.m. yesterday for scalp bruises suffered in an automobile accident in Ross.

The boy, Michael Blass of 200 Bolinas Road, was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Thomas Henry Walker, also of 200 Bolinas Road, which collided with an auto driven by Gail Jane Melnick, 27, of 150 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross, on Sir Francis Drake near her home.

San Rafael Elementary, High Budget Given Tentative Nod

Tentative budgets of $4,830,843 for the San Rafael Elementary School District and $4,968,635 for the high school district were tentatively approved by the San Rafael Board of Education last night.

Lewis S. Pollock of 9 Knoll Way pointed out that higher elementary district budget spending proposed before defeat of tax increases June 2 could be financed without creating a deficit.

Supt. John F. Plank said, however, he could not recommend that as it would be deficit financing, since it would require using all or nearly all of reserves accumulated from the current year. The board went along with him, acting chairman John C. Pfeiffer stressing that the tentative budget is "a living document" subject to change up to the first week in August.

Principal cuts were in capital outlay, slashed $31,620 in the elementary district and $52,729 in the high school district, and maintenance of plant, reduced $82,824 in the elementary district and $47,857 in the high school district.

Board member Paul L. Jones worried that these meant deferring maintenance and improvements that might hit the districts with heavier loads in 1972.

The tentative budgets call for a 6.8 per cent cost of living raise for employees — up from the 5 per cent considered earlier — but do not include fringe benefits for teachers which are financed from a special override tax. (This tax will be sharply reduced, requiring re-budgeting, if Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform package becomes law.)

Administration costs were reduced by $30,217 in the elementary district and $23,834 in the high school district. Part of this was by eliminating positions, and part by transferring some positions from "administration" to "teaching." Instruction costs were reduced also, however — $33,729 in elementary and $52,874 in high school — by eliminating some positions, programs, and supplies. Board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was worried by cuts in the "more able learners" program which he feared would emasculate the program, and by reduction of time allotted for supervision of vocational training.

There was a brief discussion of saving $28,000 by adopting a busing plan proposed by John Thompson, transportation supervisor. Thompson's plan would use fewer buses with fewer stops, requiring students to wait longer for buses and congregate at the remaining stops in greater numbers. The board decided not to try it this year.

Kramer entered repeated objections about the form in which the budget was submitted to the board, complaining it lacked clear detail and failed to show amounts budgeted for this year although it showed amounts spent.

Not included in the elementary district total was $127,000 for a new building at Laurel Dell Primary School to replace that condemned under the Field Act. This also will be financed from a special override tax — one not affected by the governor's finance bill.

Board president Herman L. Childress Jr., who has missed budget discussion while away on a trip, will be back for the first meeting in July, Pfeiffer reported.

Board, Principals Head Off Student Fund Raid

A raid on the student body treasuries at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools was forestalled last night by objections of the principals and two members of the San Rafael Board of Education.

Supt. John F. Plank, in reducing the high school district budget, eliminated athletic supplies which he proposed to buy from the student body treasuries. Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte said the supplies had already been ordered.

Asked by board member Carl J. Brown how it had been possible to order the supplies yet eliminate them from the budget, Plank replied: "We've loaned the money and will try to get it back."

Principal Alan W. Ellsberg of San Rafael High School objected: "If we really believe student government is something more than play," the students should be allowed to decide whether they wished to buy the athletic supplies. "If they say no, would you discontinue athletics?" he asked.

Principal Frank Stocking of Terra Linda High said he agreed the students "should be involved in supporting the athletic program," but "I also believe they should be in on making the decision."

Acting chairman John C. Pfeiffer wanted to "leave it up to the administration."

This brought a blast from board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr., joined by Brown, against allowing the superintendent to raid the students' funds without the students' permission.

Pfeiffer then agreed the athletics supplies should be paid from district funds.

Actually, however, the tentative budget for the high school district which the board approved does not include anything for the athletic supplies that Plank proposed to have the student bodies buy, although Pfeiffer said several times "this is budgeted." The amount, about $8,000, will have to be added to the $4,968,635 budget total for the high school district.

The board last night also agreed to pay a 9 per cent architect's fee for jobs under $100,000, but stuck to 8 per cent for larger jobs. The move came as the board approved a $127,000 contract with Marshall and Bowles architectural firm for the design of a new building at Laurel Dell Primary School. The firm had asked for a sliding fee scale which would have paid it 10.8 per cent. It got 8 per cent.

The firm had askedf orasliding feesc alewhich would have paid it 10.8 per cent. It got 8 per cent.

Three Tape Recorders Stolen From School

Three tinted windows were broken to gain entry. Police said a microphone amplifier was also removed from the building, but was found discarded outside.

Fairfax Gets Proposed Tax, Budget Hikes

A proposed $556,171 1970-71 budget with a 15-cent tax rate increase was presented to the Fairfax City Council last night by City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet.

The budget proposal was not discussed by the council last night.

The $556,171 in proposed expenditures is $14,049 more than this year's budget, but $11,189 less than this year's estimated expenditures.

If adopted by the council, the 15-cent tax increase will raise the city's tax rate to $1.89 per $100 assessed valuation.

SALARY BOOST

The budget proposal includes a 5 per cent salary increase for all full-time city employees, and estimates spending $371,493 for personnel.

Some $112,957 is proposed for materials and supplies, with an additional $5,000 reserve, and $66,721 is proposed for capital improvements.

Major increases in the proposal include the $19,066 proposed for central services, up $9,091 from this year. The proposal includes $9,000 for repairs to the city office building.

The proposed $148,132 for the police department represents an $11,665 increase, and the $127,232 proposed for the fire department is $11,961 over this year's budget.

OTHER OUTLAYS

The proposed expenditures, with this year's figures in parentheses, for the three public works divisions are: engineering, $4,500 ($4,000); streets, $80,815 ($109,074), and street lighting, $20,000 ($18,950).

Other city departments are: city council, $9,850 ($10,050); administrator, $26,156 ($26,455); treasurer, $830 ($780); attorney, $6,500 ($4,900) and planning commission, $2,140 ($2,010).

Retirement, $44,416 ($41,243); audit service, $750 ($750); insurance, $10,700 ($8,885); community promotions, $1,750 ($1,000); building department, $11,548 ($10,842); animal services, $3,300 ($4,000); park, $18,725 ($19,362); recreation, $14,661 ($14,228), and a new expenditure of $100 for civil defense.

Nickel Chewing Gum May Be Thing Of Past

NEW YORK (AP) — Now there's even more reason not to talk while the flavor lasts—chewing gum costs have risen.

"Nickel gum has been a nickel for so long," lamented a Beech Nut, Inc. spokesman Monday as he told of a pack's suggested retail price rise to six cents.

He said increased raw material and labor costs have pushed the wholesale price of a box of 20 packs from 60 to 80 cents.

Fairfax Rejects Plea To Clear Slide Debris

The Fairfax City Council last night rejected an appeal to clear debris from a winter slide at 29 Canyon Road because the owner of the property has filed a claim for damages against the city.

The council had authorized $3,400 April 13 to remove the debris, even though the home of Peter A. Wynne, which was destroyed in the slide, was not within the Fairfax city limits.

The authorization was held up, however, when Wynne filed a claim in May against the city.

Last night, Richard T. Tarrant, San Rafael attorney representing Wynne, again asked the city to finance the debris removal and promised that such action would not be construed as admission of city blame for the slide.

He pleaded that the Wynnes were financially wiped out with the slide and didn't have the money to clear the debris.

He said the claim against the city was filed only to meet a 100-day deadline to file, adding that he did not believe the city was to blame.

He declined however to withdraw the claim.

"We're nice guys, but they've got a knife at our throat," Councilman Francis J. O'Connell said.

The council voted unanimously to reject the appeal, but Mayor Frank J. Egger told Tarrant to contact the city if Wynne would agree to drop the suit.

The Fairfax City Council also:

APPEAL — Rejected an appeal by Councilman Robert R. Souza of a planning commission decision granting a conditional use permit to Max Holsinger for property on Fawn Drive. Souza claimed the permit was in violation of the city's private road ordinance.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of William D. Chapman Jr. from the planning commission for personal and health reasons, and Paul C. Steinmetz from the design review board. Steinmetz had submitted his resignation earlier, but was asked by the council to reconsider. He is still resigning. Egger announced that applications for both positions would be accepted.

GLASS — Referred to City Atty. Wallace Myers a proposed ordinance banning glass containers in the ballfield area of the city park. Councilman Lee Nelder suggested the proposal be amended to allow canteen operators to bring bottled liquids for sale onto the ballfield as long as they do not sell the liquid in bottles.

FIRE TRAILS — Referred to Myers and Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton a proposed ordinance concerning autos parked on fire roads and public road easements.

TRAFFIC — Passed a resolution providing for four stop signs at the intersection of Manor and Scenic roads. In addition, because no record could be found of it having been done officially in the past, the council appointed Police Chief James R. Orr the city traffic engineer.

TREES — Referred to the park and recreation commission a proposal by Egger for an ordinance providing that for every tree the city is forced to destroy, two trees be planted in the city.

FUNDS — Passed a resolution to notify the state department of public works that the city intends to accumulate funds available to it under the federal Traffic Operations to Improve Capacity and Safety program during fiscal 1969-70 and 1970-71 to use for traffic studies prior to June 30, 1972.

ANNEXATION — Directed the planning commission to hold a special meeting to consider prezoning two pieces of property west of the city which are being considered for annexation.

ROAD — Put over for further study a request from Willetta Taft of 104 Crest Road that Crest Road from beginning to her property be established as a city maintained road.

MEETING — Put over the rest of its agenda until 8 p.m. next Monday. The city's first budget session will follow completion of the agenda items.

U.N. Birthday Rituals Begin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city that gave birth to the United Nations has begun celebration of its 25th birthday on a note of confusion.

A noon ceremony Monday in Union Square included international music and folk dances and beauties representing many countries. But there were also problems with sound equipment and it took an hour to raise flags of 36 member nations on the facade of Macy's department store.

The Silver Anniversary celebration will take on a true international flavor Thursday and Friday when statesmen from 125 of the 126 U.N. nations arrive. Only troubled Cambodia will not be represented.

Petaluma Council Begins Review Of Proposed Budget

The Petaluma City Council found little to quibble abut last night in the first of a series of reviews of he proposed $3,119,473 budget for 1970-71.

Most discussion was limited to cost of materials, supplies and departmental services since City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer was absent due to illness.

Salaries and proposed capital improvements will be delayed until the completion of preliminary studies, the council said, as it scheduled more meetings for today at tomorrow at 7 p.m.

The recommended budget of $324,111 for the police department brought questions as Police Chief Larry D. Higgins disputed the city manager's reduction for repair service for patrol cars from $6,400 to $5,400. He said he could not foresee spending less on repairs.

City Engineer David A. Young also asked that some of his requests that were cut by Meyer be reinstated. He said that costs for street lighting had been set at $64,000 but were cut to $62,000.

Young noted that nearly $60,000 would be spent this year and said the cost will be much higher next year since some stronger lights have been installed in old sections of the city and new lights would be added in the growing subdivisions.

The city engineer also asked that his request for $225 for travel and meeting expenses not be cut to $75 as recommended by the city manager.

Young said that other departments have been allocated more funds and that his staff should also have the opportunity to attend regional professional meetings.

Oil Is Stolen

Thieves between 11 a.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday pried open an outside storage box at Triple S Auto Service Centers, 1837 Fourth Street, and stole 24 quarts of oil valued at $17, San Rafael police reported today.

Salaries Delaying Mill Valley Budget

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Mill Valley City Council, marking time until it resolves the question of city employees' salaries, last night made minor deletions and revisions in a record $2,002,763 budget.

Councilmen eliminated $1,000 earmarked for traveling expenses to the League of California Cities convention this fall and decided not to repave the downtown parking lot, a $3,500 saving, but decided to leave the money in the reserve fund.

In all, the council discussed some $768,000 of proposed allocations for materials, supplies and services, but made no other change.

The budget's biggest question mark, the $1,063,493 proposed for salaries, remained unresolved. City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has been meeting with representatives of the Mill Valley Employees Association in an attempt to agree on salary requests.

Cunningham has proposed a 7.5 per cent raise for most city employees, who have asked that salaries be increased to 5 per cent above the average of 17 cities chosen by both parties.

Salary discussion is expected to occupy most of the next budget session, set for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall. The council also may consider the parks and recreation budget.

Councilmen briefly talked about the parks and recreation budget after several members of that commission showed up at last night's meeting in the gallery of the library.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said he was concerned about widely circulated reports that his department was responsible for a $38,000 deficit which the council must recoup in fiscal 1970-71.

The deficit stems from the cost of moving the community recreation center to its present location at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue.

"Reports in the newspapers have made it sound like the budget is in the hole due to my mismanagement," Dimitratos told Mayor George E. Wickham. "That's not so. Why blame the Parks and Recreation Department?"

Cunningham said that the deficit is included under the 1970-71 parks and recreation budget because that is how last year's auditor's report categorized it.

"It's still there because the general fund is at the legal taxing limit of $1 (per $100 assessed valuation)," Wickham said. "We have to carry it somewhere."

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke suggested that the $38,000 was not the department's fault, but the city council's, which last year approved the moving of the recreation center.

"Let's just say that the deficit was assigned to parks and recreation," he said. This appeared to please everyone.

After further wrestling with the budget, which Cunningham said would require a tax rate of $3.115 per $100 assessed valuation, up from this year's $2.42, it became apparent that no significant changes could be made until salaries are discussed.

Councilmen talked briefly about capital improvement projects, but made no changes. They agreed to consider this part of the budget at another session July 1 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

To Earth-based observers, the sun appears a hundred billion times brighter than any other star, National Geographic says. However, the sun would seem puny if matched at the same distance against such brilliant stars as Rigel, which is 15,000 times more luminous.

Opposition To Further Support Cuts

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday voiced strong opposition to further cuts in state support that could cost the county $550,000 next year.

Telegrams opposing passage of Assembly Bill 525 were authorized after County Administrator David L. Nichols reported proposed blanket reductions of state support in the bill could add as much as 13 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the county tax rate.

Nichols, who lamented the loss of state funds in the presentation of the 1970-71 county budget, said the bill would reduce state spending on all programs by 2.25 per cent.

Last week he said that the reduction in state support for state mandated programs was a major cause of the $7 million budget increase. He said that if the assembly bill passes, that figure would have to be raised even higher.

Turning to other pending legislation, supervisors endorsed Senate Bill 403 as authored by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, which would authorize an additional clerk for both the Southern Sonoma and Central Sonoma municipal courts and increase the salary of superior court reporters to $13,800 per year.

Fairfax Boy Hurt In Ross Car Crash

A two-year-old Fairfax boy was treated at Marin General Hospital at 7:42 p.m. yesterday for scalp bruises suffered in an automobile accident in Ross.

The boy, Michael Blass of 200 Bolinas Road, was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Thomas Henry Walker, also of 200 Bolinas Road, which collided with an auto driven by Gail Jane Melnick, 27, of 150 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross, on Sir Francis Drake near her home.

San Rafael Elementary, High Budget Given Tentative Nod

Tentative budgets of $4,830,843 for the San Rafael Elementary School District and $4,968,635 for the high school district were tentatively approved by the San Rafael Board of Education last night.

Lewis S. Pollock of 9 Knoll Way pointed out that higher elementary district budget spending proposed before defeat of tax increases June 2 could be financed without creating a deficit.

Supt. John F. Plank said, however, he could not recommend that as it would be deficit financing, since it would require using all or nearly all of reserves accumulated from the current year. The board went along with him, acting chairman John C. Pfeiffer stressing that the tentative budget is "a living document" subject to change up to the first week in August.

Principal cuts were in capital outlay, slashed $31,620 in the elementary district and $52,729 in the high school district, and maintenance of plant, reduced $82,824 in the elementary district and $47,857 in the high school district.

Board member Paul L. Jones worried that these meant deferring maintenance and improvements that might hit the districts with heavier loads in 1972.

The tentative budgets call for a 6.8 per cent cost of living raise for employees — up from the 5 per cent considered earlier — but do not include fringe benefits for teachers which are financed from a special override tax. (This tax will be sharply reduced, requiring re-budgeting, if Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform package becomes law.)

Administration costs were reduced by $30,217 in the elementary district and $23,834 in the high school district. Part of this was by eliminating positions, and part by transferring some positions from "administration" to "teaching." Instruction costs were reduced also, however — $33,729 in elementary and $52,874 in high school — by eliminating some positions, programs, and supplies. Board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was worried by cuts in the "more able learners" program which he feared would emasculate the program, and by reduction of time allotted for supervision of vocational training.

There was a brief discussion of saving $28,000 by adopting a busing plan proposed by John Thompson, transportation supervisor. Thompson's plan would use fewer buses with fewer stops, requiring students to wait longer for buses and congregate at the remaining stops in greater numbers. The board decided not to try it this year.

Kramer entered repeated objections about the form in which the budget was submitted to the board, complaining it lacked clear detail and failed to show amounts budgeted for this year although it showed amounts spent.

Not included in the elementary district total was $127,000 for a new building at Laurel Dell Primary School to replace that condemned under the Field Act. This also will be financed from a special override tax — one not affected by the governor's finance bill.

Board president Herman L. Childress Jr., who has missed budget discussion while away on a trip, will be back for the first meeting in July, Pfeiffer reported.

Board, Principals Head Off Student Fund Raid

A raid on the student body treasuries at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools was forestalled last night by objections of the principals and two members of the San Rafael Board of Education.

Supt. John F. Plank, in reducing the high school district budget, eliminated athletic supplies which he proposed to buy from the student body treasuries. Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte said the supplies had already been ordered.

Asked by board member Carl J. Brown how it had been possible to order the supplies yet eliminate them from the budget, Plank replied: "We've loaned the money and will try to get it back."

Principal Alan W. Ellsberg of San Rafael High School objected: "If we really believe student government is something more than play," the students should be allowed to decide whether they wished to buy the athletic supplies. "If they say no, would you discontinue athletics?" he asked.

Principal Frank Stocking of Terra Linda High said he agreed the students "should be involved in supporting the athletic program," but "I also believe they should be in on making the decision."

Acting chairman John C. Pfeiffer wanted to "leave it up to the administration."

This brought a blast from board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr., joined by Brown, against allowing the superintendent to raid the students' funds without the students' permission.

Pfeiffer then agreed the athletics supplies should be paid from district funds.

Actually, however, the tentative budget for the high school district which the board approved does not include anything for the athletic supplies that Plank proposed to have the student bodies buy, although Pfeiffer said several times "this is budgeted." The amount, about $8,000, will have to be added to the $4,968,635 budget total for the high school district.

The board last night also agreed to pay a 9 per cent architect's fee for jobs under $100,000, but stuck to 8 per cent for larger jobs. The move came as the board approved a $127,000 contract with Marshall and Bowles architectural firm for the design of a new building at Laurel Dell Primary School. The firm had asked for a sliding fee scale which would have paid it 10.8 per cent. It got 8 per cent.

The firm had askedf orasliding feesc alewhich would have paid it 10.8 per cent. It got 8 per cent.

Three Tape Recorders Stolen From School

Three tinted windows were broken to gain entry. Police said a microphone amplifier was also removed from the building, but was found discarded outside.

$886,000 Park Plan Nearing Completion

The proposed park master plan should be in final form next month, the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission heard last night.

Chairman Ronald E. Rasmussen said that final changes requested by school districts with adjacent park property now are being incorporated into the plan by the architectural firm of Ribera and Sue.

Rasmussen said the plans would then be formally presented to the commission and city council and work begun on finding a means of financing the park improvements estimated to cost $886,000.

The preliminary plans included the development of grounds at Alicia Park adjacent to the John Reed School to include turf and irrigation improvements and additional recreation facilities such as tennis courts and a tiny tots playlot.

Projects for Benecia Park included picnicking facilities, softball fields, handball courts, gymnastic area and expansion of swimming pool facilities.

Rasmussen said that many avenues will be explored in searching for financing and may include a bond issue or applications for federal grants.

The commission also heard a report from recreation director Thomas West that all summer recreation programs have been well attended and successful; and gave tentative approval to the Sonoma County Sheriff's League to use Alicia Park and pool for a picnic on Aug. 1 or 8.

Kentfield's Staff Gets Pay Increase

A 6 per cent pay raise for the administrative staff was approved last night by the Kentfield School District board.

Cost of the increase will be $5,400 a year, reported Supt. Anthony G. Bacich. The raise covers the superintendent, the principals and guidance personnel. Six per cent is the same figure approved for classified employees earlier, and offered to teachers. Teacher salaries are still under negotiation, Bacich said.

The board also heard Stanley T. Smith, of the district citizens advisory committee, ask for more board involvement in the committee's study of long-range district planning.

Requests by nine parents that their children not be transferred to new schools because of attendance boundary changes were granted. Bacich said most were proposed transfers from Adaline E. Kent School to Wolfe Grade School of pupils who will be sixth graders next fall. In 1971, the children would have to return to Kent to enter seventh grade, he said.

The Kentfield School District board also:

BUSINESS MANAGER — Hired Emma Wright as business manager at $10,000 a year. She has been acting business manager since the death of Elizabeth Beatty in January.

Salaries Delaying Mill Valley Budget

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Mill Valley City Council, marking time until it resolves the question of city employees' salaries, last night made minor deletions and revisions in a record $2,002,763 budget.

Councilmen eliminated $1,000 earmarked for traveling expenses to the League of California Cities convention this fall and decided not to repave the downtown parking lot, a $3,500 saving, but decided to leave the money in the reserve fund.

In all, the council discussed some $768,000 of proposed allocations for materials, supplies and services, but made no other change.

The budget's biggest question mark, the $1,063,493 proposed for salaries, remained unresolved. City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has been meeting with representatives of the Mill Valley Employees Association in an attempt to agree on salary requests.

Cunningham has proposed a 7.5 per cent raise for most city employees, who have asked that salaries be increased to 5 per cent above the average of 17 cities chosen by both parties.

Salary discussion is expected to occupy most of the next budget session, set for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall. The council also may consider the parks and recreation budget.

Councilmen briefly talked about the parks and recreation budget after several members of that commission showed up at last night's meeting in the gallery of the library.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said he was concerned about widely circulated reports that his department was responsible for a $38,000 deficit which the council must recoup in fiscal 1970-71.

The deficit stems from the cost of moving the community recreation center to its present location at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue.

"Reports in the newspapers have made it sound like the budget is in the hole due to my mismanagement," Dimitratos told Mayor George E. Wickham. "That's not so. Why blame the Parks and Recreation Department?"

Cunningham said that the deficit is included under the 1970-71 parks and recreation budget because that is how last year's auditor's report categorized it.

"It's still there because the general fund is at the legal taxing limit of $1 (per $100 assessed valuation)," Wickham said. "We have to carry it somewhere."

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke suggested that the $38,000 was not the department's fault, but the city council's, which last year approved the moving of the recreation center.

"Let's just say that the deficit was assigned to parks and recreation," he said. This appeared to please everyone.

After further wrestling with the budget, which Cunningham said would require a tax rate of $3.115 per $100 assessed valuation, up from this year's $2.42, it became apparent that no significant changes could be made until salaries are discussed.

Councilmen talked briefly about capital improvement projects, but made no changes. They agreed to consider this part of the budget at another session July 1 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

To Earth-based observers, the sun appears a hundred billion times brighter than any other star, National Geographic says. However, the sun would seem puny if matched at the same distance against such brilliant stars as Rigel, which is 15,000 times more luminous.

City Of Buffalo Fined: Pollution

Dr. William E. Mosher said the city violated the county's sanitary code in the operation of an incinerator and dump on Squaw Island in the Niagara River.

The city was accused of allowing open burning at the dump. The county code prohibits all types of open burning.

Dr. Leary's Son Given Probation

SANTA ANA (UPI)—John Bush eary, 20-year-old son of Dr. Timothy Leary, was sentenced Monday to three years probation for possession of marijuana and LSD.

Leary appeared in court following a 90-day psychiatric examination at the California Institution For Men at Chino which was ordered the day of his conviction, March 11.

Appearing in court in conservative attire, shorn of his beard and with relatively short hair, Leary told Superior Court Judge Byron McMillan he planned to return to college.

Bank Gal's Uniforms

TOKYO (UPI) — Fuji Bank, Japan's largest commercial bank in terms of deposits, has put all its women employees in uniforms designed by Pierre Cardin. Summer uniform is a one-piece dress, winter a two-piece dress, both navy blue with white piping. Fuji Bank, founded 90 years ago, operates branches throughout Japan.

Beached Shark Bites Boy's Leg

The boys had dragged the shark ashore when it flipped itself over and bit Faulkner.

Fire rescue units rushed the teen-ager to Hollywood Memorial Hospital where he was reported in good condition.

Opposition To Further Support Cuts

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday voiced strong opposition to further cuts in state support that could cost the county $550,000 next year.

Telegrams opposing passage of Assembly Bill 525 were authorized after County Administrator David L. Nichols reported proposed blanket reductions of state support in the bill could add as much as 13 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the county tax rate.

Nichols, who lamented the loss of state funds in the presentation of the 1970-71 county budget, said the bill would reduce state spending on all programs by 2.25 per cent.

Last week he said that the reduction in state support for state mandated programs was a major cause of the $7 million budget increase. He said that if the assembly bill passes, that figure would have to be raised even higher.

Turning to other pending legislation, supervisors endorsed Senate Bill 403 as authored by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, which would authorize an additional clerk for both the Southern Sonoma and Central Sonoma municipal courts and increase the salary of superior court reporters to $13,800 per year.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold SOCIAL Shares For Income, Growth

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a widow and have 335 shares of Standard Oil of California. Have $10,000 due in insurance. Should I stay with Standard Oil and buy more or invest in another stock? — D.C.

A. Standard Oil of Calironia shares have been under pressure as a result of the platform fire in the Gulf of Mexico. The possibility of SOCAL's failure to maintain safety devices is now under investigation. If financial reparation is necessary, the effect on earnings is expected to be minimal.

Heavy selling by institutions dropped SOCAL from Vickers' list of 50 largest institutional holdings for the first time in 20 years. Also influencing its market activity are prospects of flat or lower earnings for 1970. Eastern Hemisphere product prices are expected to be generally lower than in 1968, taxes are to be increased approximately $20-$50 million and labor and materials costs will edge up. However, SOCAL's excellent position in major exploration areas and ability to maintain and increase its share of production and markets should allow the company to revive earnings growth.

Shares should be held for income — 6.8 per cent yield — and long-term appreciation prospects. For diversification purpose, use new funds to invest in short-term, high-yield corporate bonds or another income issue, such as Boston Edison Common.

Q. I am interested in Energy Fund, a no-load mutual fund. I would appreciate any comment you could make on this for investment. — W.R.

A. Energy fund emphasives stocks related to energy sources, components and equipment as well as issues of companies which indirectly benefit from technological advances in this field. Although the fund's performance record for 1969 (-15 per cent) and thus far into 1970 (-12 per cent) has been only average, the 90 per cent gain reported for the 1963-1968 interval is an indication of the fund's potential under more favorable market conditions.

The over-all quality of investments is high; and the portfolio turnover rate is modest. With long-term appreciation as its goal, the fund appears well-suited for investment.

Tight Cash Worry Sends Stocks Down

Losers on the New York Stock Exchange led winners by a margin of more than 3 to 1 in slow trading.

Analysts said that investor concern over the tight cash position of major corporations was stimulated by the bankruptcy petition of the Penn Central railroad subsidiary.

Trading in Penn Central stock was delayed in opening again. The issue did not trade until the closing minutes of Monday's session, when it closed off $4.60 at $6.50.

Trading in Chrysler was delayed until close to 2 p.m. when it opened off $2.13 at $17 on a volume of 173,000 shares.

Shortly after the delay was announced, Chrysler board chairman Lynn Townsend issued a statement saying the car manufacturer was operating on a profitable basis and that it had no outstanding bank debt in the United States or Canada.

Delays in both stocks were attributed to large influxes of orders. This generally means that there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders and that a price cannot be negotiated on the trading floor.

Profit Drop Expected

NEW YORK (UPI) — General Signal Co. expects its second quarter earnings to be down 15 to 20 per cent from a year ago because of the trucking strikes, Chairman Nathan Owen said Friday. Second quarter earnings last year were $1.02 a share.

Oil Gusher No Longer Reason For Rejoicing

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — "Gone are the days when an oil gusher was reason to rejoice," says one of Sun Oil Co.'s environmental experts. "Today, a blowout just means a lot of wasted oil and a mess that must be cleaned up."

Harold F. Elkin, Sun's coordinator of environmental conservation, doesn't feel water pollution is a new problem but one more highly publicized recently, generating complex technical and legal problems for oil companies.

"Major oil spill incidents have shaken the public confidence in our ability to conduct our operations in a manner that will not harm the environment," Elkin told a recent University of Tulsa study course.

"Oil spills have cost the industry millions of dollars in production — as well as cleanup costs — but such costs are insignificant compared to what these spills have cost us in public confidence and goodwill.

"Oil pollution has brought complaints from ordinary citizens as well as vocal and influential conservationists. Legislative proposals, on both state and loval levels¼ are being considered which will make it more difficult for us to find, produce, and transport oil and other petroleum products required by society. Future development of offshore oil reserves will probably be delayed as a consequence of our offshore accidents. The swift development of oil reserves on Alaska's north slope has been jeopordized.

"The problem has been aggravated by unfavorable, and in some cases unfair, publicity," Elkin added. "But the problem is serious and real, and our industry must solve it.

"If, in spite of the best care, accidental spills do occur, they require immediate coordination of efforts of many company divisions and, perhaps, the assistance of outside agencies.

$886,000 Park Plan Nearing Completion

The proposed park master plan should be in final form next month, the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission heard last night.

Chairman Ronald E. Rasmussen said that final changes requested by school districts with adjacent park property now are being incorporated into the plan by the architectural firm of Ribera and Sue.

Rasmussen said the plans would then be formally presented to the commission and city council and work begun on finding a means of financing the park improvements estimated to cost $886,000.

The preliminary plans included the development of grounds at Alicia Park adjacent to the John Reed School to include turf and irrigation improvements and additional recreation facilities such as tennis courts and a tiny tots playlot.

Projects for Benecia Park included picnicking facilities, softball fields, handball courts, gymnastic area and expansion of swimming pool facilities.

Rasmussen said that many avenues will be explored in searching for financing and may include a bond issue or applications for federal grants.

The commission also heard a report from recreation director Thomas West that all summer recreation programs have been well attended and successful; and gave tentative approval to the Sonoma County Sheriff's League to use Alicia Park and pool for a picnic on Aug. 1 or 8.

Kentfield's Staff Gets Pay Increase

A 6 per cent pay raise for the administrative staff was approved last night by the Kentfield School District board.

Cost of the increase will be $5,400 a year, reported Supt. Anthony G. Bacich. The raise covers the superintendent, the principals and guidance personnel. Six per cent is the same figure approved for classified employees earlier, and offered to teachers. Teacher salaries are still under negotiation, Bacich said.

The board also heard Stanley T. Smith, of the district citizens advisory committee, ask for more board involvement in the committee's study of long-range district planning.

Requests by nine parents that their children not be transferred to new schools because of attendance boundary changes were granted. Bacich said most were proposed transfers from Adaline E. Kent School to Wolfe Grade School of pupils who will be sixth graders next fall. In 1971, the children would have to return to Kent to enter seventh grade, he said.

The Kentfield School District board also:

BUSINESS MANAGER — Hired Emma Wright as business manager at $10,000 a year. She has been acting business manager since the death of Elizabeth Beatty in January.

GROUNDS — Awarded a three-year contract to Forster and Kroeger of Corte Madera for landscaping maintenance at $841 a month. The firm, which has done district landscaping for nine years, was the only bidder. The bid was the same as the current price.

TRANSFER — Denied a request by Barbara Del Amo of San Francisco to transfer her child into the district.

SETTLING — Asked architects Corlett and Spackman of San Francisco to send a representative to the July 13 meeting to discuss settling of a 1965 addition designed by the firm for the mutli-purpose room at Kent School.

MEETING — Adjourned to a meeting at 8 p.m. July 13 in the library of Wolfe Grade School.

Test Yourself On What A Will Means

By LUIS KUTNER

A will is a lawful and voluntary disposition of property by a person competent to take such action (called the testator, or maker of the will) to one or more donees, or recipients — such transfer of ownership to take effect only upon the death of the testator.

A will can be revoked or changed by a subsequent will, or by a supplementary document called a codicil, which explains, modifies, cancels or adds certain provisions.

The familiar expression, "last will and testament," is virtually meaningless today because will and testament are now used synonymously. But at one time, testament referred to an instrument which disposed of one's personal property (movable articles, such as furniture or jewelry, or stocks, bonds, bank accounts, etc.) as distinct from a will which disposed of real property (land, buildings, crops, and the like).

Changing times have brought other changes in legal practice as related to wills. For many years there was no choice — property had to descend to the eldest child. This is no longer true. One may dispose of one's property as one sees fit with the exception that one may not disinherit his or her mate.

A person's estate (the sum of all his possessions) is made up of many things. Principal assets of most estates comprise the following:

1. Cash on hand and in bank.
2. Personal articles (auto, jewelry, household goods, objets d'art and other personal belongings).
3. Personal life insurance (business life insurance should be considered only in connection with the business).
4. Real estate.
5. Securities (stocks, bonds, mortgages not directly connected with your own business).
6. Business interests (sole proprietorship, partnership interest, stock in a closed corporation, contracts, franchises, etc.).
7. Miscellaneous (professional accounts receivable, commission and salary due, pension fund payments).

On the other hand, certain property is not included in the general assets of an estate, as for example:

1. An insurance policy payable to a named beneficiary and not to the man's estate.
2. United States bonds held in the name of one person and payable on death to another.
3. Property owned by two persons as joint tenants with right of survivorship goes to the survivor.
4. Exempt property, where an allowance is provided for the widow and surviving children (such as homestead), is set aside and not distributed as part of the estate.

BESIDES STATING in written form how the testator wants his assets distributed at his death, a will should provide special instructions for paying the expenses of the husband's last illness as well as funeral and burial expenses; payment of debts; specific bequests of personal belongings; cash bequests to individuals or charities; the handling of real estate; and the creation of trusts.

The will should designate a competent executor (the person authorized to collect and distribute the assets); otherwise the court will exercise its own discretion and appoint an administrator (someone to perform the same function but who has not been named in the will).

The executor should have time to handle the business of the estate. He should be trustworthy and have a considerable knowledge of business affairs. If the estate is large enough, it may be wise to designate a bank to act as the executor as it will have the necessary experience and dependability.

A will should be a carefully written instrument. When anyone makes a will, which should always be drawn by an attorney, he should be sure that it expresses accurately how he wishes to dispose of his property.

Thus, if he has both natural and adopted children and wishes them to share equally in his property, he should state this explicity. If he provides that his "children" are to inherit, it may mean that only his natural children will be entitled to receive his property and his adopted children will be left out in the cold.

If he provides that his married son is to inherit something, he should make it clear if he wants his son's wife and child to receive it if the son should die before the will is probated. Likewise, if he does not want a child to receive anything, this must be made clear.

If the provisions of a will are not clear, a bitter family quarrel may arise and the court will have to guess at what the testator intended.

AS A MARRIED woman, you may make your own will, with full power to dispose of your property as you wish, except that your husband has the same legal right to a share in your estate that you have in his. This share is usually called courtesy, homestead or dower.

You should, in fact, make a will. If you die without one and your husband survives you, he will receive, if there are no children, your entire estate — all of your real and personal property —and your close relatives will get nothing.

Although there are some differences in the disposition of property without a will from state to state, if there are children, they will generally get two thirds of the property and your husband will get one third. If you are single, the property will go to your parents, brothers, sisters and, if any of them are dead, to your nephews and nieces. Remem-

SAUSALITO NURSE-airline stewardess Joyce Lynn Cane chats with patients in Bir Hospital in Kathmandu, Nepal, as she makes her rounds. On leave to work three months as a volunteer with the Tom Dooley Foundation, Joyce taught student nurses medical theory and instructed them in sterile technique and patient care through her own example.

Nursing In Nepal Like 'Nightingale'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Sausalito nurse-airline stewardess Joyce Lynn Cane, who recently returned from Kathmandu, Nepal, says she experienced a "culture shock" on returning to the United States after three months as a Tom Dooley Foundation volunteer.

"Everyone there cares so much and is giving so much," she says. "People here don't seem to care. All they think of is having a good time. It was actually hard to fit back into life here at first."

Regularly employed with the Pan American World Airways, one of 25 major airlines which permits their stewardesses to take three-month leaves to work on foundation programs in Southeast Asia, Joyce instructed student nurses and assisted in the wards of Bir Hospital.

"IT WAS LIKE nursing in the days of Florence Nightingale," says Joyce, who is a graduate of the Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago.

"I saw diseases I had to look up in my medical manual because I had never seen them, but only two chronic heart disease cases. People don't live that long there.

"Fundamental hygiene was part of the teaching I did. I had to explain why you don't prepare food on the floor. When someone is in the hospital his entire family comes to visit. They bring a hot plate and cook on the floor as they do at home.

"But you become impressed with the people," she notes. "The family is so close that there is always someone with a patient, watching or bringing him special concoctions. Sometimes it's hard to tell who is the patient because whoever is oldest in the family gets the bed!"

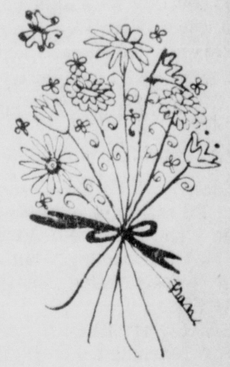
Joyce admits she had to learn to adapt to conditions as they were and improvise.

"I HAD attended a large medical center where everything was disposable," she explains, "but there was nothing to replace things with there. Six needles had to last eight hours. At first I tried to get the nurses to discard blunt, warped or twisted ones, but I soon found you don't throw anything away!"

Joyce taught the 16 to 18-year-old nurses to work through her own example. When they didn't want to bathe patients with skin diseases, she did it herself until they lost their fears.

Frustration was frequent. "Many medical problems which are simple and relatively scarce in this country are serious and commonplace in Nepal," she says. "It was so hard for me because I know the problems can be overcome.

"Hospital wards are full of patients with TB, meningitis and malnutrition. Fat babies fed rice die from malnutrition. Parents are so hardened they look old. Tears streaming down their faces, they know they can't take their baby to Delhi for treatment of congenital defects."



In addition to working in hospitals the girls serve as teachers of English and health education and assistants in a Tibetan refugee settlement, an orphanage and a leprosarium.

IN KATHMANDU Joyce shared a house with four other Dooley volunteers and an administrator and rode a bicycle to work. Highlight of a holiday period was living with a Nepalese family, sleeping on the floor, eating with her hands and participating in festivities.

"In spite of all the problems," she says, "I learned to relax and forget the rush-rush of American life."

To Clean Shades

After cleaning window shades, let the shade dry throughly, then roll it up to the top of the window and leave it rolled up for 10-to-12 hours. This simple "roll up" trick leaves the shade pristine fresh and as perfectly flat and ironed looking as a brand new one.

Off To Hawaii For A Weekend Wedding

By MOLLY MARIN

A number of people from the mainland were in Honolulu over the weekend attending the wedding Sunday of Gwen Ann Wittenmeier of Mill Valley and Robert Quinn Palmer III of Honolulu. They included the bride's parents, Mr. and rs. Joseph Wittenmeier, and her brother Gary of Mill Valley, her sister, Mrs. George Mills of San Rafael, her grandmother, Mrs. May Wittenmeier of Burlingame, and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Tobin of Mill Valley.

Cindy, who attended the Reed School in Tiburon and San DOMENICO School in

THE STANLEY Lemishes of San Rafael celebrated their silver wedding at a surprise party given by their son and daughter on Sunday. The couple were married 25 years ago in Reno.

A Medieval Mood For Fall Fashions

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The real influences on fall fashions this year are the Medieval and pre-Raphaelite moods — not the 1930s — according to the kickoff forecast at the American Designer Showings.

Or they reflect the 19th century pre-Raphaelite influence — when fashion defied Establishment stays and stuffings by going to softer, prettier clothes: the first shirtwaist and skirt, soft dog collars, gently modified leg-o'-mutton sleeves.

THE PEASANT and national dress look is strong in some collections shown Sunday at the Delmonico Hotel. It comes from the Middle East. Or from the Far East or the Russian steppes, the Argentine Pampas, the mountains of Switzerland.

The look means intricate embroidery on leathers and velvets from Oscar de la Renta — or stitched flower patterns on white blouses from Donald Brooks. It means the gaucho look, the poncho, pants tucked into boots, the babushka.

Wools are in natural dark tones; earth, metals, stone. All shades of purple are good; plum, prune, wine, garnet and amethyst. Several tones of red are often blended together. And it's a big year for black.

FABRICS ARE lighter than ever — from thick tweeds with synthetic fibers to metallic sheers to gold and silver brocades at night.

Bordering is extravagant: fur, beading, special weaves.

Costume jewelry is having its day: ornate barbarian pieces, the choker, the dog collar, the pendant necklace and long earrings.

Make-up is brighter, more exaggerated. The face is spotlighted again.

The new romantic theme came out in Maximilian's fall fur collection: a long cape in the darkest black glamour mink — a floor length sable wrap and tied coat for $40,000 — even a man's French mustang lounging coat for $2,000. This first ready-to-wear group will be available in selected stores in the United States and Canada.

John Wetz sees men's clothing becoming more casual. He showed horseshoe-necked sweaters under suits and even dinner jackets. The wrap coat is an "upcoming silhouette," said Weitz. He showed stovepipe pants without creases and knickers like those "evil little school boys" used to wear.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold SOCIAL Shares For Income, Growth

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a widow and have 335 shares of Standard Oil of California. Have $10,000 due in insurance. Should I stay with Standard Oil and buy more or invest in another stock? — D.C.

A. Standard Oil of Calironia shares have been under pressure as a result of the platform fire in the Gulf of Mexico. The possibility of SOCAL's failure to maintain safety devices is now under investigation. If financial reparation is necessary, the effect on earnings is expected to be minimal.

Heavy selling by institutions dropped SOCAL from Vickers' list of 50 largest institutional holdings for the first time in 20 years. Also influencing its market activity are prospects of flat or lower earnings for 1970. Eastern Hemisphere product prices are expected to be generally lower than in 1968, taxes are to be increased approximately $20-$50 million and labor and materials costs will edge up. However, SOCAL's excellent position in major exploration areas and ability to maintain and increase its share of production and markets should allow the company to revive earnings growth.

Shares should be held for income — 6.8 per cent yield — and long-term appreciation prospects. For diversification purpose, use new funds to invest in short-term, high-yield corporate bonds or another income issue, such as Boston Edison Common.

Q. I am interested in Energy Fund, a no-load mutual fund. I would appreciate any comment you could make on this for investment. — W.R.

A. Energy fund emphasives stocks related to energy sources, components and equipment as well as issues of companies which indirectly benefit from technological advances in this field. Although the fund's performance record for 1969 (-15 per cent) and thus far into 1970 (-12 per cent) has been only average, the 90 per cent gain reported for the 1963-1968 interval is an indication of the fund's potential under more favorable market conditions.

The over-all quality of investments is high; and the portfolio turnover rate is modest. With long-term appreciation as its goal, the fund appears well-suited for investment.

Tight Cash Worry Sends Stocks Down

Losers on the New York Stock Exchange led winners by a margin of more than 3 to 1 in slow trading.

Analysts said that investor concern over the tight cash position of major corporations was stimulated by the bankruptcy petition of the Penn Central railroad subsidiary.

Trading in Penn Central stock was delayed in opening again. The issue did not trade until the closing minutes of Monday's session, when it closed off $4.60 at $6.50.

Trading in Chrysler was delayed until close to 2 p.m. when it opened off $2.13 at $17 on a volume of 173,000 shares.

Shortly after the delay was announced, Chrysler board chairman Lynn Townsend issued a statement saying the car manufacturer was operating on a profitable basis and that it had no outstanding bank debt in the United States or Canada.

Delays in both stocks were attributed to large influxes of orders. This generally means that there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders and that a price cannot be negotiated on the trading floor.

Profit Drop Expected

Oil Gusher No Longer Reason For Rejoicing

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — "Gone are the days when an oil gusher was reason to rejoice," says one of Sun Oil Co.'s environmental experts. "Today, a blowout just means a lot of wasted oil and a mess that must be cleaned up."

Harold F. Elkin, Sun's coordinator of environmental conservation, doesn't feel water pollution is a new problem but one more highly publicized recently, generating complex technical and legal problems for oil companies.

"Major oil spill incidents have shaken the public confidence in our ability to conduct our operations in a manner that will not harm the environment," Elkin told a recent University of Tulsa study course.

"Oil spills have cost the industry millions of dollars in production — as well as cleanup costs — but such costs are insignificant compared to what these spills have cost us in public confidence and goodwill.

"Oil pollution has brought complaints from ordinary citizens as well as vocal and influential conservationists. Legislative proposals, on both state and loval levels¼ are being considered which will make it more difficult for us to find, produce, and transport oil and other petroleum products required by society. Future development of offshore oil reserves will probably be delayed as a consequence of our offshore accidents. The swift development of oil reserves on Alaska's north slope has been jeopordized.

"The problem has been aggravated by unfavorable, and in some cases unfair, publicity," Elkin added. "But the problem is serious and real, and our industry must solve it.

"If, in spite of the best care, accidental spills do occur, they require immediate coordination of efforts of many company divisions and, perhaps, the assistance of outside agencies.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

It's Hard To Be Constantly Compared to An Immature Mom

DEAR HELEN:

Ever since I can remember I've heard how popular Mom was when she was in school. She was the prom queen, and a cheer leader, and had her pick of boys. My picture isn't even in my high school annual, but she was plastered all over hers. I have nice friends, get good grades, but —

I'm almost 15 and have never had a boyfriend. So I hear how it was when she was 15. Her annual stays on the table. Mine gets put out of sight.

I used to be able to talk with Dad, but my folks split up two years ago. Mom says the marriage was a big mistake, and she chose the wrong one. She blames us kids for her not finding another husband, but I think her weight has something to do with it.

Sometimes I'd like to scream that I'd rather be me than her; then I feel guilty. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but how can I stop being — COMPARED?

DEAR COMPARED:

It's rough, knowing that you're more mature than your mother — and trying to keep her unaware that you know. Maybe her case of arrested development might be partially cured if you'd substitute truth for pity. A good start: Hide the annuals — and get her to join a reducing club. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Last night I went to the movies with a new boy. He seemed nice, but he turned out hard to manage.

I let him kiss me once, which was a mistake, because when I was enjoying the picture, he gave me a couple of hickies.

This morning my mother saw the red marks on my neck and now she thinks I am an immoral, free-loving hippie.

Please tell her a bite on the neck doesn't mean all is lost. — P.W.

DEAR P.:

It's as hard to convince a mother hickies are innocent fun as it is to convince me you were so interested in the movie you got too unaware.

Let's concede all is not lost, but next time don't encourage Draculas. They've got more in mind than a nip on the neck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our crowd are absolute friends — I mean we'd really go to bat for each other. And we did. I can't believe it even yet.

It started over a simple little incident, mostly messing around, but one person just didn't see it that way. He went stark raving mad. It was like he exploded. We tried to calm him down, but finally it took three kids (also in the friendship ring), and one of them had to sock him, hard.

Then the guy's older brother (also a friend) got mad at the "big kid" who had hit his little brother, and all hell broke loose. Everybody mixed it up.

I hope this will blow over, but maybe we're broken up for good. Today I got to thinking this is the type of incident that starts wars and rioting. Both sides think they're right, but no one listens to the other.

Teens criticize adults for their wars, but they don't realize they do it themselves on a smaller scale. Can't any of us see how futile violence is? — TEEN WHO SAW THE LIGHT

DEAR TEEN:

We see — But only afterwards, when it may be too late. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Test Yourself On What A Will Means

By LUIS KUTNER

A will is a lawful and voluntary disposition of property by a person competent to take such action (called the testator, or maker of the will) to one or more donees, or recipients — such transfer of ownership to take effect only upon the death of the testator.

A will can be revoked or changed by a subsequent will, or by a supplementary document called a codicil, which explains, modifies, cancels or adds certain provisions.

The familiar expression, "last will and testament," is virtually meaningless today because will and testament are now used synonymously. But at one time, testament referred to an instrument which disposed of one's personal property (movable articles, such as furniture or jewelry, or stocks, bonds, bank accounts, etc.) as distinct from a will which disposed of real property (land, buildings, crops, and the like).

Changing times have brought other changes in legal practice as related to wills. For many years there was no choice — property had to descend to the eldest child. This is no longer true. One may dispose of one's property as one sees fit with the exception that one may not disinherit his or her mate.

A person's estate (the sum of all his possessions) is made up of many things. Principal assets of most estates comprise the following:

1. Cash on hand and in bank.
2. Personal articles (auto, jewelry, household goods, objets d'art and other personal belongings).
3. Personal life insurance (business life insurance should be considered only in connection with the business).
4. Real estate.
5. Securities (stocks, bonds, mortgages not directly connected with your own business).
6. Business interests (sole proprietorship, partnership interest, stock in a closed corporation, contracts, franchises, etc.).
7. Miscellaneous (professional accounts receivable, commission and salary due, pension fund payments).

On the other hand, certain property is not included in the general assets of an estate, as for example:

1. An insurance policy payable to a named beneficiary and not to the man's estate.
2. United States bonds held in the name of one person and payable on death to another.
3. Property owned by two persons as joint tenants with right of survivorship goes to the survivor.
4. Exempt property, where an allowance is provided for the widow and surviving children (such as homestead), is set aside and not distributed as part of the estate.

BESIDES STATING in written form how the testator wants his assets distributed at his death, a will should provide special instructions for paying the expenses of the husband's last illness as well as funeral and burial expenses; payment of debts; specific bequests of personal belongings; cash bequests to individuals or charities; the handling of real estate; and the creation of trusts.

The will should designate a competent executor (the person authorized to collect and distribute the assets); otherwise the court will exercise its own discretion and appoint an administrator (someone to perform the same function but who has not been named in the will).

The executor should have time to handle the business of the estate. He should be trustworthy and have a considerable knowledge of business affairs. If the estate is large enough, it may be wise to designate a bank to act as the executor as it will have the necessary experience and dependability.

A will should be a carefully written instrument. When anyone makes a will, which should always be drawn by an attorney, he should be sure that it expresses accurately how he wishes to dispose of his property.

Thus, if he has both natural and adopted children and wishes them to share equally in his property, he should state this explicity. If he provides that his "children" are to inherit, it may mean that only his natural children will be entitled to receive his property and his adopted children will be left out in the cold.

If he provides that his married son is to inherit something, he should make it clear if he wants his son's wife and child to receive it if the son should die before the will is probated. Likewise, if he does not want a child to receive anything, this must be made clear.

If the provisions of a will are not clear, a bitter family quarrel may arise and the court will have to guess at what the testator intended.

AS A MARRIED woman, you may make your own will, with full power to dispose of your property as you wish, except that your husband has the same legal right to a share in your estate that you have in his. This share is usually called courtesy, homestead or dower.

You should, in fact, make a will. If you die without one and your husband survives you, he will receive, if there are no children, your entire estate — all of your real and personal property —and your close relatives will get nothing.

Although there are some differences in the disposition of property without a will from state to state, if there are children, they will generally get two thirds of the property and your husband will get one third. If you are single, the property will go to your parents, brothers, sisters and, if any of them are dead, to your nephews and nieces. Remem-

SAUSALITO NURSE-airline stewardess Joyce Lynn Cane chats with patients in Bir Hospital in Kathmandu, Nepal, as she makes her rounds. On leave to work three months as a volunteer with the Tom Dooley Foundation, Joyce taught student nurses medical theory and instructed them in sterile technique and patient care through her own example.

Nursing In Nepal Like 'Nightingale'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Sausalito nurse-airline stewardess Joyce Lynn Cane, who recently returned from Kathmandu, Nepal, says she experienced a "culture shock" on returning to the United States after three months as a Tom Dooley Foundation volunteer.

"Everyone there cares so much and is giving so much," she says. "People here don't seem to care. All they think of is having a good time. It was actually hard to fit back into life here at first."

Regularly employed with the Pan American World Airways, one of 25 major airlines which permits their stewardesses to take three-month leaves to work on foundation programs in Southeast Asia, Joyce instructed student nurses and assisted in the wards of Bir Hospital.

"IT WAS LIKE nursing in the days of Florence Nightingale," says Joyce, who is a graduate of the Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago.

"I saw diseases I had to look up in my medical manual because I had never seen them, but only two chronic heart disease cases. People don't live that long there.

"Fundamental hygiene was part of the teaching I did. I had to explain why you don't prepare food on the floor. When someone is in the hospital his entire family comes to visit. They bring a hot plate and cook on the floor as they do at home.

"But you become impressed with the people," she notes. "The family is so close that there is always someone with a patient, watching or bringing him special concoctions. Sometimes it's hard to tell who is the patient because whoever is oldest in the family gets the bed!"

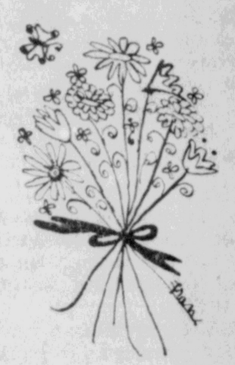
Joyce admits she had to learn to adapt to conditions as they were and improvise.

"I HAD attended a large medical center where everything was disposable," she explains, "but there was nothing to replace things with there. Six needles had to last eight hours. At first I tried to get the nurses to discard blunt, warped or twisted ones, but I soon found you don't throw anything away!"

Joyce taught the 16 to 18-year-old nurses to work through her own example. When they didn't want to bathe patients with skin diseases, she did it herself until they lost their fears.

Frustration was frequent. "Many medical problems which are simple and relatively scarce in this country are serious and commonplace in Nepal," she says. "It was so hard for me because I know the problems can be overcome.

"Hospital wards are full of patients with TB, meningitis and malnutrition. Fat babies fed rice die from malnutrition. Parents are so hardened they look old. Tears streaming down their faces, they know they can't take their baby to Delhi for treatment of congenital defects."



In addition to working in hospitals the girls serve as teachers of English and health education and assistants in a Tibetan refugee settlement, an orphanage and a leprosarium.

IN KATHMANDU Joyce shared a house with four other Dooley volunteers and an administrator and rode a bicycle to work. Highlight of a holiday period was living with a Nepalese family, sleeping on the floor, eating with her hands and participating in festivities.

"In spite of all the problems," she says, "I learned to relax and forget the rush-rush of American life."

To Clean Shades

After cleaning window shades, let the shade dry throughly, then roll it up to the top of the window and leave it rolled up for 10-to-12 hours. This simple "roll up" trick leaves the shade pristine fresh and as perfectly flat and ironed looking as a brand new one.

A Medieval Mood For Fall Fashions

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The real influences on fall fashions this year are the Medieval and pre-Raphaelite moods — not the 1930s — according to the kickoff forecast at the American Designer Showings.

Or they reflect the 19th century pre-Raphaelite influence — when fashion defied Establishment stays and stuffings by going to softer, prettier clothes: the first shirtwaist and skirt, soft dog collars, gently modified leg-o'-mutton sleeves.

THE PEASANT and national dress look is strong in some collections shown Sunday at the Delmonico Hotel. It comes from the Middle East. Or from the Far East or the Russian steppes, the Argentine Pampas, the mountains of Switzerland.

The look means intricate embroidery on leathers and velvets from Oscar de la Renta — or stitched flower patterns on white blouses from Donald Brooks. It means the gaucho look, the poncho, pants tucked into boots, the babushka.

FABRICS ARE lighter than ever — from thick tweeds with synthetic fibers to metallic sheers to gold and silver brocades at night.

Bordering is extravagant: fur, beading, special weaves.

Costume jewelry is having its day: ornate barbarian pieces, the choker, the dog collar, the pendant necklace and long earrings.

Make-up is brighter, more exaggerated. The face is spotlighted again.

The new romantic theme came out in Maximilian's fall fur collection: a long cape in the darkest black glamour mink — a floor length sable wrap and tied coat for $40,000 — even a man's French mustang lounging coat for $2,000. This first ready-to-wear group will be available in selected stores in the United States and Canada.

John Wetz sees men's clothing becoming more casual. He showed horseshoe-necked sweaters under suits and even dinner jackets. The wrap coat is an "upcoming silhouette," said Weitz. He showed stovepipe pants without creases and knickers like those "evil little school boys" used to wear.

To Protect Vacant Home

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Police authorities warn that the vacant homes of summer vacationers are tempting to prospective burglars and suggest all unoccupied homes be made to appear lived in. A house that looks occupied will be less tempting to a burglar.

The Nebraska Extension Service recommends, that vacationers lock all doors and windows securely, leave blinds only partially closed, suspend routine pickups and deliveries, inform a neighbor of your itinerary and where you can be reached, have the lawn cut regularly and notify local police of your planned absence.

Upper Classes Drive More

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — People in the upper socioeconomic levels have the greatest opportunity for exposure to outdoor advertising, reports a University of Nebraska survey.

The survey showed that for men and women with $10,000-plus household income and a college education, two-thirds are in the heaviest motoring group — logging more than 10,000 miles annually.

Meanings And Reasons For Leaving A Will

If your husband dies first, the fact that he has made a will does not solve everything. What will happen if he has left everything to you and then you die shortly afterwards? Who will care for the children? If you had made a will, you could have provided specifically for their care.

You may have prized sentimental possessions — china, jewelry or art — that you would like to see passed on to a daughter or special relative. The only way to insure that these intentions are carried out is to express them in a will. A will helps prevent family feuds. Quarrels can arise as to who gets the baby grand piano. A will also enables you to leave money to your favorite charity.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

It's Hard To Be Constantly Compared to An Immature Mom

DEAR HELEN:

Ever since I can remember I've heard how popular Mom was when she was in school. She was the prom queen, and a cheer leader, and had her pick of boys. My picture isn't even in my high school annual, but she was plastered all over hers. I have nice friends, get good grades, but —

I'm almost 15 and have never had a boyfriend. So I hear how it was when she was 15. Her annual stays on the table. Mine gets put out of sight.

I used to be able to talk with Dad, but my folks split up two years ago. Mom says the marriage was a big mistake, and she chose the wrong one. She blames us kids for her not finding another husband, but I think her weight has something to do with it.

Sometimes I'd like to scream that I'd rather be me than her; then I feel guilty. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but how can I stop being — COMPARED?

DEAR COMPARED:

It's rough, knowing that you're more mature than your mother — and trying to keep her unaware that you know. Maybe her case of arrested development might be partially cured if you'd substitute truth for pity. A good start: Hide the annuals — and get her to join a reducing club. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Last night I went to the movies with a new boy. He seemed nice, but he turned out hard to manage.

I let him kiss me once, which was a mistake, because when I was enjoying the picture, he gave me a couple of hickies.

This morning my mother saw the red marks on my neck and now she thinks I am an immoral, free-loving hippie.

Please tell her a bite on the neck doesn't mean all is lost. — P.W.

DEAR P.:

It's as hard to convince a mother hickies are innocent fun as it is to convince me you were so interested in the movie you got too unaware.

Let's concede all is not lost, but next time don't encourage Draculas. They've got more in mind than a nip on the neck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our crowd are absolute friends — I mean we'd really go to bat for each other. And we did. I can't believe it even yet.

It started over a simple little incident, mostly messing around, but one person just didn't see it that way. He went stark raving mad. It was like he exploded. We tried to calm him down, but finally it took three kids (also in the friendship ring), and one of them had to sock him, hard.

Then the guy's older brother (also a friend) got mad at the "big kid" who had hit his little brother, and all hell broke loose. Everybody mixed it up.

I hope this will blow over, but maybe we're broken up for good. Today I got to thinking this is the type of incident that starts wars and rioting. Both sides think they're right, but no one listens to the other.

Teens criticize adults for their wars, but they don't realize they do it themselves on a smaller scale. Can't any of us see how futile violence is? — TEEN WHO SAW THE LIGHT

DEAR TEEN:

We see — But only afterwards, when it may be too late. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

To Protect Vacant Home

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Police authorities warn that the vacant homes of summer vacationers are tempting to prospective burglars and suggest all unoccupied homes be made to appear lived in. A house that looks occupied will be less tempting to a burglar.

The Nebraska Extension Service recommends, that vacationers lock all doors and windows securely, leave blinds only partially closed, suspend routine pickups and deliveries, inform a neighbor of your itinerary and where you can be reached, have the lawn cut regularly and notify local police of your planned absence.

Upper Classes Drive More

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — People in the upper socioeconomic levels have the greatest opportunity for exposure to outdoor advertising, reports a University of Nebraska survey.

The survey showed that for men and women with $10,000-plus household income and a college education, two-thirds are in the heaviest motoring group — logging more than 10,000 miles annually.

Meanings And Reasons For Leaving A Will

If your husband dies first, the fact that he has made a will does not solve everything. What will happen if he has left everything to you and then you die shortly afterwards? Who will care for the children? If you had made a will, you could have provided specifically for their care.

You may have prized sentimental possessions — china, jewelry or art — that you would like to see passed on to a daughter or special relative. The only way to insure that these intentions are carried out is to express them in a will. A will helps prevent family feuds. Quarrels can arise as to who gets the baby grand piano. A will also enables you to leave money to your favorite charity.

Delay Hinted In Opening Auditorium For More Seats

The Marin County Board of Supervisors hinted yesterday it may delay the opening of the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium until the fall of 1971 in order to enlarge its seating capacity.

The supervisors, who are near the end of their budget hearings, learned from Leon G. Kalimos, county fair director, that present plans for an 800-seat capacity at the building would limit its appeal to theatrical booking agents.

Kalimos, former executive director and sole survivor of Fair-Marin, as an official agency, said a 1,200-seat theater would be preferred by quality theatrical and musical performers because it would offer greater financial possibilities. He said only small acts could make money in a theater such as now planned.

Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, said the 400-seat increase would cost an additional $100,000 bringing next year's auditorium budget to about $300,000.

Supervisor John F. McInnis, claiming he wanted to see maximum use of the structure, suggested the board delay a decision on the auditorium until the administrator's staff could draft new budget recommendations. Other board members agreed.

McInnis explained that if the 1,200-seat figure were approved, the structure could not open for another year and therefore funds allocated for its dedication and advance publicity could be transferred for seat addition.

Campanella told the board 1,200 seats would require 70 to 80 per cent capacity use seven days a week to break even.

Supervisor William A. Gnoss, registered shock at the figure and disavowed any connection with the building's approval. The soon-to-retire supervisor explained the structure was conceived following World War I and approved before he was elected after World War II.

Campanella told the board it would cost $529,000 to complete the building and grounds at the 1,200-seat level and about $1 million to complete the project at 2,100 seats.

McInnis suggested completing only the building at the 1,200-seat figure of $300,000 suggested earlier by Campanella.

He added that such action would also mean asking the Marin Arts and Garden Fair to put off its move to the Civic Center grounds for another year.

Other members agreed and requested the administrator's staff to come in with new proposal centered around the $300,000 figure.

The board began June 15 considering the proposed $37 million budget for fiscal 1970-71 estimated to require a tax rate of $2.54 per $100 assessed valuation. This year's budget is $33,261,422 with a tax rate of $2.395.

In other budget action yesterday, the board lost little time approving a demand from Marin cultural groups that $30,000 in county subsidies be reinstated in the budget.

The item, listed in the economic development budget, was deleted in May by County Administrator Alan Bruce over the protests of about 15 groups.

Bruce had reasoned the item was no longer needed as the groups would be given special consideration for use of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium when it opens — previously scheduled for November.

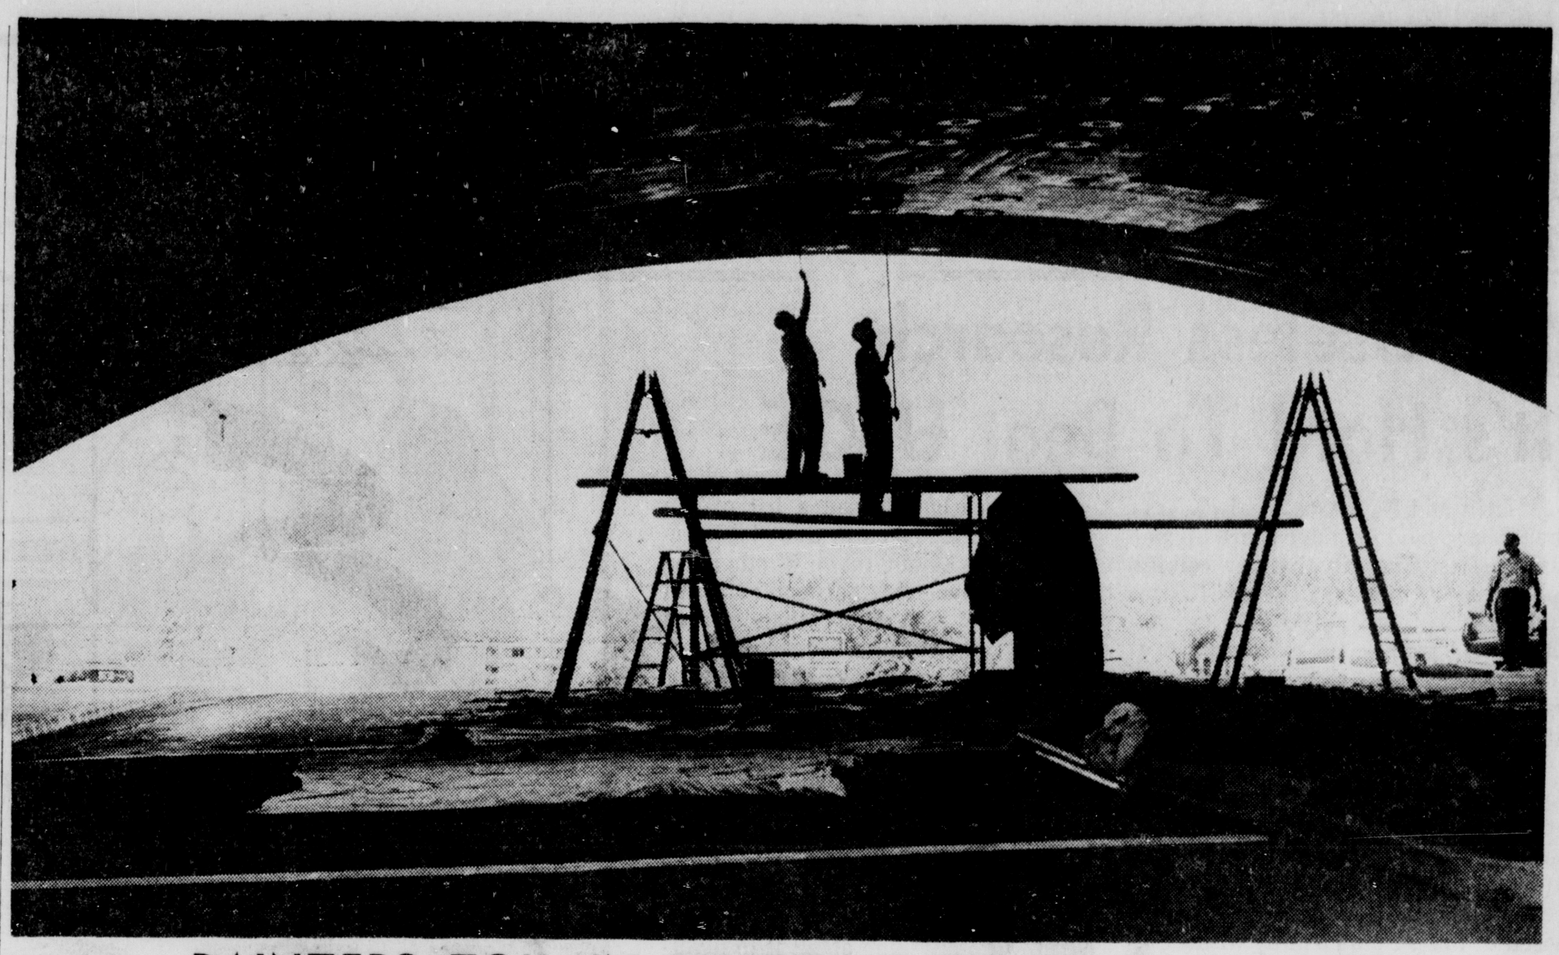
The board, following a brief discussion, unanimously overruled his recommendation.

The Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council did not fare as well.

The council had requested $30,000 to continue county health studies, but Bruce slashed that figure to $8,000. The supervisors, claiming they would not support a function which had assumed governmental powers without being responsible to the electorate, voted unanimously to drop the council from the budget.

About $1,000 was approved to continue the council's secretary on the county payroll until adequate notice could be served that her position was being deleted.

The War on Poverty, Neighborhood Youth Corps, county pound, special recreation services, county grounds, fish and game, recorder, county clerk and elections budgets survived major cuts by the board.



PAINTERS TOIL IN SHADOWS OF CIVIC CENTER

Painters work in the dark, but cool, shade of the main arch as the Marin County Civic Center's administration building gets it first new paint job since it opened in October of 1962. Only the interior public areas of the building, of which the arch is considered a part, are being painted, but it is taking Novato painting contractor John W. Metzger 200 gallons of paint to do it. The $5,400 job was begun June 8 and should be finished this week. (Independent-Journal photo)

Flyers Urge Support For Budget Cuts

Two thousand flyers went out by mail and hand-delivery today from four Marin organizations, urging a big turnout Thursday to persuade the Marin County Board of Supervisors to start over again on budget cutting.

The flyer, headed "Emergency Notice," declares:

"This Thursday, hundreds of taxpayers are going to converge on the Civic Center. We are going to tell the board of supervisors that the tax burden must be reduced. We are going to ask the board to keep this year's budget from exceeding the '69-70 budget of over $33,000,000. This is plenty!"

They were being distributed by the Marin Property Owners Association, Marin Builders Exchange, Marin County Board of Realtors, and Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Other organizations, including home-owner groups, are expected also to urge their members to attend the Thursday morning budget session of the supervisors to plead for cuts, according to Robert A. Roumiguiere of San Rafael, organizer of the all-out effort.

The flyer asks taxpayers to be at the board room in the Civic Center at 8:45 a.m. on Thursday — a quarter-hour before the session is scheduled to begin.

"Maybe this will be the beginning of a county-wide, statewide, even a nation-wide trend to 'hold the line' on government expenditures," says the flyer.

Roumiguiere said he started the move because it became evident the supervisors were not holding the line sufficiently to prevent an increase in the county tax rate.

College Trustees Eye Fall Bond Call

The possibility of a bond issue for the November ballot was raised for the first time last night by the Marin Junior College District board.

In a special meeting to discuss possible financial proposals for November's election, the board discussed a variety of override tax ideas and the bond issue proposal, reported John A. Grasham, superintendent-president of College of Marin. No decision was reached.

Among figures suggested, Grasham said, was a $20 million, 25-year bond issue with the bond service tax rate to be held to 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation or lower. Some trustees suggested that part of the total, perhaps 75 per cent, be earmarked for construction of the proposed Novato campus.

Another proposal was to seek voter approval of an override tax of 15 to 20 cents per $100. That would require only a majority, while the bonds would require a two-thirds vote.

Grasham said the board wants to hold the total tax rate to present levels, and could accomplish that by striking from the presently-authorized 35-cent override whatever amount was approved in November.

The present override is for capital outlay. An override approved in November would provide funds for operating costs, as well, which are currently squeezed harder than capital outlay.

Approval of a bond issue would make money available immediately for construction.

If voters approve none of the November proposals, Grasham said, the district could raise an override tax under existing law to match state funds for capital outlay. A levy of 5 to 7 cents is planned for 1970-71 under the program, but if substantial sums were needed for construction the levy could rise to 50 cents or so, Grasham said. The board wants to avoid using that option since it would raise the total tax rate, he said.

The board will meet again at 8 p.m. Monday in the testing room of the business center to discuss the north campus.

Next regular board meeting will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in Olney Hall.

Group Nets $60 For 'Slave Day'

Sixteen First Baptist Church of San Anselmo youths earned more than $60 Saturday in a fund-raising "salve day" held to send needy youths to summer camp.

Money was still being received this morning for household and yard work done by the volunteers, according to church youth director Wallace Kuroiwa.

The project was originated and carried out by church youth under the direction of volunteer coordinators Nancy Mathews and Stephanie Guaglianone.

San Francisco Man Sentenced For Pot

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday placed Robert Otto Husler, 20, of San Francisco, on probation for one year and ordered him to spend 15 days in jail for a marijuana conviction which he declared a misdemeanor.

Husler had earlier admitted having pot in Marin on Feb. 14.

Man Jailed In Marijuana Case

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday ordered Richard James Fountain, 22, of Novato, to spend 60 days in jail for a marijuana conviction.

He also place Fountain on probation for two years, ordered him to get a job and to submit to periodic testing to determine if he is using narcotics.

Fountain had earlier pleaded guilty to having pot on Nov. 15 in Black Point and on Feb. 28 in Novato. Additional marijuana charges and one of having an unregistered gun were dismissed.

Woman, 29, Denies Possessing Heroin

A jury trial was set for the week of Aug. 31.

BLUE DAY FOR GREEN FIELDS

Supervisors Slash Parks-Rec Budget Request By $450,000

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Department's dream of sprawling green fields, sandy beaches and bicycle paths was transformed into a rude awakening yesterday as county supervisors slashed about $450,000 from the department's 1970-71 budget request of $900,000.

Embracing County Administrator Alan Bruce's recommendations, the board refused to budget $100,000 for a park in East Corte Madera, $100,000 for a 70-acre facility near the San Geronimo golf course and $50,000 for a bayside park somewhere between Santa Venetia and Black Point.

The supervisors, meeting for their fifth budget hearing, similarly refused department requests for a $60,000 tennis and swim center and a $40,000 service yard. Also deleted was $20,000 for bicycle paths and $50,000 for future park site acquisition.

With strong support from bicycle enthusiasts in the audience, Supervisor Michael Wornum tried twice to have bike trail funds reinstated, but to no avail. Both his motions, one for $20,000 and a second for $12,000, died for lack of a second.

Wornum did succeed however, in having $23,000 carried over from the current budget to continue condemnation proceeding against Northwestern Pacific Railroad for a right-of-way along its tracks in Sausalito.

Audience members quickly added that additional funds should be added to make the county's investment meaningful.

John F. McInnis, board chairman, responded that the decision in the condemnation proceeding was still questionable and he would consider the request for additional funds after a decision.

The department's budget was finally approved at $432,428 on a 4-to-1 vote, with Wornum delcaring he would not vote in favor because it lacked additional bicycle trail funds.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who earlier warned he would fight for a park at Corte Madera if Wornum pushed for bicycle paths, muttered a few quiet words to Wornum after the vote.

"You take care of yours and I'll take care of mine," Wornum shot back, glaring at Baar.

Earlier, department director Pierre W. Joske also had one of his top level position requests sacked by the supervisors. He had requested eight additional employees above the 21 already in his department and four were approved by the county administrator's office.

Dissatisfied with Joske's explanation for the need of a park superintendent, the board bettered Bruce's "bare bones" recommendation by denying the new position request.

Other action saw the supervisor's approve $50,000 for site acquisition at McNears Beach and $100,000 for the park's development.

Special Round On Family Aid

The Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee will hold a special meeting tonight to form a request to the Marin County Board of Supervisors to reconsider its decision to cut county supplementation to recipients of Aid of Families with Dependent Children.

The board reduced supplementary aid to present recipients by one-third and to future cases by two-thirds, effective next month, at a budget hearing last week.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice.

Doctor's Office Theft

Thieves between 12:30 p.m. Saturday and 9:55 a.m. Monday took a blank prescription pad, a $60 radio and a $20 desk clock from the office of Dr. Carl V. Shogren, 710 C Street, Suite 10, San Rafael police reported today.

Jury Trial Booked On Burglary Charge

Brian Augustus Baeszler, 22, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burglarizing the San Rafael Animal Hospital on May 23. A jury trial was set for the week of Aug. 3.

Baeszler, a parole violator from the California Rehabilitation Center, was arrested when he was found hiding under a desk in the animal hospital. He told police he was a heroin addict.

Potted Plant Stirs Pot Count

Sheriff's deputies who saw a Mill Valley man carrying a suspected marijuana potted plant down a street in Homestead Valley Sunday arrested him and a companion on suspicion of cultivating pot.

Booked into Marin County jail were David William Decker, 24, of 23 Mono Way, Mill Valley, and Philip James Tolmach, 19, of New York, N.Y. They were later released on their own recognizance and were to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Deputies said they asked Decker, "is that what I think it is," when spotting the plant, and Decker replied, "Yes, it's marijuana. I got it for my birthday."

San Rafael Suspect Nabbed In Car Theft

Walter Lee Duffey, 20, of 132 Front Street, San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of car theft in Marin Municipal Court. He was to return to court today to enter a plea.

Duffey was arrested Saturday afternoon on Jacoby Street in San Rafael when a police officer noticed a great deal of smoke coming from the 1956 Chevrolet which Duffey was driving. A routine check showed the car had been stolen in San Francisco.

For Useless Research, It's Hard To Beat USOE

Marin and Bay Area local governments have paid for their share of special studies. The city hall or county courthouse without shelves full of bulky reports, and stacks of over-size charts and graphs, all gathering dust after having been paid for with taxpayers' money, probably does not exist.

Marin County, for instance, has had so many studies of its transportation problem that making a new one now entails more cost since there are so many old ones to read and rewrite. Fortunately, the county finally disposed of the problem by wishing it onto the Golden Gate Bridge District. That district, after a couple more studies, did what all the studies had advised: moved to expand bus service as the first attack on the problem.

Studies of San Rafael's parking problem recur regularly, providing a dependable share of the income of consultant D. Jackson Faustman of Sacramento.

Just about every city has its downtown studies, its master plan studies, etc., etc. Each leads to another.

EXPENSIVE as these are, however, they sometimes serve a purpose. All are directed at seeking solutions to actual, important problems. And occasionally, the public body that ordered the study acts on it.

Such is not the case with many studies funded by the federal government. It especially is not the case with those paid for from the U. S. Office of Education's share of our income taxes.

USOE, with some fanfare, announced it would undertake a vast program of basic research, beginning this year, to find out what's wrong with American schools.

It recently released a list of the first 19 projects in this "basic research." Among them: whether students in Appalachia perform better in consolidated high schools than in small local schools, the link between personality and job aspirations, the effects of anxiety on computer-assisted learning, the way preschoolers learn mathematical ideas, and the impact of colored illustrations on students' memories.

TO READ THIS LIST, anyone would assume, if he did not know better, that American education was in such wonderful shape that it was difficult to find anything about it to investigate.

The USOE, however, was merely following a basic tenet of educational research, which is: The more obscure and useless the study, the better.

A prime example of this showed up last week.

A research team from Reese State Institute of Behavorial Sciences in Chicago made a study of the egg preferences of students at Hopper College, Evanston, Ill. The team's "research" resulted in conclusions that those who like scrambled eggs have feelings of helplessness, and those who prefer their eggs poached are self-doubting. Fried eggs were linked with guilt feelings, soft-boiled eggs with feelings that life is incomplete. Apparently only the raw egg eater is a normal, healthy being.

The report of this which we read did not mention whether the research was federally funded. It probably was, though.

And its effect on American society will probably be every bit as great as those of the USOE "basic research" studies authorized so far.

Nixon Alliance With Hard Hats Bodes Ill For The Democrats

WASHINGTON — For the first time in more than three decades, the power bloc that has been the solid base of the Democratic Party is cracking. For Democratic strategists looking ahead, the split in the trade union movement is like the initial tremors of an earthquake.

George Meany, the venerable boss of the ALF-CIO, with his gray eminence and secretary of state, Jay Lovestone, at his elbow, gave President Nixon blank-check support for Cambodia. The outpouring of the hard hats in New York and St. Louis followed. The President invited the New York paraders to the White House and the embrace was ratified with a hard hat for the smiling chief executive.

When Mr. Nixon made the pilgrimage to the handsome AFL-CIO headquarters a block from the White House for an appearance before the executive council, Meany had harsh things to say about rising prices and the wage gap. But this was obscured by Meany's benediction for the Nixon war policy, a blessing that he had given to Lyndon Johnson in the years of the escalation.

THERE IS a strong quid pro quo in the Meany-Lovestone position. For several years the AFL-CIO has been getting considerable sums from the Agency for International Development to promote Meany-Lovestone foreign policy in Latin America, Asia and Africa through "free trade unions."

A year ago chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held hearings into the terms of the partnership between AID and the AFL-CIO's subsidiaries, the American Institute for Free Labor. Meany, as witness, shouted angrily as Fulbright questioned the wisdom of turning over funds — more than $30 million at that point — to a non-governmental organization.

"Mr. Chairman," Meany declared, "they were not supplying money to me. This money is used to carry out U. S. government foreign policy."

Aid continues to supply funds to the AFL-CIO subsidiaries. Formerly this money came directly from the Central Intelligence Agency. Aid administrator John A. Hannah recently said that as of today it is only in Laos that some AID funds go for CIA operations.

THE UNIONS that are the core of support for the President's policy in Indochina — the hard hats in the construction industry — have reason to be grateful to government if only because of the hands-off attitude on wages and prices. Nor are they likely to be alarmed by the president's economic message and the promise of an "inflation alert." The alert is many months too late.

These unions have led the wage increase parade. The careful figures prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that contracts recently negotiated in the construction industry average a 15.5 per cent jump the first year and 39 per cent over three years. This compares with an average in manufacturing of 5.5 per cent for the first year and slightly more than 15 per cent for three years. Needless to say, these increases are passed on by the construction industry in the cost of building.

"THE INEVITABILITY of the election of a Republican candidate for President in 1968 was universally conceded," the head of a white-collar union writes. "One force, and one force only, came within an eyelash of reversing that outcome, the AFL-CIO. Maybe there was a place here or there where we could have strained a little harder but it is difficult to give much consideration to such questioning."

The questioning points to 1972 and the Meany-Lovestone stand on the Vietnam War. The Meany front is not entirely united — Jacob Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers filed a dissent. But the ideological shove to the right is powerful.

Buy That Clutch For Minibike

I, too, read with interest the article about Charles Rivas, a "12-year-old son of a welfare mother." The reply by a Novato woman (in the Letters column) who is upset over people on welfare having normal, healthy outlets for their recreation and pleasure just because they are "welfare recipients" betrays an attempt to hang on to the past.

Charles and his family are to be commended, rather than scorned! Where a boy only 12 years old thinks enough of his family to want to share what little money he will earn playing his drums, then this shows a good family relationship. Welfare funds are there to make sure good family relationships remain. Just because Charles also thinks of his needs does not in the least diminish the fact that he is sharing his earnings with his family.

Buy that mini-bike clutch, Charles. And more power to you for your efforts with your musical talents.

We Worked For It; How Naive Of Us!

"Do you have any idea what it's like to answer a child who asks for a bicycle you can't afford?" was asked of the board of supervisors by a sobbing welfare mother at the budget hearing June 18, as reported in your paper the following day. The proposed reductions in certain county welfare payments prompted this and other bitter remarks. "I hate you - all of you!" was another quoted epithet by another woman.

When I wanted a bicycle at about age 12, many years ago, my father told me that if I would earn half of the cost, he would put up the other half - otherwise, no bike. I worked all summer, at any sort of odd jobs I could find, anything at all, whether I liked it or not. Finally, at the end of summer I had the $15 I needed and became the proud owner of a new three speed bicycle, the first in our neighborhood. In those days we didn't know that if you wanted something and didn't have the money, rather than work for it or do without, you should go to your town or county officials and demand that they furnish the wherewithal! How naive we were then!. . .

In this period of a tight labor market, jobs are available, if one really wants to work (in spite of all the current noise about unemployment), and in the county with the highest per capita income in the state, it is ridiculous to have welfare costs second only to schools. How long will we taxpayers continue to be suckers? Welfare should be for absolute needs, not for just wants!

Bill Would End Predator Program

Ecology is a matter of great concern these days and rightly so. And predatory animals like mountain lions and coyotes are part of the balance of nature, keeping rodents and other small animals in check. Yet the federal government has a predator control program, in which a vast number of trappers and poisoners are employed to kill predatory animals.

HR 15737, to end the government's predator control program, has been introduced by Congressman Morris Udall in the House of Representatives. It provides that if a predator kills sheep or cattle (which is rare) the stockmen can be compensated.

Letters in support to Edward Garmatz, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Senators Cranston and Murphy, and your own congressman, are badly needed now.

Good Earth Lost—To Pollution

For years polite people didn't talk about human wastes. Flush and forget was the unspoken maxim. Today, however, we must speak about such things because our trying to hide from unpleasant realities has led to the present crisis in water pollution.

When Pearl Buck returned to this country in the 1930s after many years in the Far East, she was horrified to learn that New York City poured hundreds of tons of sewage into the Hudson River and the Atlantic Ocean each day. Not so much because of the pollution, but because of the absolute waste of potential soil nutrients.

Because her husband had been an agricultural scientist, working in China, where all waste was saved, composted and purified by benign bacteria, then used as fertilizer, the mothods of this county must have seemed very strange.

More than strange. I think of it this way. We pollute our rivers and bays with sewage, while taking valuable electricity to make nitrogen fertilizers. There is of course the problem of making sewage sanitary. But we have licked less pressing, less important problems.

The time may be fast approaching when mankind cannot afford to waste anything.

Tax On Non-Returnable Bottles Aimed At Real Problem, But...

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

The Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee has reported out his SB 141 with a "do pass" recommendation.

The measure provides for a one-cent sales tax on non-returnable beverage containers. In other words, those no-deposit, no return bottles, most of which are plastic, would have to be financed a lot heavier should the Petris measure get through.

The amazing amount of tax, about $25.5 million, which would be collected for the 1970-71 fiscal year is ample evidence that the Petris bill doesn't deal with peanuts.

The Bill would distribute $15.9 million to the counties for cleanup purposes, and give the rest to the state Division of Beaches and Parks to acquire, improve and develop state beaches and parks.

If the purpose of the Petris measure is to clean up the state, this is a peculiar diversion of the taxpayers 'money.

Of course, there is no end to the amount of money that can be spent for beaches and parks. The public has found that out during the past several years when the department has operated with its hand out for considerably more than its share of the taxpayers' dollar.

Now it has come up with the idea to milk the Petris bill, and seize a part of a new, proposed tax to further its purpose of acquiring lands while the money is proposed to be collected for the purpose of cleaning up the environment.

It follows that if collections from the proposed tax are in sufficient amount to turn a few millions over to the beaches and parks, the tax would provide more money than is needed to do the cleanup job.

South Korea Regime Clings To U.S. 'Security Blanket'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Twenty years ago this month President Harry S Truman answered a Communist thrust across the 38th parallel into South Korea with the dispatch of American troops to the Asia mainland.

More than 50,000 American troops are still in South Korea. It is perhaps noteworthy that after 20 years, there still is one phrase common in other parts of the world but not heard in South Korea. It is:

"Yankee, go home."

In fact, the South Koreans currently are going through what is becoming an annual case of the jitters over the possibility that the Yankees might go home far earlier than the Koreans would wish.

SOUTH KOREAN President Park Chung-hee wants the Americans to remain as insurance against another invasion from the Communist north.

As a reason for wanting to pull at least one Army division out within a matter of months, the United States cites "budgetary" pressures and President Nixon's warning to Asian nations that they must take over a greater share of their own defenses.

The Korean reply is a "yes, but..."

They do not share what they describe as the "computer logic" of some members of the U.S. Congress who suggest that man for man the American forces in Korea could be replaced by the 50,000 Koreans fighting in South Vietnam once that war is settled.

It is the American presence, they say, that is important and they insist that 1975 is the earliest date by which the United States safely can remove its forces.

THE SOUTH KOREAN argument is not without force.

South Korean intelligence says that the Soviet Union has stepped up its military aid to the north since 1967, supplying MIG-21's, surface-to-air rockets launchers, torpedo boats and T54 tanks.

North Korea's 350,000-man army maintains eight divisions along the truce line, with another 10 divisins backing them up. Communist infiltrators constantly probe into the south and Pyongyang radio maintains a steady and virulent campaign against the United States and the Seoul governments.

ECONOMICALLY, the south is doing well, better than the north.

South Korea's export target for this year is $1 billion.

The Vietnam war has brought financial gain to South Korea. Many South Koreans have gone to work for engineering and construction firms in South Vietnam, and earnings flowing back to South Korea have been estimated as high as $150 million annually.

Rather than reducing its troop strength in South Korea, the South Koreans believe the United States should send even more, especially after it turns back its Okinawa bastion to Japan.

Delay Hinted In Opening Auditorium For More Seats

The Marin County Board of Supervisors hinted yesterday it may delay the opening of the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium until the fall of 1971 in order to enlarge its seating capacity.

The supervisors, who are near the end of their budget hearings, learned from Leon G. Kalimos, county fair director, that present plans for an 800-seat capacity at the building would limit its appeal to theatrical booking agents.

Kalimos, former executive director and sole survivor of Fair-Marin, as an official agency, said a 1,200-seat theater would be preferred by quality theatrical and musical performers because it would offer greater financial possibilities. He said only small acts could make money in a theater such as now planned.

Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, said the 400-seat increase would cost an additional $100,000 bringing next year's auditorium budget to about $300,000.

Supervisor John F. McInnis, claiming he wanted to see maximum use of the structure, suggested the board delay a decision on the auditorium until the administrator's staff could draft new budget recommendations. Other board members agreed.

McInnis explained that if the 1,200-seat figure were approved, the structure could not open for another year and therefore funds allocated for its dedication and advance publicity could be transferred for seat addition.

Campanella told the board 1,200 seats would require 70 to 80 per cent capacity use seven days a week to break even.

Supervisor William A. Gnoss, registered shock at the figure and disavowed any connection with the building's approval. The soon-to-retire supervisor explained the structure was conceived following World War I and approved before he was elected after World War II.

Campanella told the board it would cost $529,000 to complete the building and grounds at the 1,200-seat level and about $1 million to complete the project at 2,100 seats.

McInnis suggested completing only the building at the 1,200-seat figure of $300,000 suggested earlier by Campanella.

He added that such action would also mean asking the Marin Arts and Garden Fair to put off its move to the Civic Center grounds for another year.

Other members agreed and requested the administrator's staff to come in with new proposal centered around the $300,000 figure.

The board began June 15 considering the proposed $37 million budget for fiscal 1970-71 estimated to require a tax rate of $2.54 per $100 assessed valuation. This year's budget is $33,261,422 with a tax rate of $2.395.

In other budget action yesterday, the board lost little time approving a demand from Marin cultural groups that $30,000 in county subsidies be reinstated in the budget.

The item, listed in the economic development budget, was deleted in May by County Administrator Alan Bruce over the protests of about 15 groups.

Bruce had reasoned the item was no longer needed as the groups would be given special consideration for use of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium when it opens — previously scheduled for November.

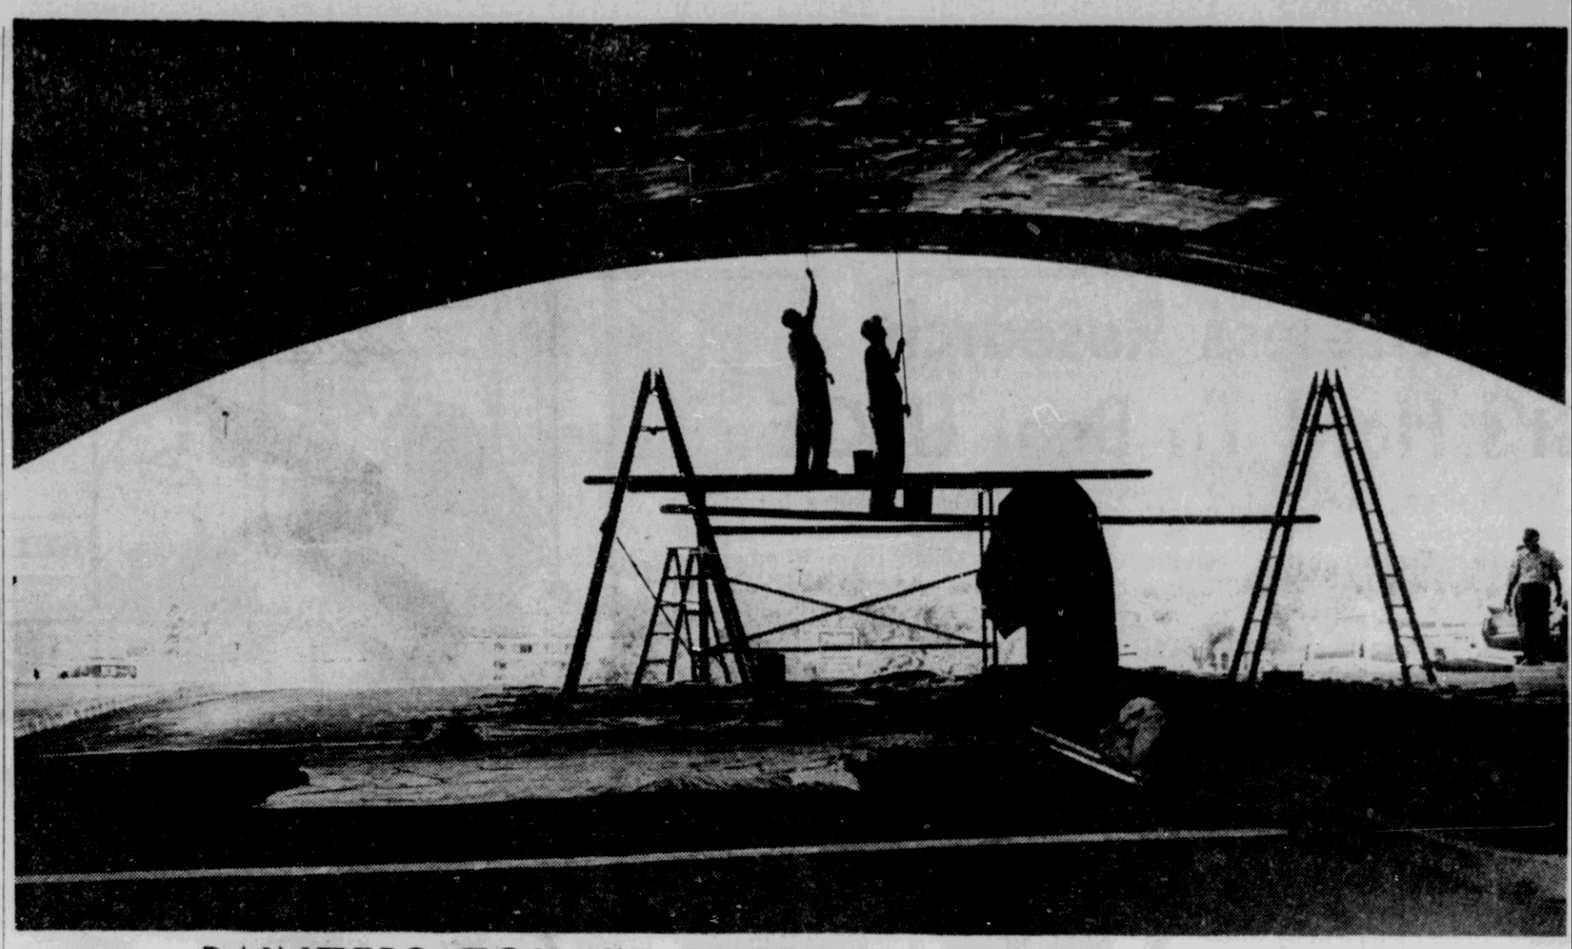
The board, following a brief discussion, unanimously overruled his recommendation.

The Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council did not fare as well.

The council had requested $30,000 to continue county health studies, but Bruce slashed that figure to $8,000. The supervisors, claiming they would not support a function which had assumed governmental powers without being responsible to the electorate, voted unanimously to drop the council from the budget.

About $1,000 was approved to continue the council's secretary on the county payroll until adequate notice could be served that her position was being deleted.

The War on Poverty, Neighborhood Youth Corps, county pound, special recreation services, county grounds, fish and game, recorder, county clerk and elections budgets survived major cuts by the board.



PAINTERS TOIL IN SHADOWS OF CIVIC CENTER

Painters work in the dark, but cool, shade of the main arch as the Marin County Civic Center's administration building gets it first new paint job since it opened in October of 1962. Only the interior public areas of the building, of which the arch is considered a part, are being painted, but it is taking Novato painting contractor John W. Metzger 200 gallons of paint to do it. The $5,400 job was begun June 8 and should be finished this week. (Independent-Journal photo)

Flyers Urge Support For Budget Cuts

Two thousand flyers went out by mail and hand-delivery today from four Marin organizations, urging a big turnout Thursday to persuade the Marin County Board of Supervisors to start over again on budget cutting.

The flyer, headed "Emergency Notice," declares:

"This Thursday, hundreds of taxpayers are going to converge on the Civic Center. We are going to tell the board of supervisors that the tax burden must be reduced. We are going to ask the board to keep this year's budget from exceeding the '69-70 budget of over $33,000,000. This is plenty!"

They were being distributed by the Marin Property Owners Association, Marin Builders Exchange, Marin County Board of Realtors, and Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Other organizations, including home-owner groups, are expected also to urge their members to attend the Thursday morning budget session of the supervisors to plead for cuts, according to Robert A. Roumiguiere of San Rafael, organizer of the all-out effort.

The flyer asks taxpayers to be at the board room in the Civic Center at 8:45 a.m. on Thursday — a quarter-hour before the session is scheduled to begin.

"Maybe this will be the beginning of a county-wide, statewide, even a nation-wide trend to 'hold the line' on government expenditures," says the flyer.

Roumiguiere said he started the move because it became evident the supervisors were not holding the line sufficiently to prevent an increase in the county tax rate.

College Trustees Eye Fall Bond Call

The possibility of a bond issue for the November ballot was raised for the first time last night by the Marin Junior College District board.

In a special meeting to discuss possible financial proposals for November's election, the board discussed a variety of override tax ideas and the bond issue proposal, reported John A. Grasham, superintendent-president of College of Marin. No decision was reached.

Among figures suggested, Grasham said, was a $20 million, 25-year bond issue with the bond service tax rate to be held to 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation or lower. Some trustees suggested that part of the total, perhaps 75 per cent, be earmarked for construction of the proposed Novato campus.

Another proposal was to seek voter approval of an override tax of 15 to 20 cents per $100. That would require only a majority, while the bonds would require a two-thirds vote.

Grasham said the board wants to hold the total tax rate to present levels, and could accomplish that by striking from the presently-authorized 35-cent override whatever amount was approved in November.

The present override is for capital outlay. An override approved in November would provide funds for operating costs, as well, which are currently squeezed harder than capital outlay.

Approval of a bond issue would make money available immediately for construction.

If voters approve none of the November proposals, Grasham said, the district could raise an override tax under existing law to match state funds for capital outlay. A levy of 5 to 7 cents is planned for 1970-71 under the program, but if substantial sums were needed for construction the levy could rise to 5 cents or so, Grasham said. The board wants to avoid using that option since it would raise the total tax rate, he said.

The board will meet again at 8 p.m. Monday in the testing room of the business center to discuss the north campus.

Next regular board meeting will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in Olney Hall.

BLUE DAY FOR GREEN FIELDS

Supervisors Slash Parks-Rec Budget Request By $450,000

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Department's dream of sprawling green fields, sandy beaches and bicycle paths was transformed into a rude awakening yesterday as county supervisors slashed about $450,000 from the department's 1970-71 budget request of $900,000.

Embracing County Administrator Alan Bruce's recommendations, the board refused to budget $100,000 for a park in East Corte Madera, $100,000 for a 70-acre facility near the San Geronimo golf course and $50,000 for a bayside park somewhere between Santa Venetia and Black Point.

The supervisors, meeting for their fifth budget hearing, similarly refused department requests for a $60,000 tennis and swim center and a $40,000 service yard. Also deleted was $20,000 for bicycle paths and $50,000 for future park site acquisition.

With strong support from bicycle enthusiasts in the audience, Supervisor Michael Wornum tried twice to have bike trail funds reinstated, but to no avail. Both his motions, one for $20,000 and a second for $12,000, died for lack of a second.

Wornum did succeed however, in having $23,000 carried over from the current budget to continue condemnation proceeding against Northwestern Pacific Railroad for a right-of-way along its tracks in Sausalito.

Audience members quickly added that additional funds should be added to make the county's investment meaningful.

John F. McInnis, board chairman, responded that the decision in the condemnation proceeding was still questionable and he would consider the request for additional funds after a decision.

The department's budget was finally approved at $432,428 on a 4-to-1 vote, with Wornum delcaring he would not vote in favor because it lacked additional bicycle trail funds.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who earlier warned he would fight for a park at Corte Madera if Wornum pushed for bicycle paths, muttered a few quiet words to Wornum after the vote.

"You take care of yours and I'll take care of mine," Wornum shot back, glaring at Baar.

Earlier, department director Pierre W. Joske also had one of his top level position requests sacked by the supervisors. He had requested eight additional employees above the 21 already in his department and four were approved by the county administrator's office.

Dissatisfied with Joske's explanation for the need of a park superintendent, the board bettered Bruce's "bare bones" recommendation by denying the new position request.

Other action saw the supervisor's approve $50,000 for site acquisition at McNears Beach and $100,000 for the park's development.

Special Round On Family Aid

The Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee will hold a special meeting tonight to form a request to the Marin County Board of Supervisors to reconsider its decision to cut county supplementation to recipients of Aid of Families with Dependent Children.

The board reduced supplementary aid to present recipients by one-third and to future cases by two-thirds, effective next month, at a budget hearing last week.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice.

Jury Trial Booked On Burglary Charge

Brian Augustus Baeszler, 22, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burglarizing the San Rafael Animal Hospital on May 23. A jury trial was set for the week of Aug. 3.

Baeszler, a parole violator from the California Rehabilitation Center, was arrested when he was found hiding under a desk in the animal hospital. He told police he was a heroin addict.

Potted Plant Stirs Pot Count

Sheriff's deputies who saw a Mill Valley man carrying a suspected marijuana potted plant down a street in Homestead Valley Sunday arrested him and a companion on suspicion of cultivating pot.

Booked into Marin County jail were David William Decker, 24, of 23 Mono Way, Mill Valley, and Philip James Tolmach, 19, of New York, N.Y. They were later released on their own recognizance and were to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Deputies said they asked Decker, "is that what I think it is," when spotting the plant, and Decker replied, "Yes, it's marijuana. I got it for my birthday."

San Rafael Suspect Nabbed In Car Theft

Walter Lee Duffey, 20, of 132 Front Street, San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of car theft in Marin Municipal Court. He was to return to court today to enter a plea.

Duffey was arrested Saturday afternoon on Jacoby Street in San Rafael when a police officer noticed a great deal of smoke coming from the 1956 Chevrolet which Duffey was driving. A routine check showed the car had been stolen in San Francisco.

Petaluma Blessed With Park Which It Is Unable To Use

The west side of Petaluma is rich in lovely neighborhood parks, but the real potential for recreation lies immediately to the east on Sonoma Mountain.

Since taking over the California Water Co. in the late 1950's, the city has owned 280 acres of land known as the Lafferty Ranch on Sonoma Mountain Road, off Old Adobe Road.

The land has always been talked about as a potential park area and is so shown on the city general plan, but little has been done about it.

Petalumans have gazed up at the mountain at rare times when snow appears in the winter, but not many have taken the drive up there. If they did and enjoyed the scenic view of the Petaluma Valley, perhaps there would be more action and less talk about development of the park.

AS ONE TURNS off Old Adobe Road onto Sonoma Mountain Road, there's a sign warning "not a through road," giving the impression that it stops at the farm in the distance. Actually it continues north almost to Santa Rosa.

While the road may never rival the route through the Blue Ridge Mountains in Virginia, it certainly gives views worth seeing. The Petaluma River, valley, Rohnert Park, Sonoma State College and Santa Rosa all lie gracefully at the feet of the string of mountains.

With more urban residents moving to Petaluma, there will be call to leave the rural atmosphere undisturbed.

THE POSSIBILITIES the land holds for outdoor recreation and nature study appear to be endless. That potential has already been recognized by Petaluma educators who would appreciate the convenience of taking their students on field trips to nearby areas rather than to Point Reyes National Seashore or more distant parks that require great advance planning and cause transportation problems.

The main problem appears to be the danger of contamination of the nearby watershed if large numbers of people want to take advantage of the scenic acreage.

The water commission and staff have taken an extremely cautious attitude regarding groups of persons on the land.

ALSO A PROBLEM is the difficulty of policing a large park of nearly 300 acres. The manpower it would require must be considered, as well as the cost of initial development.

Perhaps it would be worth the city's while to study how water problems could be averted to permit residents to enjoy the beauty of the area.

Most cities would give their eye teeth to own 280 acres of rugged and beautiful park land. Petaluma already has it, but can't use it.

Summer Mail From Campuses: A Few Intercepted Letters

Dear Mr. Altshuler,

As admissions director of Nantucket University, I am happy to inform you that you have been accepted in this fall's freshman class. Unfortunately there is some question as to whether we will open in the autumn, since the teachers and students are still on strike. I noted in your application that your father is in the pants business. I was wondering if I might prevail on you to ask him if he would be interested in hiring someone whose experience has been in the educational field, but is willing to learn everything about pants. I am enclosing my resume which I would appreciate your showing to your father at the earliest opportunity.

Sincerely yours,
Roger Whipthorn

DEAR VICE PRESIDENT Agnew,

I am the president of a small liberal arts college in New England, and my contract comes up for renewal in a couple of months. It is my understanding that a majority of course, concerned, as I feel replacement for me, and I am, of course, concerned, as Ifeel I've done a good job.

I know how busy you are, but is there any possibility of attacking me in one of your future fund-raising speeches? An attack by you would assure me of life tenure not only with the board, but the faculty as well. I am enclosing several talks I have made, underlining areas where you and I are in disagreement.

I know you have a long list of people you want to take issue with, but if you could squeeze me in in one of your attacks on the pseudo-intellectual establishment I will be as eternally grateful as Yale's President Kingman Brewster is for all that you have done for him.

Sincerely yours,
Arthur Wallach

DEAR MISS COLLENBERG,

I was sorry to receive your angry letter of June 4. I wish to point out that there was nothing personal in failing you in my Scandinavian philosophy course 5A. The fact that you called me a Swedish fascist because I said that your midterm paper on the Chicago Seven trial was not relevant to the period we were studying did not influence my decision to give you a failing grade.

Also, I wish to assure you that the day you took off all your clothes to protest my holding classes on Abbie Hoffman's birthday had no effect on your grades.

Even the telephone call you made to my wife telling her you were having my baby (for your information 12 students tried the same ploy) had no bearing on your F.

The only thing I judged you on was your final paper which you titled, "Hans Christian Andersen Was a Sexist Chauvinist Racist Pig" which I discovered you copied word for word from the underground newspaper, "Sweat."

Sincerely yours, Dr. Sven Karlson

Woman Injured In Accident In Garage

A 58-year-old San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised chest after her car rolled backwards and pinned her to her garage door at 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Mary Ellen McDonald of 734 Del Ganado Road was trying to get her purse from the back seat when the car moved.

A sack of uncounted money taken up at a collection at a service at Blessed Sacramento Church in Santa Venetia early Sunday morning was stolen from the church's sacristy, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Driver Gets 45 Days In Hit-Run Case

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday ordered Gerald Thomas Fisher, 42, of Woodacre, to spend 45 days in jail on conviction of hit-and-run driving stemming from an accident in North Marin Dec. 18.

Two additional hit-run charges against Fisher were dismissed at the time Fisher pleaded guilty to the first one.

The judge yesterday also place Fisher on probation for one year and suspended his driver's license for one year.

Fisher had been charged with causing three accidents, one in Bel Marin Keys where he sideswiped a car; one on Highway 37 where he allegedly went the wrong way on an on-ramp, causing a car to overturn and a final one on Highway 101, where he again drove on the wrong side of the highway striking a car and causing it to hit another one head-on.

Three persons were injured in the accidents.

Fisher apparently fled on foot after the last accident, hitchhiked home and was taken to Marin General Hospital by his wife. Hospital authorities called police after treating him for a cut.

San Rafael Suspect Admits Pot Charge

Scott Wayne Burton, 21, of San Rafael, yesterday admitted in Marin Superior Court that he possessed marijuana when arrested in San Rafael on July 23, 1969.

Judge E. Warren McGuire set sentencing for Sept. 14.

Burton was arrested when he drove up to a house where drug agents had just arrested two young men on charges of possessing marijuana for sale. He had three pot cigarettes with him.

For Useless Research, It's Hard To Beat USOE

Marin and Bay Area local governments have paid for their share of special studies. The city hall or county courthouse without shelves full of bulky reports, and stacks of over-size charts and graphs, all gathering dust after having been paid for with taxpayers' money, probably does not exist.

Marin County, for instance, has had so many studies of its transportation problem that making a new one now entails more cost since there are so many old ones to read and rewrite. Fortunately, the county finally disposed of the problem by wishing it onto the Golden Gate Bridge District. That district, after a couple more studies, did what all the studies had advised: moved to expand bus service as the first attack on the problem.

Studies of San Rafael's parking problem recur regularly, providing a dependable share of the income of consultant D. Jackson Faustman of Sacramento.

Just about every city has its downtown studies, its master plan studies, etc., etc. Each leads to another.

EXPENSIVE as these are, however, they sometimes serve a purpose. All are directed at seeking solutions to actual, important problems. And occasionally, the public body that ordered the study acts on it.

Such is not the case with many studies funded by the federal government. It especially is not the case with those paid for from the U. S. Office of Education's share of our income taxes.

USOE, with some fanfare, announced it would undertake a vast program of basic research, beginning this year, to find out what's wrong with American schools.

It recently released a list of the first 19 projects in this "basic research." Among them: whether students in Appalachia perform better in consolidated high schools than in small local schools, the link between personality and job aspirations, the effects of anxiety on computer-assisted learning, the way preschoolers learn mathematical ideas, and the impact of colored illustrations on students' memories.

TO READ THIS LIST, anyone would assume, if he did not know better, that American education was in such wonderful shape that it was difficult to find anything about it to investigate.

The USOE, however, was merely following a basic tenet of educational research, which is: The more obscure and useless the study, the better.

A prime example of this showed up last week.

A research team from Reese State Institute of Behavorial Sciences in Chicago made a study of the egg preferences of students at Hopper College, Evanston, Ill. The team's "research" resulted in conclusions that those who like scrambled eggs have feelings of helplessness, and those who prefer their eggs poached are self-doubting. Fried eggs were linked with guilt feelings, soft-boiled eggs with feelings that life is incomplete. Apparently only the raw egg eater is a normal, healthy being.

The report of this which we read did not mention whether the research was federally funded. It probably was, though.

And its effect on American society will probably be every bit as great as those of the USOE "basic research" studies authorized so far.

Nixon Alliance With Hard Hats Bodes Ill For The Democrats

WASHINGTON — For the first time in more than three decades, the power bloc that has been the solid base of the Democratic Party is cracking. For Democratic strategists looking ahead, the split in the trade union movement is like the initial tremors of an earthquake.

George Meany, the venerable boss of the ALF-CIO, with his gray eminence and secretary of state, Jay Lovestone, at his elbow, gave President Nixon blank-check support for Cambodia. The outpouring of the hard hats in New York and St. Louis followed. The President invited the New York paraders to the White House and the embrace was ratified with a hard hat for the smiling chief executive.

When Mr. Nixon made the pilgrimage to the handsome AFL-CIO headquarters a block from the White House for an appearance before the executive council, Meany had harsh things to say about rising prices and the wage gap. But this was obscured by Meany's benediction for the Nixon war policy, a blessing that he had given to Lyndon Johnson in the years of the escalation.

THERE IS a strong quid pro quo in the Meany-Lovestone position. For several years the AFL-CIO has been getting considerable sums from the Agency for International Development to promote Meany-Lovestone foreign policy in Latin America, Asia and Africa through "free trade unions."

A year ago chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held hearings into the terms of the partnership between AID and the AFL-CIO's subsidiaries, the American Institute for Free Labor. Meany, as witness, shouted angrily as Fulbright questioned the wisdom of turning over funds — more than $30 million at that point — to a non-governmental organization.

"Mr. Chairman," Meany declared, "they were not supplying money to me. This money is used to carry out U. S. government foreign policy."

Aid continues to supply funds to the AFL-CIO subsidiaries. Formerly this money came directly from the Central Intelligence Agency. Aid administrator John A. Hannah recently said that as of today it is only in Laos that some AID funds go for CIA operations.

THE UNIONS that are the core of support for the President's policy in Indochina — the hard hats in the construction industry — have reason to be grateful to government if only because of the hands-off attitude on wages and prices. Nor are they likely to be alarmed by the president's economic message and the promise of an "inflation alert." The alert is many months too late.

These unions have led the wage increase parade. The careful figures prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that contracts recently negotiated in the construction industry average a 15.5 per cent jump the first year and 39 per cent over three years. This compares with an average in manufacturing of 5.5 per cent for the first year and slightly more than 15 per cent for three years. Needless to say, these increases are passed on by the construction industry in the cost of building.

"THE INEVITABILITY of the election of a Republican candidate for President in 1968 was universally conceded," the head of a white-collar union writes. "One force, and one force only, came within an eyelash of reversing that outcome, the AFL-CIO. Maybe there was a place here or there where we could have strained a little harder but it is difficult to give much consideration to such questioning."

The questioning points to 1972 and the Meany-Lovestone stand on the Vietnam War. The Meany front is not entirely united — Jacob Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers filed a dissent. But the ideological shove to the right is powerful.

Appeal To Owners Of Roaming Dogs

This letter is an appeal to the owners of dogs allowed to roam at will the Dominican area. We live on Locust Avenue and I'm sure that my neighbors are not aware of damage and continuous problems to us which their dogs are responsible for. I speak to the fine residents of our county on the basis of the Golden Rule which should remind us that our responsibility for the animals we own goes beyond providing for them food and shelter.

We Worked For It; How Naive Of Us!

"Do you have any idea what it's like to answer a child who asks for a bicycle you can't afford?" was asked of the board of supervisors by a sobbing welfare mother at the budget hearing June 18, as reported in your paper the following day. The proposed reductions in certain county welfare payments prompted this and other bitter remarks. "I hate you - all of you!" was another quoted epithet by another woman.

When I wanted a bicycle at about age 12, many years ago, my father told me that if I would earn half of the cost, he would put up the other half - otherwise, no bike. I worked all summer, at any sort of odd jobs I could find, anything at all, whether I liked it or not. Finally, at the end of summer I had the $15 I needed and became the proud owner of a new three speed bicycle, the first in our neighborhood. In those days we didn't know that if you wanted something and didn't have the money, rather than work for it or do without, you should go to your town or county officials and demand that they furnish the wherewithal! How naive we were then!. . .

In this period of a tight labor market, jobs are available, if one really wants to work (in spite of all the current noise about unemployment), and in the county with the highest per capita income in the state, it is ridiculous to have welfare costs second only to schools. How long will we taxpayers continue to be suckers? Welfare should be for absolute needs, not for just wants!

Showcase Aids Volunteer Bureau

It is vital to call to your and your readers' attention a serious oversight in what otherwise was a splendid article with photographs of "Marin Designers' Showcase" on the front page of the women's section on June 17. The omission included the address of this outstanding Marin FIRST, which is 1420 Grand Avenue, San Rafael; the hours, which are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day of the week. . .

May I make a very special plug for the beneficiary of all this hard work and dedication, the Volunteer Bureau in San Rafael. The bureau has been in existence for six years, interviewing and placing approximately 3,000 volunteers in community service . . .

Buy That Clutch For Minibike

I, too, read with interest the article about Charles Rivas, a "12-year-old son of a welfare mother." The reply by a Novato woman (in the Letters column) who is upset over people on welfare having normal, healthy outlets for their recreation and pleasure just because they are "welfare recipients" betrays an attempt to hang on to the past.

Charles and his family are to be commended, rather than scorned! Where a boy only 12 years old thinks enough of his family to want to share what little money he will earn playing his drums, then this shows a good family relationship. Welfare funds are there to make sure good family relationships remain. Just because Charles also thinks of his needs does not in the least diminish the fact that he is sharing his earnings with his family.

Buy that mini-bike clutch, Charles. And more power to you for your efforts with your musical talents.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

June 23, 1960

Adrien J. Falk, president of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District; said a transit system wouldn't be extended to Marin unless the Golden Gate Bridge was used to carry trains.

Sheriff's deputies, checking complaints that noisy roosters were keeping people awake in San Geronimo, reported there was no ordinance against crowing roosters.

20 YEARS AGO

June 23, 1950

William D. Monette was granted permission by the state Public Utilities Commission to extend his bus service from Tomales to Dillon Beach and from Sonoma to Point Reyes Station.

Bill Would End Predator Program

Ecology is a matter of great concern these days and rightly so. And predatory animals like mountain lions and coyotes are part of the balance of nature, keeping rodents and other small animals in check. Yet the federal government has a predator control program, in which a vast number of trappers and poisoners are employed to kill predatory animals.

HR 15737, to end the government's predator control program, has been introduced by Congressman Morris Udall in the House of Representatives. It provides that if a predator kills sheep or cattle (which is rare) the stockmen can be compensated.

Letters in support to Edward Garmatz, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Senators Cranston and Murphy, and your own congressman, are badly needed now.

Good Earth Lost—To Pollution

For years polite people didn't talk about human wastes. Flush and forget was the unspoken maxim. Today, however, we must speak about such things because our trying to hide from unpleasant realities has led to the present crisis in water pollution.

When Pearl Buck returned to this country in the 1930s after many years in the Far East, she was horrified to learn that New York City poured hundreds of tons of sewage into the Hudson River and the Atlantic Ocean each day. Not so much because of the pollution, but because of the absolute waste of potential soil nutrients.

Because her husband had been an agricultural scientist, working in China, where all waste was saved, composted and purified by benign bacteria, then used as fertilizer, the mothods of this county must have seemed very strange.

More than strange. I think of it this way. We pollute our rivers and bays with sewage, while taking valuable electricity to make nitrogen fertilizers. There is of course the problem of making sewage sanitary. But we have licked less pressing, less important problems.

The time may be fast approaching when mankind cannot afford to waste anything.

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

The Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee has reported out his SB 141 with a "do pass" recommendation.

The measure provides for a one-cent sales tax on non-returnable beverage containers. In other words, those no-deposit, no return bottles, most of which are plastic, would have to be financed a lot heavier should the Petris measure get through.

The amazing amount of tax, about $25.5 million, which would be collected for the 1970-71 fiscal year is ample evidence that the Petris bill doesn't deal with peanuts.

The Bill would distribute $15.9 million to the counties for cleanup purposes, and give the rest to the state Division of Beaches and Parks to acquire, improve and develop state beaches and parks.

If the purpose of the Petris measure is to clean up the state, this is a peculiar diversion of the taxpayers 'money.

Of course, there is no end to the amount of money that can be spent for beaches and parks. The public has found that out during the past several years when the department has operated with its hand out for considerably more than its share of the taxpayers' dollar.

Now it has come up with the idea to milk the Petris bill, and seize a part of a new, proposed tax to further its purpose of acquiring lands while the money is proposed to be collected for the purpose of cleaning up the environment.

It follows that if collections from the proposed tax are in sufficient amount to turn a few millions over to the beaches and parks, the tax would provide more money than is needed to do the cleanup job.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Twenty years ago this month President Harry S Truman answered a Communist thrust across the 38th parallel into South Korea with the dispatch of American troops to the Asia mainland.

More than 50,000 American troops are still in South Korea. It is perhaps noteworthy that after 20 years, there still is one phrase common in other parts of the world but not heard in South Korea. It is:

"Yankee, go home."

In fact, the South Koreans currently are going through what is becoming an annual case of the jitters over the possibility that the Yankees might go home far earlier than the Koreans would wish.

As a reason for wanting to pull at least one Army division out within a matter of months, the United States cites "budgetary" pressures and President Nixon's warning to Asian nations that they must take over a greater share of their own defenses.

The Korean reply is a "yes, but..."

They do not share what they describe as the "computer logic" of some members of the U.S. Congress who suggest that man for man the American forces in Korea could be replaced by the 50,000 Koreans fighting in South Vietnam once that war is settled.

It is the American presence, they say, that is important and they insist that 1975 is the earliest date by which the United States safely can remove its forces.

THE SOUTH KOREAN argument is not without force.

South Korean intelligence says that the Soviet Union has stepped up its military aid to the north since 1967, supplying MIG-21's, surface-to-air rockets launchers, torpedo boats and T54 tanks.

North Korea's 350,000-man army maintains eight divisions along the truce line, with another 10 divisions backing them up. Communist infiltrators constantly probe into the south and Pyongyang radio maintains a steady and virulent campaign against the United States and the Seoul governments.

ECONOMICALLY, the south is doing well, better than the north.

South Korea's export target for this year is $1 billion.

The Vietnam war has brought financial gain to South Korea. Many South Koreans have gone to work for engineering and construction firms in South Vietnam, and earnings flowing back to South Korea have been estimated as high as $150 million annually.

Rather than reducing its troop strength in South Korea, the South Koreans believe the United States should send even more, especially after it turns back its Okinawa bastion to Japan.

Petaluma Blessed With Park Which It Is Unable To Use

The west side of Petaluma is rich in lovely neighborhood parks, but the real potential for recreation lies immediately to the east on Sonoma Mountain.

Since taking over the California Water Co. in the late 1950's, the city has owned 280 acres of land known as the Lafferty Ranch on Sonoma Mountain Road, off Old Adobe Road.

The land has always been talked about as a potential park area and is so shown on the city general plan, but little has been done about it.

Petalumans have gazed up at the mountain at rare times when snow appears in the winter, but not many have taken the drive up there. If they did and enjoyed the scenic view of the Petaluma Valley, perhaps there would be more action and less talk about development of the park.

AS ONE TURNS off Old Adobe Road onto Sonoma Mountain Road, there's a sign warning "not a through road," giving the impression that it stops at the farm in the distance. Actually it continues north almost to Santa Rosa.

While the road may never rival the route through the Blue Ridge Mountains in Virginia, it certainly gives views worth seeing. The Petaluma River, valley, Rohnert Park, Sonoma State College and Santa Rosa all lie gracefully at the feet of the string of mountains.

With more urban residents moving to Petaluma, there will be call to leave the rural atmosphere undisturbed.

THE POSSIBILITIES the land holds for outdoor recreation and nature study appear to be endless. That potential has already been recognized by Petaluma educators who would appreciate the convenience of taking their students on field trips to nearby areas rather than to Point Reyes National Seashore or more distant parks that require great advance planning and cause transportation problems.

The main problem appears to be the danger of contamination of the nearby watershed if large numbers of people want to take advantage of the scenic acreage.

The water commission and staff have taken an extremely cautious attitude regarding groups of persons on the land.

ALSO A PROBLEM is the difficulty of policing a large park of nearly 300 acres. The manpower it would require must be considered, as well as the cost of initial development.

Perhaps it would be worth the city's while to study how water problems could be averted to permit residents to enjoy the beauty of the area.

Most cities would give their eye teeth to own 280 acres of rugged and beautiful park land. Petaluma already has it, but can't use it.

Summer Mail From Campuses: A Few Intercepted Letters

Dear Mrs Altshuler,

As admissions director of Nantucket University, I am happy to inform you that you have been accepted in this fall's freshman class. Unfortunately there is some question as to whether we will open in the autumn, since the teachers and students are still on strike. I noted in your application that your father is in the pants business. I was wondering if I might prevail on you to ask him if he would be interested in hiring someone whose experience has been in the educational field, but is willing to learn everything about pants. I am enclosing my resume which I would appreciate your showing to your father at the earliest opportunity.

Sincerely yours,
Roger Whipthorn

DEAR VICE PRESIDENT Agnew,

I am the president of a small liberal arts college in New England, and my contract comes up for renewal in a couple of months. It is my understanding that a majority of course, concerned, as I feel replacement for me, and I am, of course, concerned, as Ifeel I've done a good job.

I know how busy you are, but is there any possibility of attacking me in one of your future fund-raising speeches? An attack by you would assure me of life tenure not only with the board, but the faculty as well. I am enclosing several talks I have made, underlining areas where you and I are in disagreement.

I know you have a long list of people you want to take issue with, but if you could squeeze me in in one of your attacks on the pseudo-intellectual establishment I will be as eternally grateful as Yale's President Kingman Brewster is for all that you have done for him.

Sincerely yours,
Arthur Wallach

DEAR MISS COLLENBERG,

I was sorry to receive your angry letter of June 4. I wish to point out that there was nothing personal in failing you in my Scandinavian philosophy course 5A. The fact that you called me a Swedish fascist because I said that your midterm paper on the Chicago Seven trial was not relevant to the period we were studying did not influence my decision to give you a failing grade.

Also, I wish to assure you that the day you took off all your clothes to protest my holding classes on Abbie Hoffman's birthday had no effect on your grades.

Even the telephone call you made to my wife telling her you were having my baby (for your information 12 students tried the same ploy) had no bearing on your F.

The only thing I judged you on was your final paper which you titled, "Hans Christian Andersen Was a Sexist Chauvinist Racist Pig" which I discovered you copied word for word from the underground newspaper, "Sweat."

Sincerely yours, Dr. Sven Karlson

Woman Injured In Accident In Garage

A 58-year-old San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised chest after her car rolled backwards and pinned her to her garage door at 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Mary Ellen McDonald of 734 Del Ganado Road was trying to get her purse from the back seat when the car moved.

Church Cash Stolen

A sack of uncounted money taken up at a collection at a service at Blessed Sacramento Church in Santa Venetia early Sunday morning was stolen from the church's sacristy, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Driver Gets 45 Days In Hit-Run Case

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday ordered Gerald Thomas Fisher, 42, of Woodacre, to spend 45 days in jail on conviction of hit-and-run driving stemming from an accident in North Marin Dec. 18.

Two additional hit-run charges against Fisher were dismissed at the time Fisher pleaded guilty to the first one.

The judge yesterday also place Fisher on probation for one year and suspended his driver's license for one year.

Fisher had been charged with causing three accidents, one in Bel Marin Keys where he sideswiped a car; one on Highway 37 where he allegedly went the wrong way on an on-ramp, causing a car to overturn and a final one on Highway 101, where he again drove on the wrong side of the highway striking a car and causing it to hit another one head-on.

Three persons were injured in the accidents.

Fisher apparently fled on foot after the last accident, hitchhiked home and was taken to Marin General Hospital by his wife. Hospital authorities called police after treating him for a cut.

23 Collegians Receive Honors

Twenty-three graduating students received scholarships and awards at College of Marin's commencement this semester. Students whose awards were not previously published in the Independent-Journal were:

College of Marin Foundation scholarship — Alice Hofer. Citizenship cup — Curtis G. Rutter and Melanie J. Annin. Scholarship cut — Catherine Stai. Alpha Gamma Sigma state honor roll and life memberships — William S. Gregg, Gregory W. Ball, Ellen Gargiulo, Steve M. Harris and Catherine Stai.

Banks in the United States process 20 billion checks a year, according to National Geographic.

San Rafael Suspect Admits Pot Charge

Scott Wayne Burton, 21, of San Rafael, yesterday admitted in Marin Superior Court that he possessed marijuana when arrested in San Rafael on July 23, 1969.

Judge E. Warren McGuire set sentencing for Sept. 14.

Burton was arrested when he drove up to a house where drug agents had just arrested two young men on charges of possessing marijuana for sale. He had three pot cigarettes with him.

If an actual pole were planted at the South Pole, a year later it would be 260 feet beyond the geographic axis because of the slow movement of the Antarctic ice cap.

★WE'RE SPEECHLESS!
Yes, we have run out of adjectives that describe this immaculate 3,300 sq. ft. custom ranch home on a private 1/3 acre level site. We can't tell you about the oversized "showplace 2½ baths", the huge 4 bedrooms, plush carpets and drapes. Don't ask about the landscaping and its old oaks. They're indescribable. We can tell you that this home is extra special and can't be duplicated at $67,000. See it with one of our speechless representatives.

Ex-U.S. Justice 'Apprehensive'

Prison Time For Theft Of Yacht

A 30-year-old parole violator who admitted that he stole a $60,000 yacht belonging to San Francisco nightclub owner Joseph Finocchio yesterday was sentenced again to state prison.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court ordered that Duane LeRoy Dittus serve a term to run concurrently with any other sentences he is serving.

Dittus was arrested aboard the Lady Eve III in Tomales Bay on June 3 and was also accused of having property aboard stolen from other San Rafael yachts.

This charge as well as counts of having stolen a boat from a Long Beach man and wrecking it were dismissed when Dittus pleaded guilty to stealing the Lady Eve.

The yacht was reported missing June 1 from Lowrie's Yacht Harbor, San Rafael.

Irish Lawmaker Fights Jail Term

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Bernadette Devlin, member of British Parliament from Northern Ireland, has appealed a six-month prison sentence for inciting a riot during disturbances in Londonderry last August.

Her attorney said "the substance of her defense was that she genuinely and reasonably believed the people of Bogside were in danger of attack by police."

He said Miss Devlin, 23, did throw a stone during the riots but it went near no one and was only a gesture.

Small Business Loan Requirements Eased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Small Business Administration (SBA) says it now will make loans to disaster victims of as much as $4,300 without requiring collateral.

SBA Administrator Hilary Sandoval, making the announcement Tuesday, said that only $2,500 of such loans would require repayment. Under previous regulations, unsecured disaster loans could be made only if the amount to be repaid did not exceed $1,000.

Howard Lee Crouch, 43, of 300 Cotati Avenue, Cotati, was placed on probation for one year and ordered to pay a fine of $200 or spend four days in jail on one case and to serve 10 days in jail on another. He was arrested Oct. 31 in Novato and April 10 on Highway 101.

Mill Valley Man Jailed For Drug

Harry Elmer Chapman, 43, of Mill Valley, admitted yesterday in Marin Superior Court that he possessed methamphetamine when arrested for reckless driving on March 8, 1969.

Charges of having a hypodermic needle and reckless driving were dismissed.

Judge E. Warren McGuire placed Chapman on probation for three years and ordered him to spend the first year in jail.

Chapman was arrested when he was seen driving at a high rate of speed on the Golden Gate Bridge.

Walton Plea Refused

By PAT ANGLE

Despite a favorable report of progress made this year at Martin Luther King School and pleas from a number of parents, the Sausalito School District board last night refused to reconsider its decision to continue legal steps to remove King Principal Sidney F. Waton Jr. from his post.

Following a one-and-a-half-hour closed session yesterday, the board, by a 2-1 vote, voted to accept the charges against Walton prepared by the former board in May and take no action to reinstate him.

It was clear that many of the approximately 80 persons who attended last night's meeting were waiting eagerly for the opportunity to discuss Walton's dismissal with newly-elected trustees Jerry L. Whitcomb and Dalta Christ, who voted yetserday to go ahead with the firing.

Their chance came when the board discussed plans for a survey of parents to determine how many children will be enrolled in the district next year.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson, the only trustee who voted to drop the charges against the principal, said he felt the survey should include a question asking parents how they felt about the firing.

Whitcomb and Mrs. Christ disagreed and said they thought a paragraph asking parents for any comments about what is going on in the district was sufficient.

"We still don't know if Sid will be principal next year," said Ruby Carter, a Marin City parent. 'Until this question is answered, how can we send in a report on where our children will be attending school next year?"

Royce McLemore, another Marin City parent, offered to present the board a survey of 201 parents whose youngsters attend King School, a survey she said strongly supported Walton.

Mrs. McLemore told the board 136 of those questioned favored rehiring the principal and 74 opposed his reinstatement. "Will this have any effect on your decision to go ahead with the firing of Sid?" she asked the board.

Mrs. Christ did not answer, but Whitcomb said, "Royce, in all honesty, no, it will not affect my decision."

Whitcomb said he had studied the Walton question "in great depth" in the last several days and "I did satisfy myself. I won't say everything I do is irrevocable," he said, "but I won't allow public pressure to change my decision."

Robert R. Lyon, chairman of Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, a group which initiated the recall election that brought Whitcomb and Mrs. Christ to the board, said he felt the election vote had shown the voting community "has demanded" Walton's ouster.

A parent answered that although the black community has more than 50 per cent of the children in the district, it does not have the numerical power at the polls.

Mrs. McLemore asked how the new trustees, who campaigned on the issue that the former board and superintendent had not been honest with the public, could accept that board's evaluation of Walton.

"We were hoping Mrs. Christ and Mr. Whitcomb would come on the board with open minds and see for themselves what is happening, but it seems they are basing their ideas on what they have heard," Mrs. Carter said.

"If they are going to put charges against Mr. Walton, they should at least make their own," said Danny Horowitz, 10, a King student.

Walton, who had remained silent during the two-and-a-half hour exchange, made a quiet, but eloquent plea for a chance to work with the new board.

"I think I can help you solve your problems," he told the board, adding that in the past he had been "forced to deal with dishonest adults and expected to cover up their lies."

He said he had showed anger and hostility toward the former board "because I was frustrated, because they insulted my intelligence.

"I am certain I can work with you if you are honest Walton said, "and I feel I can put this district back on its feet.

He said he would like an opportunity to work with the new board. "No one can have his own way all the time, me, you, anyone. We've got to find a way to work it out. We ought to sit down and establish guidelines on how this district is run," Walton added.

Seadrift Rezone Plea Is Rejected

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday rejected an application from the William Kent Estate Co. to rezone property in the company's Seadrift development on Bolinas Lagoon from single family to planned multiple family residential. (See another story, page 1.)

Discussion of the application opened with Roger Kent of Kentfield, representing the company, asking that the commission not take action on the application at yesterday's meeting.

He said that much of the opposition to the proposal — and much was evident in yesterday's audience — was due to a lack of communication.

The rezoning had been recommended by the planning department staff.

Alvin Zelver, a San Francisco planning consultant, argued that by constructing multiple family dwellings, the Kent company would be able to leave several open spaces in the development which would not be possible if single family dwellings are built one after another in a row.

The open spaces would protect the views of present Seadrift property owners, he said.

The property owners, however, strongly disagreed. Henry W. Wagner Jr., president of the Seadrift Property Owners Association, told the commission that the members of the association were "almost overwhelmingly against this rezoning."

The height of multiple family dwellings would destroy the low profile of the area, he said.

More than a dozen other property owners, as well as several conservationists, spoke against the application.

Proctor P. Jones of 290 Seadrift Road, had the names of 45 other property owners for whom he spoke in opposition to the plan.

The plan was opposed on the grounds that the multiple family dwellings might upset the natural state of Bolinas Lagoon, create additional pollution in the area, be a fire and earthquake hazard, and open the area to a more commercial type development.

The commission denied the application 4-1 vote. Chairman Walter F. Freitas, who voted against denial, said that he was sorry action on the matter was not postponed. A delay "might have produced a more satisfactory result for everyone," he said and advised Kent that the commission's action could be appealed to the board of supervisors.

The Marin County Planning Commission Also:

HOUSEBOATS — Rejected a planning department recommendation to deny an R-C-R (resort and commercial recreation district) use permit to George Kappas for 35 houseboats at Gate 6½ in Richardson Bay; directed the department staff to recommend conditions for approval, and continued the item until its next regular meeting, July 13.

Fairfax Man Breaks Wrist In Accident

The California Highway Patrol reported Robert Benson of 200 Bolinas Road was hurt when his motorcycle hit the rear of a car driven by Michele Curtin, 16, of 325 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, at 9:15 p.m. yesterday on Highway 101 between Marin City and Alto.

School Board Meeting

The Novato Unified School District board, scheduled to hold a special budget meeting at 8 p.m., today, will hold a closed meeting at 7:45 p.m. to discuss naming a principal to Hill Junior High School, according to Supt. James G. Bunker. The open board meeting will not start until 8:30 p.m., he said.

Bolinas-Stinson District Sets $210,000 Bond Issue

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board last night agreed to ask district residents to approve a $210,000 bond issue September 15 to finance construction of a one-campus school facility on the Bolinas school site, according to Avis Pattison, district secretary.

The board's attorney, Richard V. Godino, said the increase in the district tax rate which would result from the bond issue cannot be determined until school officials decide what time period to establish for bond redemption. The total tax rate is now $2.325 per $100 assessed valuation.

The bond issue would finance a $218,000 plan to locate all students in one school on one site. Included in the proposal, presented to trustees earlier by architect Richard A. Borgstrom, is purchase of a quarter-acre of land to the south of Bolinas School.

Last night trustees accepted drawings for the classroom building which Borgstrom estimates will cost $34,400 and agreed to pay the architect $2,700 for completed plans.

After a closed session with its attorney, the board authorized Godino to negotiate with Mrs. Arthur Bourne for purchase of the quarter-acre site. The board set a price range for the land which Godino did not divulge.

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board also:

STINSON SALE — Agreed to offer, for public sale, the 1.6-acre Stinson School site for $18,500.

Yes, People Can Indeed Live On Air

LONDON (UPI) — Whatever prospective fathers-in-law may say, people can live on air. At least, certain representatives of the human race may have developed this ability, according to the Nutrition Section of the Australian Department of Health.

In the highlands of New Guinea there are tribes which are of generally good physique although they eat a highly limited diet principally based on sweet potatoes. They rarely have any meat and supplement the sweet potatoes when they can with other root vegetables, corn, leafy greens and bananas.

This is too low an intake of proteins and fats to explain their general physical condition, and Dr. E. H. Hipsley and his associates wondered how they were getting protein nitrogen in view of the basic assumption that it can only be obtained from food.

The weekly Medical News-Tribune said the investigators advanced the hypothesis that the New Guinea highlanders might be able to convert atmospheric nitrogen into useful protein, a metabolic process that has always been assumed to be impossible.

To test this theory, Dr. Hipsley's group measured the amount of food nitrogen intake and excretion of New Guinea highlanders eating their traditional diet and a number of medical students eating their normal diet.

They found that the nitrogen intake of the students equalled their output, as expected. But the tribesmen bafflingly excreted twice as much nitrogen as they had ingested.

Now research is underway to discover if there are microorganisms in the intestines of the highlanders able to convert atmospheric nitrogen into protein.

Court Extends Right To Vote On Bond Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that states may not restrict voting on general obligation bonds to property owners.

In a 5-3 decision in a Phoenix, Ariz., case, the high court said that "the differences between the interests of property owners and. . .non-property owenrs are not sufficiently substantial to justify excluding the latter from the franchise."

Report Cites Year's Progress At Martin Luther King School

A favorable report on academic and social progress at Martin Luther King School during the past school year was presented to the Sausalito School District board last night by King Principal Sidney F. Walton Jr.

Although Walton candidly admitted that not all of the school's problems have been solved during his nine-month administration, he indicated significant strides had been made.

James T. Toliver Jr., King vice principal who, with Walton and teacher Armando Flores, made the presentation, said one of the most heartening achievements was in the area of discipline, a serious problem at the school for many years.

Toliver reported that 356 discipline cases had been referred to the principal's office this year, as compared to 1,100 referrals for the same period last year.

"The most beneficial gain was in the area of parent involvement in solving their children's discipline problems," Toliver said, adding that initial parental involvement often lapped into the area of academic progress.

Walton said the program of teacher in-service training which he initiated this year had been a great success. "This program brought about academic order and progress that previously did not exist," he said. "Morale was high" among teachers, he added.

Flores told the board a poll of teachers to evaluate Walton's performance as an administrator, taken in late April, showed the staff thought the principal was doing "a very good job."

Walton presented the board with progress reported from eight of the school's 26 teachers and said the remaining reports from teachers would be given to the board later this week.

He said there had been considerable improvement in reading, mathematics, language arts and social studies, which the teacher reprots seemed to document.

"At the beginning of this year, I promised the parents one year's academic progress for one year in school and I think we have given this," he said.

Walton admitted the students' ability to use the library was not as good as he would like and said the progress of sixth graders in some subjects, such as language arts, also left something to be desired. He said sixth graders have had to work with substitute teachers a great deal this year, since the class's regular teacher had been out much of the time due to illness.

He said the student grievance procedures he has initiated at King School have provided "a meaningful . . . way to dealing with problems that averts violent confrontation.

"A lot of problems — no solutions — were dumped in my lap when I came here," he said and added he felt many of them had been dealt with during his administration.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson called the report "pretty exciting and quite informative."

The Sausalito School District Board Also:

CLASSIFIED EMPLOYEES — Agreed not to cut 15 classified positions for next year until the board can study the 1970-71 tentative budget. The positions had been recommended eliminated by former Supt. Phillip W. Schneider.

BUDGET — Set a meeting to consider the budget for July 13 at 7:30 p.m. at Bayside School.

SALARY PLACEMENT — Voted to reinstate Toliver's salary to an administrative level of $14,024 a year. Last week Schneider informed the vice principal that, although the former board had agreed to return him to an administrative post next year, his salary was being cut to approximately $11,000, the equivalent of a teaching salary.

ENROLLMENT — Heard a report that district enrollment had dropped during the year from 733 to 687 students.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Heard a report on interdistrict attendance agreements with Mill Valley. Although the board took no action, Johnson said he saw no reason why the program should not be continued next year.

WORK STUDY — Voted to continue the work study program, in conjunction with the College of Marin next year.

TENTATIVE BUDGET — Accepted several tentative budget recommendations prepared by Interim Supt. Robert E. Spain, including a recommendation that Gabe Johnson, community worker at Central School be assigned to the district office until his position and salary can be clarified.

BOYD MUSEUM — Agreed to contract with the Louis A. Boyd Science Museum to provide programs for students next year.

DOCUMENTS — Authorized the interim superintendent to sign certain documents, including contracts of employment and payroll and purchase orders.

2 Officers Charged In Murder Of Viets

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)— Two decorated Army officers accused of ordering their men to fire into Vietnamese homes were also charged today with murder and assault with intent to murder.

A spokesman at this infantry center said the new charges against Capt. Vincent N. Hartmann, 35, Scranton, Pa., and 1st Lt. Robert G. Lee Jr., 23, of Springfield, Mo., alleged the "premeditated murder of a Vietnamese female and assault with intent to murder a Vietnamese male."

Weak In Mind Only

DORDRECHT, Netherlands (UPI) — Mentally deficient persons live longer than normal people because of regular living and eating habits and better medical care, according to a survey by the Dutch Association for Treatment of Handicapped Persons.

Waldo Point Marinas Are Approved

Development of two houseboat marinas in the area served by the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District was approved last night by the district board, president Cyril G. Hansen reported.

The board granted a requisition from Donlon J. Arques to construct the first stage (50 boats) of a 150-boat facility at Waldo Point. Directors approved on condition Arques construct a pumping plant and force main according to district standards and turn ownership of the equipment over to the district.

A 35-unit marina being developed north of Rosedale Canal by George Kappas also was given the go-ahead by the board.

Hansen said the marinas are the first such facilities approved under a new Marin County ordinance setting standards for houseboat marinas.

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District also:

ORDINANCE — Set service charges for 1970-71 at $12 for single family homes in Sausalito and $15 for single family dwellings outside the city limits.

CONTRACT — Approved a contract for various engineering services needed by the district with Hoffman and Albritton, San Rafael engineering firm. Rates agreed on by the board include a $60 a month retainer fee, plus hourly rates ranging from $8 to $25, depending on the kind of service provided.

Bread Proves Good Bait To Nab Baboon

PARAMOUNT, Calif. (AP) — Bananas weren't available so sheriff's deputies used bread to coax Charley, a runaway 40-pound baboon, onto the patio of a house.

They threw blankets over Charley and held him down until animal shelter workers arrived.

Ex-U.S. Justice 'Apprehensive'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Tom C. Clark, the former U.S. Supreme Court judge who expects to try his first case July 20, says he is apprehensive.

Clark, who served 18 years on the highest court although he had never been a trial lawyer, is sitting now in Federal District Court.

"Never having sat in a trial court, I had some apprehension —and I still do," he said Monday.

Prison Time For Theft Of Yacht

A 30-year-old parole violator who admitted that he stole a $60,000 yacht belonging to San Francisco nightclub owner Joseph Finocchio yesterday was sentenced again to state prison.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court ordered that Duane LeRoy Dittus serve a term to run concurrently with any other sentences he is serving.

Dittus was arrested aboard the Lady Eve III in Tomales Bay on June 3 and was also accused of having property aboard stolen from other San Rafael yachts.

This charge as well as counts of having stolen a boat from a Long Beach man and wrecking it were dismissed when Dittus pleaded guilty to stealing the Lady Eve.

The yacht was reported missing June 1 from Lowrie's Yacht Harbor, San Rafael.

Irish Lawmaker Fights Jail Term

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Bernadette Devlin, member of British Parliament from Northern Ireland, has appealed a six-month prison sentence for inciting a riot during disturbances in Londonderry last August.

Her attorney said "the substance of her defense was that she genuinely and reasonably believed the people of Bogside were in danger of attack by police."

He said Miss Devlin, 23, did throw a stone during the riots but it went near no one and was only a gesture.

Small Business Loan Requirements Eased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Small Business Administration (SBA) says it now will make loans to disaster victims of as much as $4,300 without requiring collateral.

SBA Administrator Hilary Sandoval, making the announcement Tuesday, said that only $2,500 of such loans would require repayment. Under previous regulations, unsecured disaster loans could be made only if the amount to be repaid did not exceed $1,000.

Mieuli Threatens To Split Up Pro Cage Merger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Franklin Mieuli, a stubborn opponent of the already approved professional basketball merger, believes he has enough backing to call for a second vote which might split the leagues apart.

The owner of the San Francisco Warriors of the established National Basketball Association threatened Monday to wreck the merger unless the Denver Rockets of the younger American Basketball Association relinquish what he called their "unethical" hold on a newly signed player. Mieuli said NBA owners approved the merger last Thursday only after assurances that the ABA Rockets would nullify their contract with Michigan State star Ralph Simpson. The Rockets signed Simpson for $1 million despite the fact Simpson had two years of college eligibility remaining.

"At least three owners were ready to vote against the merger until they were assured Simpson's contract would be nullified," Mieuli told a news conference. "And as it was, the merger proposal received no more than the minimum number of votes."

Mieuli said he would ask for a special meeting of NBA executives to reconsider the merger, unless the ABA Denver club agrees to give up Simpson.

"They've got to agree that Simpson will not play in the pros until he's finished with college, and then they've got to realize that he'll be up for grabs at that time—he won't be property of Denver," Mieuli said.

"Under NBA by-laws, three owners can get together to call for a re-vote on an issue. I've already got at least two other owners aside from myself."

The Warriors' owner condemned the practice of signing players before their college eligibility runs its course. He also blasted the signing of players before a draft had been held, a practice used by the ABA in its fight for equality with the older NBA.

"This is nothing new to the ABA," Mieuli said. "They did this with Rick Mount, Charlie Scott, Spencer Haywood and I don't know who else. The NBA always has tried to stay in good standing with the colleges. If the ABA wants to join us they'll have to play the game by the rules."

Simpson was signed last Tuesday, a move which irked NBA owners as they readied for merger talks in Atlanta.

But on Wednesday, one day before the merger meeting, ABA President Jack Dolph promised that the Rockets would be penalized $10,000 and the Simpson contract would be nullified.

Executives of the older league went ahead to barely pass the merger. A minimum of 13 votes was needed, and the count wound up a close 13-4.

One day after the agreement, Denver President Donald W. Ringsby said, "We're not giving up on Ralph Simpson as a Denver Rocket by any means."

"If the NBA owners had known this before we sat down to vote," Mieuli said, "I'm sure the merger would not have been approved."

Mieuli said if another meeting was called to reconsider the merger, it would be on the grounds that "conditions have changed since we took our vote."

She's Having A Ball, Tennis, That Is

San Rafael tennis star Sharon Walsh, who today was making her long-awaited debut in the Wimbledon classic, has had a ball in her tour of England, according to cards and letters to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh.

"She's been well-chaperoned, too," said Les Walsh this morning as he awaited word of his 18-year-old daughter's first match against Patti Hogan of La Jolla. "Her last letter said she and her doubles partner, Gail Hansen, struck up an acquaintance with two London Bobbies and teamed up with them in a mixed doubles tournament. They've nicknamed the Bobbies 'Daffodil' and Gunghi.'

"Also, Sharon met a detective from Scotland Yard named Ian Hotchkiss whose wife has taken her on a tour of London — places the average tourist wouldn't see. She'll have a lot to tell us when she get home."

Moore Back On Sports Scene

IT'S GOOD to see Harry J. Moore, assistant principal at San Marin High School, back on the sports beat. Harry, former coach at Marin Catholic and Novato high schools, has hastily organized a late entry from San Marin sector in the Joe DiMaggio League.

CRAIG MURRAY, former president of Sears Point International Raceway, is back in the securities business with Waldron & Co. of San Rafael but still active in the late model stock car market.

Murray finished eighth, best of the independent entries, in the Trans-American race at Laguna Seca this spring and hopes to drive his 1968 Camaro in the Trans-Am at Sears Point next September. That's if the Sonoma County motorsports facility is open then.

Jaycees In Charge Of Things

The San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce has taken over the financially troubled raceway for two sports car events, the Continental Grand Prix this weekend and Sonoma Summersport July 11-12, and the financial results of those promotions will determine the track's immediate future.

"If the Jaycees just break even," said Murray, "then they should be given the Trans-Am promotion in September to collect some gravy."

Meanwhile, Filmways, Inc. of Hollywood is still trying to sell SPIR and it ain't selling like hotcakes.

Honest Devil, That Giddings

FISH AND GAME writer Al Giddings is an honest devil, I tellya. I mean, last week Big Al wrote about the favorable upcoming abalone tides, reminded his readers of fish and game regulations, then concluded his article with, "See you there."

Big Al is a warden for the Department of Fish and Game and I think it's pretty big of him to advertise his whereabouts.

And, apparently it paid off, because in today's column our ace field and stream scrivener reports "fewer violations out on the abalone beds." (At times the game warden sounds like the chief of the vice squad.)

By the way, Giddings is one of the best wardens in the state. Why, he's so straight he won't eat poached eggs because he thinks they're afowl of the law.

Mays Acting Like A Youngster

McCormick Hurls For S.F. Tonight

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Willie Mays, belying the body of a 39-year-old man, is making his way toward hit No. 3000 in a manner befitting a superstar.

Mays lashed a pair of homers Monday night, his 16th and 17th this season, to help the San Francisco Giants swamp Cincinnati 13-6.

NEEDS 14 MORE

Despite being in the twilight of his outstanding career, Mays is not merely inching along in quest of his 3000th hit. He's been stepping steadily toward his goal and his batting average proves it. Mays is hitting .290 and needs only 14 hits to reach the magic number.

The homers were among 17 hits by the Giants, who helped Rich Robertson achieve his fifth victory against six losses.

Mays opened the scoring with first blast and doubles by Willie McCovey, Ken Henderson and Dick Dietz made it 3-0 in the first.

But Cincinnati blasted Robertson for five runs in the bottom of the frame. Manager Charlie Fox stuck with Robertson, who wound up going the distance, allowing only six hits and cracking his first major league in the final inning.

Trailing 5-3, San Francisco exploded for six runs in the third, largely on doubles by Bobby Bonds and Alan Gallagher. Then Henderson tripled home McCovey in the sixth and Mays and Dietz homered in the eighth to set up Robertson's finishing blow.

The victory was the third straight for the Giants but left them a big 14 1-2 games behind the Reds in the National League West. Mike McCormick (2-2), San Francisco's veteran southpaw, tries to make it four in a row tonight against Cincinnati righthander Gary Nolan (7-4).

2 Marin Survivors In Golf

Warren Richter and Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael are Marin county's first qualifying round survivors in the California State Amateur Golf Championship, which began yesterday on the Pebble Beach and Cypress Point courses at Pebble Beach.

Sam Reeves, a cotton broker from Fresno, was the only player to break par as he took the lead with a one - under 71 at fog-shrouded Cypress Point. In second and third, also at Cypress, were Bill Fell with a 73 and San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie at 74.

WIND

Heavy winds and the fog combined to keep the scores high as the field of 203 fought for the 64 places in the match play tournament that begins tomorrow. Forecasts called for the same weather today, indicating that the cut will be made at 15 over par 159.

Richter, a division manager for Union Carbide, toured Cypress in 38-44 — 82 to put him in a bad position for today's second round at tougher Pebble Beach, where scores were generally higher yesterday.

PALACIO'S 84

Palacio, who won the state title in 1936, had a 42-42 — 84 at Pebble and is in real danger of missing the cut.

Two other Marin county players qualified for the state championships, but only Buzz Beattie of Ross entered, and he withdrew yesterday after a horrible first round. Doug Francisco of San Rafael had to skip the tournament because of summer school commitments.

There is no defending champion on this year because Forrest Fezler, the 1969 winner, joined the pro circuit last fall. A number of California state amateur champions have taken that rout over the years.

A'S GET TOMMY DAVIS

Segui Fine As Starter

By STEVE TOOMAJIAN

OAKLAND (UPI) —Diego Segui, undependable in short relief and inconsistent in long relief, may be just what the Oakland A's are looking for as a starter.

Segui made his first start of 1970 Monday night and hurled seven strong innings. But he wasn't around to get the win when pinchhitter Frank Fernandez led off the ninth with a line drive homer into the leftfield bleachers to give the A's a 2-1 victory over Kansas City.

"I got a blister on my thumb around the sixth inning, but I felt real strong," Segui said. "I think the blister will be okay by my next turn, but John (McNamara) decided he didn't want to take any chances tonight."

McNamara, A's manager, inserted the 32-year-old Cuban righthander into the starting rotation when John Odom, top hurler for Oakland the past two years, was put on the disabled list with a bad elbow.

Odom's physical miseries this year have left the A's with Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson as the club's only experienced starters. Rollie Fingers has helped, but he's nowhere near being a consistent distance man. So Segui's test in the rotation is a key to Oakland's pennant hopes.

The wa's, by winning Monday night, stayed 5 1-2 games away from first place Minnesota in the American League West. Dobson (6-6) goes tonight against righthander Dick Drago (5-4) of Kansas City.

A's owner Charlie Finley shelled out plenty of cash Monday to pick up the club's newest face. He's Tommy Davis, former two-time National League batting champ.

Davis, now 31, was hitting .282 with 30 runs batted in for the Houston Astros. But the Astros, figuring Davis' speed and fielding ability had slackened, placed the veteran outfielder on the waiver list. The A's paid the $20,000 waiver price and assumed Davis' estimated $75,000 contract.

"We'll use Tommy as a pinchhitter at first," McNamara said. "Obviously, I'm happy to get him. With his credentials, he's got to help us."

McNamara now has a surplus of outfielders, all of whom are good hitters. But with Rick Monday on military reserve duty until July 3, and with Joe Rudi scheduled for two weeks later on, McNamara may find the personnel overload worthwhile.

McNamara also is blessed with depth behind the plate. Though he's got only two catchers, both have battled on even terms throughout the season.

Fernandez came off the bench to break a 1-1 tie with his ninth homer, but McNamara said he'll stick with Dave Duncan as the first string backstop for the time being.

Fernandez' blast gave the victory to reliever Bob Locker, who fired two scoreless innings and may be used more frequently in order to take the bullpen load off Grant.

Sal Bando had given the A's a 1-0 lead with his 14th homer in the fifth inning. But in the seventh, Paul Schaal doubled for the Royals and came home when Pat Kelly's grounder went through the legs of A's second baseman John Donaldson.

McNamara was pleased by the work of Locker, who was acquired last week from Milwaukee. He said the Locker, Davis and Steve Hovley deals were wise ones for which A's owner Charlie Finley and the coaching staff worked in concert.

"I'll say one thing," McNamara said. "We've got an owner who's not letting any expense stand in the way of improving the ballclub."

Maggard Thinking Ahead

BERKELEY (UPI) — University of California track and field coach Dave Maggard already is thinking about a second NCAA championship.

His Golden Bears stunned the sports world over the weekend by winning the NCAA championship meet in Des Moines, Iowa, against an outstanding set of teams including Oregon, Kansas and UCLA.

"I would like to fill some vacancies that we'll have next season," Maggard said. "For one thing, we'll need a sprinter to take the place of Don Couser, a member of our champion 440 relay team."

Maggard said his team also could use help in the pole vault, high jump, shot put and distance races.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS

Women Take The Court

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—America's Billie Jean King and Australia's Margaret Court took to the courts today rated even favorites to win the ladies singles title in the 84th Wimbledon tennis tturnament.

Both Mrs. King, three time Wimbledon champion, and Mrs. Court, who has won the title twice, had easy opening round matches and an added bonus in that Britain's Ann Jones will not be defending her crown this year.

(Sharon Walsh of San Rafael will be going against Patti Hogan of LaJolla, Calif., in another opening round women's match.)

Mrs. Jones, who defeated Billie Jean in the 1969 final, announced earlier this year she would not defend the title on grounds the pro-British Wimbledon crowds would demand too much of her in willing another rare British victory.

Mrs. King, of Berkeley, Calif., the No. 2 seed, opens against Miss F. Bonicelli of Peru, and Mrs. Court meets countrymate Suzanne Alexander.

In the opening round of men's singles Monday, Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia was the only seed in trouble, fighting back from 2-6, 5-7 down to 6-3, 6-2 before his match against Russia's Alexander Metreveli was called because of darkness.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., the man many experts figure Laver will have to beat for his third consecutive title, trounced British professional Graham Stilwell 6-3, 6-2, 6-1, outclassing the Briton with the best backhand in the business.

America's top-ranked Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., the seventh seed, overcame trouble with his service which cost him the first set against Jaime Fillol of Chile to advance to the next round, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Clark Graebner of New York, the ninth seed, brought his big service under control to dispose of Herald Elschenbroich of West Germany, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., the 15th seed, advanced when veteran Italian Nicola Pietrangeli returned too late from the World Cup Soccer in Mexico to make the Wimbledon deadline.

Walton Plea Refused

By PAT ANGLE

Despite a favorable report of progress made this year at Martin Luther King School and pleas from a number of parents, the Sausalito School District board last night refused to reconsider its decision to continue legal steps to remove King Principal Sidney F. Waton Jr. from his post.

Following a one-and-a-half-hour closed session yesterday, the board, by a 2-1 vote, voted to accept the charges against Walton prepared by the former board in May and take no action to reinstate him.

It was clear that many of the approximately 80 persons who attended last night's meeting were waiting eagerly for the opportunity to discuss Walton's dismissal with newly-elected trustees Jerry L. Whitcomb and Dalta Christ, who voted yetserday to go ahead with the firing.

Their chance came when the board discussed plans for a survey of parents to determine how many children will be enrolled in the district next year.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson, the only trustee who voted to drop the charges against the principal, said he felt the survey should include a question asking parents how they felt about the firing.

Whitcomb and Mrs. Christ disagreed and said they thought a paragraph asking parents for any comments about what is going on in the district was sufficient.

"We still don't know if Sid will be principal next year," said Ruby Carter, a Marin City parent. 'Until this question is answered, how can we send in a report on where our children will be attending school next year?"

Royce McLemore, another Marin City parent, offered to present the board a survey of 201 parents whose youngsters attend King School, a survey she said strongly supported Walton.

Mrs. McLemore told the board 136 of those questioned favored rehiring the principal and 74 opposed his reinstatement. "Will this have any effect on your decision to go ahead with the firing of Sid?" she asked the board.

Mrs. Christ did not answer, but Whitcomb said, "Royce, in all honesty, no, it will not affect my decision."

Whitcomb said he had studied the Walton question "in great depth" in the last several days and "I did satisfy myself. I won't say everything I do is irrevocable," he said, "but I won't allow public pressure to change my decision."

Robert R. Lyon, chairman of Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, a group which initiated the recall election that brought Whitcomb and Mrs. Christ to the board, said he felt the election vote had shown the voting community "has demanded" Walton's ouster.

A parent answered that although the black community has more than 50 per cent of the children in the district, it does not have the numerical power at the polls.

Mrs. McLemore asked how the new trustees, who campaigned on the issue that the former board and superintendent had not been honest with the public, could accept that board's evaluation of Walton.

"We were hoping Mrs. Christ and Mr. Whitcomb would come on the board with open minds and see for themselves what is happening, but it seems they are basing their ideas on what they have heard," Mrs. Carter said.

"If they are going to put charges against Mr. Walton, they should at least make their own," said Danny Horowitz, 10, a King student.

Walton, who had remained silent during the two-and-a-half hour exchange, made a quiet, but eloquent plea for a chance to work with the new board.

"I think I can help you solve your problems," he told the board, adding that in the past he had been "forced to deal with dishonest adults and expected to cover up their lies."

He said he had showed anger and hostility toward the former board "because I was frustrated, because they insulted my intelligence.

"I am certain I can work with you if you are honest Walton said, "and I feel I can put this district back on its feet.

He said he would like an opportunity to work with the new board. "No one can have his own way all the time, me, you, anyone. We've got to find a way to work it out. We ought to sit down and establish guidelines on how this district is run," Walton added.

Seadrift Rezone Plea Is Rejected

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday rejected an application from the William Kent Estate Co. to rezone property in the company's Seadrift development on Bolinas Lagoon from single family to planned multiple family residential. (See another story, page 1.)

Discussion of the application opened with Roger Kent of Kentfield, representing the company, asking that the commission not take action on the application at yesterday's meeting.

He said that much of the opposition to the proposal — and much was evident in yesterday's audience — was due to a lack of communication.

The rezoning had been recommended by the planning department staff.

Alvin Zelver, a San Francisco planning consultant, argued that by constructing multiple family dwellings, the Kent company would be able to leave several open spaces in the development which would not be possible if single family dwellings are built one after another in a row.

The open spaces would protect the views of present Seadrift property owners, he said.

The property owners, however, strongly disagreed. Henry W. Wagner Jr., president of the Seadrift Property Owners Association, told the commission that the members of the association were "almost overwhelmingly against this rezoning."

The height of multiple family dwellings would destroy the low profile of the area, he said.

More than a dozen other property owners, as well as several conservationists, spoke against the application.

Proctor P. Jones of 290 Seadrift Road, had the names of 45 other property owners for whom he spoke in opposition to the plan.

The plan was opposed on the grounds that the multiple family dwellings might upset the natural state of Bolinas Lagoon, create additional pollution in the area, be a fire and earthquake hazard, and open the area to a more commercial type development.

The commission denied the application 4-1 vote. Chairman Walter F. Freitas, who voted against denial, said that he was sorry action on the matter was not postponed. A delay "might have produced a more satisfactory result for everyone," he said and advised Kent that the commission's action could be appealed to the board of supervisors.

The Marin County Planning Commission Also:

HOUSEBOATS — Rejected a planning department recommendation to deny an R-C-R (resort and commercial recreation district) use permit to George Kappas for 35 houseboats at Gate 6½ in Richardson Bay; directed the department staff to recommend conditions for approval, and continued the item until its next regular meeting, July 13.

SIGN — Upheld the appeal of the Barber Sign Co. of the planning department's decision denying a sign review application for a free-standing sign at the Marin French Cheese Factory on the Point Reyes-Petaluma Road, west of Novato.

LAWSON — Granted Merle Lawson a use permit to enlarge his recreational facility near Dillon Beach. He is to underground all utilities, check with the public works department to see if all new trailer spaces are safe from sliding and grant a 20 foot public easement above average high tide for pedestrian use.

IMPROVEMENTS — Granted the First Congregational Church of San Rafael an appeal from the design committee requirements of an improvement bond on North San Pedro Road. The church is to install the improvements on Merrydale Road, but only a sidewalk on San Pedro Road.

Fairfax Man Breaks Wrist In Accident

The California Highway Patrol reported Robert Benson of 200 Bolinas Road was hurt when his motorcycle hit the rear of a car driven by Michele Curtin, 16, of 325 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, at 9:15 p.m. yesterday on Highway 101 between Marin City and Alto.

School Board Meeting

The Novato Unified School District board, scheduled to hold a special budget meeting at 8 p.m., today, will hold a closed meeting at 7:45 p.m. to discuss naming a principal to Hill Junior High School, according to Supt. James G. Bunker. The open board meeting will not start until 8:30 p.m., he said.

Bolinas-Stinson District Sets $210,000 Bond Issue

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board last night agreed to ask district residents to approve a $210,000 bond issue September 15 to finance construction of a one-campus school facility on the Bolinas school site, according to Avis Pattison, district secretary.

The board's attorney, Richard V. Godino, said the increase in the district tax rate which would result from the bond issue cannot be determined until school officials decide what time period to establish for bond redemption. The total tax rate is now $2.325 per $100 assessed valuation.

The bond issue would finance a $218,000 plan to locate all students in one school on one site. Included in the proposal, presented to trustees earlier by architect Richard A. Borgstrom, is purchase of a quarter-acre of land to the south of Bolinas School.

Last night trustees accepted drawings for the classroom building which Borgstrom estimates will cost $34,400 and agreed to pay the architect $2,700 for completed plans.

After a closed session with its attorney, the board authorized Godino to negotiate with Mrs. Arthur Bourne for purchase of the quarter-acre site. The board set a price range for the land which Godino did not divulge.

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board also:

STINSON SALE — Agreed to offer, for public sale, the 1.6-acre Stinson School site for $18,500.

BOOKKEEPER — Eliminated the position of part-time bookkeeper from next year's budget, since the district can receive free bookkeeping services from the Marin County Schools Office.

Yes, People Can Indeed Live On Air

LONDON (UPI) — Whatever prospective fathers-in-law may say, people can live on air. At least, certain representatives of the human race may have developed this ability, according to the Nutrition Section of the Australian Department of Health.

In the highlands of New Guinea there are tribes which are of generally good physique although they eat a highly limited diet principally based on sweet potatoes. They rarely have any meat and supplement the sweet potatoes when they can with other root vegetables, corn, leafy greens and bananas.

This is too low an intake of proteins and fats to explain their general physical condition, and Dr. E. H. Hipsley and his associates wondered how they were getting protein nitrogen in view of the basic assumption that it can only be obtained from food.

The weekly Medical News-Tribune said the investigators advanced the hypothesis that the New Guinea highlanders might be able to convert atmospheric nitrogen into useful protein, a metabolic process that has always been assumed to be impossible.

To test this theory, Dr. Hipsley's group measured the amount of food nitrogen intake and excretion of New Guinea highlanders eating their traditional diet and a number of medical students eating their normal diet.

They found that the nitrogen intake of the students equalled their output, as expected. But the tribesmen bafflingly excreted twice as much nitrogen as they had ingested.

Now research is underway to discover if there are microorganisms in the intestines of the highlanders able to convert atmospheric nitrogen into protein.

Court Extends Right To Vote On Bond Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that states may not restrict voting on general obligation bonds to property owners.

In a 5-3 decision in a Phoenix, Ariz., case, the high court said that "the differences between the interests of property owners and. . .non-property owenrs are not sufficiently substantial to justify excluding the latter from the franchise."

Report Cites Year's Progress At Martin Luther King School

A favorable report on academic and social progress at Martin Luther King School during the past school year was presented to the Sausalito School District board last night by King Principal Sidney F. Walton Jr.

Although Walton candidly admitted that not all of the school's problems have been solved during his nine-month administration, he indicated significant strides had been made.

James T. Toliver Jr., King vice principal who, with Walton and teacher Armando Flores, made the presentation, said one of the most heartening achievements was in the area of discipline, a serious problem at the school for many years.

Toliver reported that 356 discipline cases had been referred to the principal's office this year, as compared to 1,100 referrals for the same period last year.

"The most beneficial gain was in the area of parent involvement in solving their children's discipline problems," Toliver said, adding that initial parental involvement often lapped into the area of academic progress.

Walton said the program of teacher in-service training which he initiated this year had been a great success. "This program brought about academic order and progress that previously did not exist," he said. "Morale was high" among teachers, he added.

Flores told the board a poll of teachers to evaluate Walton's performance as an administrator, taken in late April, showed the staff thought the principal was doing "a very good job."

Walton presented the board with progress reported from eight of the school's 26 teachers and said the remaining reports from teachers would be given to the board later this week.

He said there had been considerable improvement in reading, mathematics, language arts and social studies, which the teacher reprots seemed to document.

"At the beginning of this year, I promised the parents one year's academic progress for one year in school and I think we have given this," he said.

Walton admitted the students' ability to use the library was not as good as he would like and said the progress of sixth graders in some subjects, such as language arts, also left something to be desired. He said sixth graders have had to work with substitute teachers a great deal this year, since the class's regular teacher had been out much of the time due to illness.

He said the student grievance procedures he has initiated at King School have provided "a meaningful . . . way to dealing with problems that averts violent confrontation.

"A lot of problems — no solutions — were dumped in my lap when I came here," he said and added he felt many of them had been dealt with during his administration.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson called the report "pretty exciting and quite informative."

The Sausalito School District Board Also:

CLASSIFIED EMPLOYEES — Agreed not to cut 15 classified positions for next year until the board can study the 1970-71 tentative budget. The positions had been recommended eliminated by former Supt. Phillip W. Schneider.

BUDGET — Set a meeting to consider the budget for July 13 at 7:30 p.m. at Bayside School.

SALARY PLACEMENT — Voted to reinstate Toliver's salary to an administrative level of $14,024 a year. Last week Schneider informed the vice principal that, although the former board had agreed to return him to an administrative post next year, his salary was being cut to approximately $11,000, the equivalent of a teaching salary.

ENROLLMENT — Heard a report that district enrollment had dropped during the year from 733 to 687 students.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Heard a report on interdistrict attendance agreements with Mill Valley. Although the board took no action, Johnson said he saw no reason why the program should not be continued next year.

WORK STUDY — Voted to continue the work study program, in conjunction with the College of Marin next year.

TENTATIVE BUDGET — Accepted several tentative budget recommendations prepared by Interim Supt. Robert E. Spain, including a recommendation that Gabe Johnson, community worker at Central School be assigned to the district office until his position and salary can be clarified.

BOYD MUSEUM — Agreed to contract with the Louis A. Boyd Science Museum to provide programs for students next year.

DOCUMENTS — Authorized the interim superintendent to sign certain documents, including contracts of employment and payroll and purchase orders.

2 Officers Charged In Murder Of Viets

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)— Two decorated Army officers accused of ordering their men to fire into Vietnamese homes were also charged today with murder and assault with intent to murder.

A spokesman at this infantry center said the new charges against Capt. Vincent N. Hartmann, 35, Scranton, Pa., and 1st Lt. Robert G. Lee Jr., 23, of Springfield, Mo., alleged the "premeditated murder of a Vietnamese female and assault with intent to murder a Vietnamese male."

Weak In Mind Only

DORDRECHT, Netherlands (UPI) — Mentally deficient persons live longer than normal people because of regular living and eating habits and better medical care, according to a survey by the Dutch Association for Treatment of Handicapped Persons.

Waldo Point Marinas Are Approved

Development of two houseboat marinas in the area served by the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District was approved last night by the district board, president Cyril G. Hansen reported.

The board granted a requisition from Donlon J. Arques to construct the first stage (50 boats) of a 150-boat facility at Waldo Point. Directors approved on condition Arques construct a pumping plant and force main according to district standards and turn ownership of the equipment over to the district.

A 35-unit marina being developed north of Rosedale Canal by George Kappas also was given the go-ahead by the board.

Hansen said the marinas are the first such facilities approved under a new Marin County ordinance setting standards for houseboat marinas.

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District also:

ORDINANCE — Set service charges for 1970-71 at $12 for single family homes in Sausalito and $15 for single family dwellings outside the city limits.

CONTRACT — Approved a contract for various engineering services needed by the district with Hoffman and Albritton, San Rafael engineering firm. Rates agreed on by the board include a $60 a month retainer fee, plus hourly rates ranging from $8 to $25, depending on the kind of service provided.

FISH AND GAME

Several Changes Noted In Licenses And Tags

By AL GIDDINGS

The sports shops that are licensed agents for the Department of Fish and Game have received the 1970-71 hunting licenses and tags. There are several changes this year which should be noted by both the agents and the license buyers.

THERE WILL be a pheasant stamp this year instead of pheasant tags. The new hunting license application forms have been redesigned to include space for the pheasant stamp, and, like the 1970 fishing license applications, they also commemorate the centennial of the fish and game commission and department.

The new hunting application forms are to be used for each license issued, so the licensee will have a license that will accomodate the pheasant stamp. Do not renew expired licenses by placing the new license over the old one. Every hunting license buyer should complete a new application.

LEGISLATION ENACTED last year placed mountain lions among the protected game animals, requiring the new lion tags this year. The fee for lion tags is $1 per set. The lion tags come in sets of two; but there is no limit on the number of lions a person may take. However, each lion must be tagged.

If a person uses both tags purchased by him, he may take or mail the cover (instruction sheet) of the tag set to a Fish and Game office and obtain another set without fee.

The additional no-fee lion tags are available only through the Fish and Game Department offices. With an estimated population of 600 lions throughout the state of California, it will be a rarity for anyone to need extra tags.

OVER THE weekend, there seemed to be fewer violations out on the abalone beds. At the Palamarin Ranch near Bolinas in the National Seashore, 24 of the 58 people checked by the ranger had limits. Jim Rose, the ranger checking the area, reported that one person found a 10-inch abalone on a rock out of the water.

THE GAME wardens decided to try a night fishing check at the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and some of the Sausalito hot spots for stripers. Would you believe there were even some people crabbing at 3 o'clock in the morning? And one bass fisherman was casting a bugeye in another closed area. Even in the thick fog of the night people were out.

Legal fishing time in San Francisco and San Pablo bays is one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset. If you use the tide book for the sunrise and sunset tables, be sure you add the one hour to compensate for the tables being written in Pacific Standard Time instead of Daylight Saving Time.

THE STRIPED bass fishing was still slow, though a trickling of fish was checked, most in the Sausalito area to the Golden Gate Bridge, generally taken by shore casters. They are a hardy bunch, usually starting at dawn. The largest fish noted was a 30-pounder. Things have just got to start picking up!

MARIN PREP ALL-STAR GAME

Redwood Coach 'Stuffed Ballot Box'

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Back in the mid-1950s, the fans in Cincinnati stuffed the ballot baxes and succeeded in electing all eight Redleg regulars to the National League All-Star team's starting lineup.

Seven players from Redwood High School were in the starting lineup for the first Marin County Athletic League North-South all star game last Thursday night in San Rafael.

Unlike the Cincinnati fiasco, the fans had nothing to do with Redwood's coup. Nor, for that matter, did the coaches from the other teams, who proportioned the South fairly with eight players from Redwood, four from Tamalpais and two each from the league's last place teams, Marin Catholic and Drake.

It was the South coach, Al Endriss from Redwood, who decided that only shortstop Jim McCammon of Tam was worthy of starting among his MCAL champion Giants. Rick Fox, the other non-Redwood starter, was the only catcher on the team.

Both Endriss and North coach Mike Quinn of San Marin eventually used all 16 players on their rosters. Quinn started four from his club, three from Terra Linda, and one each from San Rafael and Novato.

On paper, Endriss did the right thing. All seven Giants were either first or second team all league selections. Yet this was an all-star game, not a Redwood game. If he intended to play everyone, how much would it have hurt to start one of the players from Drake? And perhaps another from Tam? That still would have given Redwood five players on the field, more than any other team.

Endriss, of course, coached third.

The North won the game, 3-2.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON Gary Hughes of Marin Catholic, who founded and organized the game, was asked by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department if he thought some additional seats would be needed that night. He thought not.

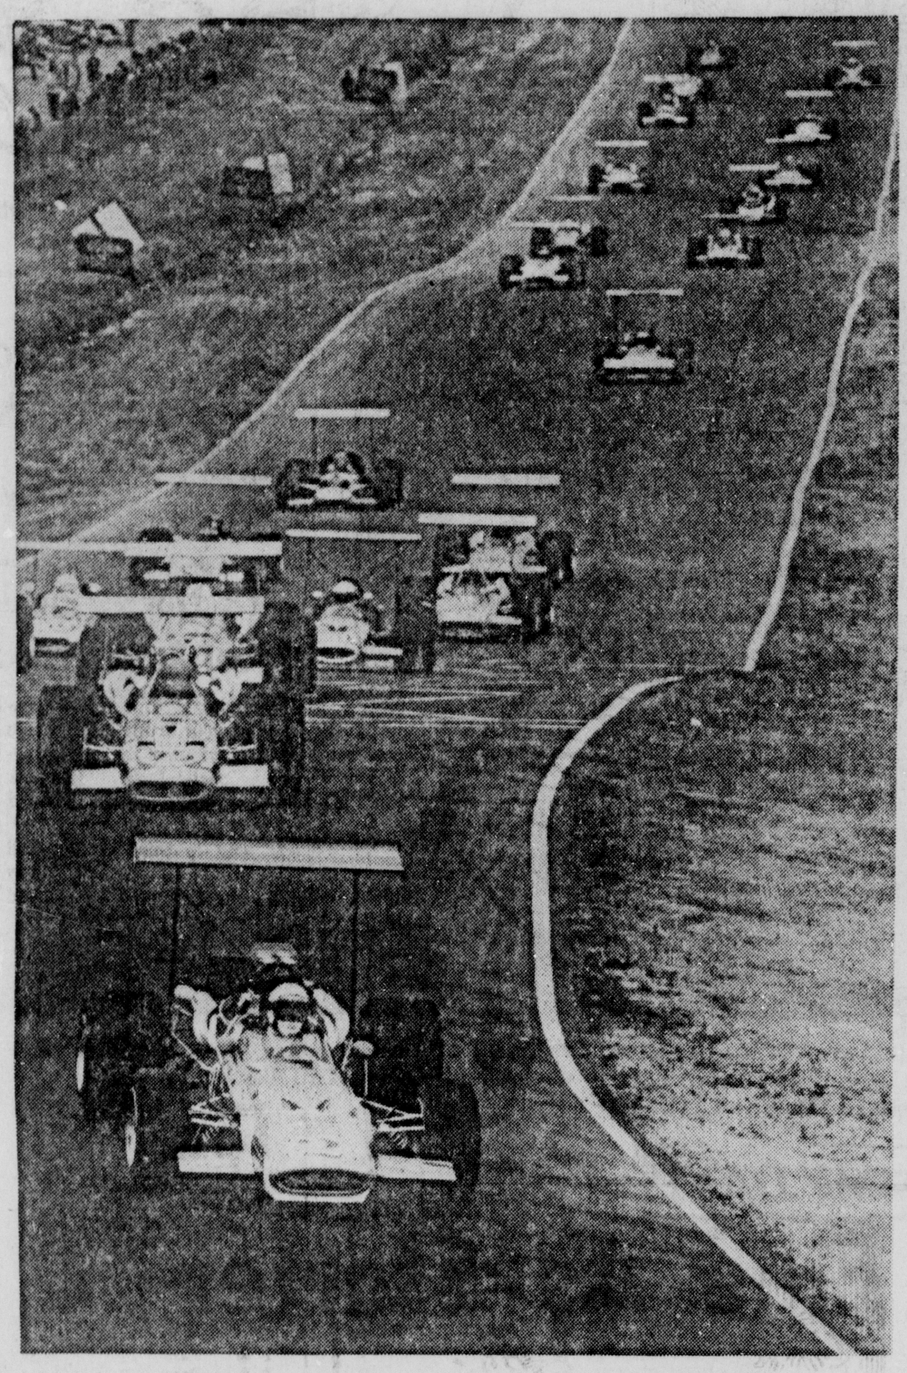
Late in the game, the standing room only crowd having spilled out of the stands and along both outfield lines, Hughes was trying to figure out a way to charge admission to the fans who had accumulated in the softball field stands in centerfield.

"Next year we'll get them," he said with an anxious smile.

In addition to everything else, Hughes was responsible for the baseballs used in the game. It was not strange, therefore, for him to disappear in back of the stands in pursuit of a foul ball. It was a little strange, however, to see a 200-pound man fighting with 10 Little Leaguers.

TERRA LINDA'S star centerfielder Dewey Forry, who played for the North and singled home two runs in the first inning, will report tomorrow to the Los Angeles Dodgers rookie team in Ogden, Utah. He signed Sunday with the National League team for something in the neighborhood of $25,000.

The only other Marin county player drafted by a major league team this year is former Novato shortstop Tom Corder, who this season wrapped up a successful career at San Jose State. Coincidentally, he was also signed by the Dodgers and assigned to Ogden.



FORMULA CARS POINT TO SEARS

This scene will be reenacted at Sears Point International Raceway this weekend when the Formula A Grand Prix cars compete in the Continental Series race. The field will include series leader and defending champion John Cannon. It will be a two-day show under sponsorship of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The tournament final had been delayed Sunday by rain.

Swinging Senior Golfer

By RALPH CHATOIAN

George Kerrigan, veteran golfer from San Rafael, won't have to travel very far this year for the U.S. Golf Association's National Seniors tournament.

After travels to the east, south and midwest for the last five National Seniors, the 62-year-old Kerrigan will be able to stay right here in the Bay Area for the 1970 Seniors, scheduled in September at California Golf Club, South San Francisco.

Past national tournaments have taken him to New York, Atlanta, Tucson, Wichita and Phoenix. Best he did was in 1967 when he reached the quarter-finals in New York.

Kerrigan, an investor who was in the insurance business in his younger days, also is a regular competitor in Northern California Seniors play. In one of the Norcal tourneys he tied for overall low score but lost in the playoffs to three-time winner Cornelius Bertolone.

TOUGHEST COURSE

Northern California Golf Association Seniors tournaments are held at Spyglass Hill golf course in Monterey and Kerrigan, who has played on courses all over, rates it "the toughest course I have ever played."

Last year he had low gross score in the age 60-64 division, 80-82-162.

A member of the Meadow Club in Fairfax, Kerrigan is the seniors champion of the club and held club championship honors in the open class for five years, 1954, '55, '56, '61 and '64.

Born and reared in Palo Alto, Kerrigan did his early golfing at Harding Park and Sharp Park in San Francisco. He began the game when he was 28. He has been living in Marin County for 20 years and has been a member of the Meadow Club since 1952.

BEST IN MARIN

An acquaintance of Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, 53-year-old former California State Golf champion, Kerrigan says, "I'm not in his class. Mat is the best golfer in Marin County, counting any age." Palacio will be eligible for senior events in two years.

Kerrigan, a five-handicapper, says he gets in "around three rounds of golf a week." Being his own boss ("I've been my own boss for as long as I can remember"), he can always find the time for golf, which makes it admittedly convenient for him. Owner of an office building at 710 C Street in San Rafael, he has his office located there.

MARRIED CHILDREN

He is a father of one son and two daughters, all three married.

Showing all the young guys he can still play a mean game of golf, he almost won another club championship last year at the Meadow Club, losing by just one stroke to Ken Gelatti.

"I lost it on the 18th hole when I double bogied," he admitted.

Koss Softballers Defeated, 1-0

A sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning gave San Mateo a 1-0 win over Paul Koss Supply last night in the second round of the Golden Gate Traveling League Tournament.

The loss drops Koss Supply into the loser's bracket. They will face Livermore next Friday night, with the loser of that game being eliminated from the tourney.

Petaluma's Joe Nystrom fired a four-hitter for Koss Supply but was the losing pticher.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Cigars and Hits For Bob Watson

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The 25-year-old utilityman of the Houston Astros became a father a few hours before the Astros' game with San Diego when his wife gave birth to a seven-pound son, Keith. He promptly went out and collected three hits against the Padres to back Don Wilson's three-hit pitching and gave Houston a 4-1 victory.

Watson has been in the Astros' starting lineup for only six games, since last Wednesday when Joe Pepitone, who has some back alimony problems, had to leave the club to appear in civil court in New York. Watson has hit successfully in each of the six games and has collected 10 hits in 24 trips to the plate.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound Watson was thrilled at the birth of his son. "My wife has been expecting a baby since June 10th but she waited until we got back from the road trip," he said.

Watson was also pleased to have a place in the lineup and he'd like to keep a spot after Pepitone returns. He is supposed to be an outfielder-catcher but he's been limited to first base duty since he hurt his arm running into an outfield wall last year. But he thinks he can play the outfield again now.

"I think my arm is good again and I think I can play anywhere," he said as he pointed to his locker where he has several different gloves stored.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 6-0 and 3-2, New York beat Chicago 9-5, Los Angeles topped Atlanta 4-2, San Francisco routed Cincinnati, 13-6, and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh, 6-1, but lost the second game 1-0 in 10 innings.

In the only three games scheduled in the American League, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 4-3, Baltimore beat Boston 9-8 and Oakland nipped Kansas City 2-1.

Byron Browne doubled in two runs in the sixth inning to lead the Phils to the second game victory over Montreal and the doubleheader sweep. Browns, who hit a two-run homer in the first game, wiped out a 2-1 Montreal lead with his double and gave the victory to Rick Wise. In the first game, Woody Fryman pitched a four-hitter to beat Bill Stoneman.

Jim Nelson pitched a six-hitter and Matty Alou singled in Gene Alley from second base in the 10th inning to give Pittsburgh the second game victory over St. Louis. But the Cards won the first game when rookie Jerry Reuss pitched a nine-hitter. The Cards rocked Dock Ellis, who pitched a no-hitter on June 12th, for five runs in the second inning.

Wes Parker, Bill Sudakis and Bill Grabarkewitz tagged Phil Niekro for homers as Los Angeles beat Atlanta. Alan Foster and Jim Brewer, who retired only the final batter, combined for a nine-hitter.

Don Clendenon, who had failed 10 straight times as a pinch-hitter, hit a three-run homer in the eighth to snap a 5-5 tie and lead New York past Chicago. The victory moved the Mets to within 2 1-2 games of the Cubs in the East Division and was the sixth in the last eight games for the Mets. The have lost four of the last five.

Terra Linda Quint Tops Tamalpais

Terra Linda defeated Tamalpais, 59-54 in the Drake summer basketball league last night in San Anselmo despite a 25 point performance by Tam's James Huff. Bob Buckley had 21 points for Terra Linda.

In other league games, Bob Puitt's 28 points gave Wilson a 55-30 win over the Kettle, and Riordon defeated Balboa, 52-37.

Mieuli Threatens To Split Up Pro Cage Merger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Franklin Mieuli, a stubborn opponent of the already approved professional basketball merger, believes he has enough backing to call for a second vote which might split the leagues apart.

The owner of the San Francisco Warriors of the established National Basketball Association threatened Monday to wreck the merger unless the Denver Rockets of the younger American Basketball Association relinquish what he called their "unethical" hold on a newly signed player. Mieuli said NBA owners approved the merger last Thursday only after assurances that the ABA Rockets would nullify their contract with Michigan State star Ralph Simpson. The Rockets signed Simpson for $1 million despite the fact Simpson had two years of college eligibility remaining.

"At least three owners were ready to vote against the merger until they were assured Simpson's contract would be nullified," Mieuli told a news conference. "And as it was, the merger proposal received no more than the minimum number of votes."

Mieuli said he would ask for a special meeting of NBA executives to reconsider the merger, unless the ABA Denver club agrees to give up Simpson.

"They've got to agree that Simpson will not play in the pros until he's finished with college, and then they've got to realize that he'll be up for grabs at that time—he won't be property of Denver," Mieuli said.

"Under NBA by-laws, three owners can get together to call for a re-vote on an issue. I've already got at least two other owners aside from myself."

The Warriors' owner condemned the practice of signing players before their college eligibility runs its course. He also blasted the signing of players before a draft had been held, a practice used by the ABA in its fight for equality with the older NBA.

"This is nothing new to the ABA," Mieuli said. "They did this with Rick Mount, Charlie Scott, Spencer Haywood and I don't know who else. The NBA always has tried to stay in good standing with the colleges. If the ABA wants to join us they'll have to play the game by the rules."

Simpson was signed last Tuesday, a move which irked NBA owners as they readied for merger talks in Atlanta.

But on Wednesday, one day before the merger meeting, ABA President Jack Dolph promised that the Rockets would be penalized $10,000 and the Simpson contract would be nullified.

Executives of the older league went ahead to barely pass the merger. A minimum of 13 votes was needed, and the count wound up a close 13-4.

One day after the agreement, Denver President Donald W. Ringsby said, "We're not giving up on Ralph Simpson as a Denver Rocket by any means."

"If the NBA owners had known this before we sat down to vote," Mieuli said, "I'm sure the merger would not have been approved."

Mieuli said if another meeting was called to reconsider the merger, it would be on the grounds that "conditions have changed since we took our vote."

She's Having A Ball, Tennis, That Is

San Rafael tennis star Sharon Walsh, who today was making her long-awaited debut in the Wimbledon classic, has had a ball in her tour of England, according to cards and letters to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh.

"She's been well-chaperoned, too," said Les Walsh this morning as he awaited word of his 18-year-old daughter's first match against Patti Hogan of La Jolla. "Her last letter said she and her doubles partner, Gail Hansen, struck up an acquaintance with two London Bobbies and teamed up with them in a mixed doubles tournament. They've nicknamed the Bobbies 'Daffodil' and Gunghi.'

"Also, Sharon met a detective from Scotland Yard named Ian Hotchkiss whose wife has taken her on a tour of London — places the average tourist wouldn't see. She'll have a lot to tell us when she get home."

Moore Back On Sports Scene

IT'S GOOD to see Harry J. Moore, assistant principal at San Marin High School, back on the sports beat. Harry, former coach at Marin Catholic and Novato high schools, has hastily organized a late entry from San Marin sector in the Joe DiMaggio League.

CRAIG MURRAY, former president of Sears Point International Raceway, is back in the securities business with Waldron & Co. of San Rafael but still active in the late model stock car market.

Murray finished eighth, best of the independent entries, in the Trans-American race at Laguna Seca this spring and hopes to drive his 1968 Camaro in the Trans-Am at Sears Point next September. That's if the Sonoma County motorsports facility is open then.

Jaycees In Charge Of Things

The San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce has taken over the financially troubled raceway for two sports car events, the Continental Grand Prix this weekend and Sonoma Summersport July 11-12, and the financial results of those promotions will determine the track's immediate future.

"If the Jaycees just break even," said Murray, "then they should be given the Trans-Am promotion in September to collect some gravy."

Meanwhile, Filmways, Inc. of Hollywood is still trying to sell SPIR and it ain't selling like hotcakes.

Honest Devil, That Giddings

FISH AND GAME writer Al Giddings is an honest devil, I tellya. I mean, last week Big Al wrote about the favorable upcoming abalone tides, reminded his readers of fish and game regulations, then concluded his article with, "See you there."

Big Al is a warden for the Department of Fish and Game and I think it's pretty big of him to advertise his whereabouts.

By the way, Giddings is one of the best wardens in the state. Why, he's so straight he won't eat poached eggs because he thinks they're afowl of the law.

McCormick Hurls For S.F. Tonight

Mays lashed a pair of homers Monday night, his 16th and 17th this season, to help the San Francisco Giants swamp Cincinnati 13-6.

NEEDS 14 MORE

Despite being in the twilight of his outstanding career, Mays is not merely inching along in quest of his 3000th hit. He's been stepping steadily toward his goal and his batting average proves it. Mays is hitting .290 and needs only 14 hits to reach the magic number.

The homers were among 17 hits by the Giants, who helped Rich Robertson achieve his fifth victory against six losses.

Mays opened the scoring with first blast and doubles by Willie McCovey, Ken Henderson and Dick Dietz made it 3-0 in the first.

But Cincinnati blasted Robertson for five runs in the bottom of the frame. Manager Charlie Fox stuck with Robertson, who wound up going the distance, allowing only six hits and cracking his first major league in the final inning.

Trailing 5-3, San Francisco exploded for six runs in the third, largely on doubles by Bobby Bonds and Alan Gallagher. Then Henderson tripled home McCovey in the sixth and Mays and Dietz homered in the eighth to set up Robertson's finishing blow.

The victory was the third straight for the Giants but left them a big 14 1-2 games behind the Reds in the National League West. Mike McCormick (2-2), San Francisco's veteran southpaw, tries to make it four in a row tonight against Cincinnati righthander Gary Nolan (7-4).

2 Marin Survivors In Golf

Warren Richter and Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael are Marin county's first qualifying round survivors in the California State Amateur Golf Championship, which began yesterday on the Pebble Beach and Cypress Point courses at Pebble Beach.

Sam Reeves, a cotton broker from Fresno, was the only player to break par as he took the lead with a one - under 71 at fog-shrouded Cypress Point. In second and third, also at Cypress, were Bill Fell with a 73 and San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie at 74.

WIND

Heavy winds and the fog combined to keep the scores high as the field of 203 fought for the 64 places in the match play tournament that begins tomorrow. Forecasts called for the same weather today, indicating that the cut will be made at 15 over par 159.

Richter, a division manager for Union Carbide, toured Cypress in 38-44 — 82 to put him in a bad position for today's second round at tougher Pebble Beach, where scores were generally higher yesterday.

Palacio, who won the state title in 1936, had a 42-42 — 84 at Pebble and is in real danger of missing the cut.

Two other Marin county players qualified for the state championships, but only Buzz Beattie of Ross entered, and he withdrew yesterday after a horrible first round. Doug Francisco of San Rafael had to skip the tournament because of summer school commitments.

There is no defending champion this year because Forrest Fezler, the 1969 winner, joined the pro circuit last fall. A number of California state amateur champions have taken that route over the years.

A'S GET TOMMY DAVIS

Segui Fine As Starter

By STEVE TOOMAJIAN

OAKLAND (UPI) —Diego Segui, undependable in short relief and inconsistent in long relief, may be just what the Oakland A's are looking for as a starter.

Segui made his first start of 1970 Monday night and hurled seven strong innings. But he wasn't around to get the win when pinchhitter Frank Fernandez led off the ninth with a line drive homer into the leftfield bleachers to give the A's a 2-1 victory over Kansas City.

"I got a blister on my thumb around the sixth inning, but I felt real strong," Segui said. "I think the blister will be okay by my next turn, but John (McNamara) decided he didn't want to take any chances tonight."

McNamara, A's manager, inserted the 32-year-old Cuban righthander into the starting rotation when John Odom, top hurler for Oakland the past two years, was put on the disabled list with a bad elbow.

Odom's physical miseries this year have left the A's with Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson as the club's only experienced starters. Rollie Fingers has helped, but he's nowhere near being a consistent distance man. So Segui's test in the rotation is a key to Oakland's pennant hopes.

The wa's, by winning Monday night, stayed 5 1-2 games away from first place Minnesota in the American League West. Dobson (6-6) goes tonight against righthander Dick Drago (5-4) of Kansas City.

A's owner Charlie Finley shelled out plenty of cash Monday to pick up the club's newest face. He's Tommy Davis, former two-time National League batting champ.

Davis, now 31, was hitting .282 with 30 runs batted in for the Houston Astros. But the Astros, figuring Davis' speed and fielding ability had slackened, placed the veteran outfielder on the waiver list. The A's paid the $20,000 waiver price and assumed Davis' estimated $75,000 contract.

"We'll use Tommy as a pinchhitter at first," McNamara said. "Obviously, I'm happy to get him. With his credentials, he's got to help us."

McNamara now has a surplus of outfielders, all of whom are good hitters. But with Rick Monday on military reserve duty until July 3, and with Joe Rudi scheduled for two weeks later on, McNamara may find the personnel overload worthwhile.

McNamara also is blessed with depth behind the plate. Though he's got only two catchers, both have battled on even terms throughout the season.

Fernandez came off the bench to break a 1-1 tie with his ninth homer, but McNamara said he'll stick with Dave Duncan as the first string backstop for the time being.

Fernandez' blast gave the victory to reliever Bob Locker, who fired two scoreless innings and may be used more frequently in order to take the bullpen load off Grant.

Sal Bando had given the A's a 1-0 lead with his 14th homer in the fifth inning. But in the seventh, Paul Schaal doubled for the Royals and came home when Pat Kelly's grounder went through the legs of A's second baseman John Donaldson.

McNamara was pleased by the work of Locker, who was acquired last week from Milwaukee. He said the Locker, Davis and Steve Hovley deals were wise ones for which A's owner Charlie Finley and the coaching staff worked in concert.

"I'll say one thing," McNamara said. "We've got an owner who's not letting any expense stand in the way of improving the ballclub."

Maggard Thinking Ahead

BERKELEY (UPI) — University of California track and field coach Dave Maggard already is thinking about a second NCAA championship.

His Golden Bears stunned the sports world over the weekend by winning the NCAA championship meet in Des Moines, Iowa, against an outstanding set of teams including Oregon, Kansas and UCLA.

"I would like to fill some vacancies that we'll have next season," Maggard said. "For one thing, we'll need a sprinter to take the place of Don Couser, a member of our champion 440 relay team."

Maggard said his team also could use help in the pole vault, high jump, shot put and distance races.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS

Women Take The Court

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—America's Billie Jean King and Australia's Margaret Court took to the courts today rated even favorites to win the ladies singles title in the 84th Wimbledon tennis tturnament.

Both Mrs. King, three time Wimbledon champion, and Mrs. Court, who has won the title twice, had easy opening round matches and an added bonus in that Britain's Ann Jones will not be defending her crown this year.

(Sharon Walsh of San Rafael will be going against Patti Hogan of LaJolla, Calif., in another opening round women's match.)

Mrs. Jones, who defeated Billie Jean in the 1969 final, announced earlier this year she would not defend the title on grounds the pro-British Wimbledon crowds would demand too much of her in willing another rare British victory.

Mrs. King, of Berkeley, Calif., the No. 2 seed, opens against Miss F. Bonicelli of Peru, and Mrs. Court meets countrymate Suzanne Alexander.

In the opening round of men's singles Monday, Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia was the only seed in trouble, fighting back from 2-6, 5-7 down to 6-3, 6-2 before his match against Russia's Alexander Metreveli was called because of darkness.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., the man many experts figure Laver will have to beat for his third consecutive title, trounced British professional Graham Stilwell 6-3, 6-2, 6-1, outclassing the Briton with the best backhand in the business.

America's top-ranked Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., the seventh seed, overcame trouble with his service which cost him the first set against Jaime Fillol of Chile to advance to the next round, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Clark Graebner of New York, the ninth seed, brought his big service under control to dispose of Herald Elschenbroich of West Germany, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., the 15th seed, advanced when veteran Italian Nicola Pietrangeli returned too late from the World Cup Soccer in Mexico to make the Wimbledon deadline.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1845 the Congress of Texas agreed to the territory's annexation by the United States.

In 1947 the House enacted the Taft-Hartley Act over the veto of President Truman.

In 1964 Gen. Maxwell Taylor was appointed ambassador to Saigon, replacing Henry Cabot Lodge.

A thought for the day: Irish poet James Stephens said, "Women are wiser than men because they know less and understand more."

Remote Arctic Town Will Get Airstrip

BATHURST INLET, N.W.T. (UPI) — A 3,000-foot airstrip is scheduled to be built this summer in this remote Arctic community, according to the Arctic Development Digest.

Situated on the northern coast of the Mackenzie district in the Northwest Territories, Bathurst Inlet was first explored by Sir John Franklin in 1821. It was another 100 years before the first permanent settlement of Europeans was established.

Although caribou, grizzly bear and musk oxen still roam freely in the vicinity, the Digest says the original Hudson's Bay Company trading post has been converted into a "comfortable lodge."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's Not Even Right To Feel Safe With Six Trumps

It's natural to think of conserving your trumps when you have only four of the little beauties, particularly four weak trumps. When you have a solid six-card trump suit, however, you tend to think that they'll last forever. Bridge has a way of teaching us one of life's sad lessons: Nothing is forever.

SOUTH RUFFS

West led the queen of hearts and continued, forcing South to ruff. Declarer then drew trumps, after which he had only one trump left. Beginning to feel a chill breeze on his back, South led the jack of diamonds, hoping to "steal" the trick. If West played low, South could safely switch to clubs.

Too clever to fall for South's little ruse, West stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led another heart, forcing South to ruff with his last trump.

NO WAY OUT

Now there was no way out. South could take his six trumps and three diamonds, but then he was through. Whenever South led a club, West would take the ace of clubs and defeat the contract with another heart trick.

Despite his wealth of trumps, South should have thought of the morrow. After ruffing the second heart South should draw only one round of trumps. Then, leaving one trump in the dummy, South should lead the jack of diamonds.

A THIRD HEART

West takes the ace of diamonds and leads a third heart, forcing South to ruff for the second time. Leaving the trumps alone, South must lead the ten of clubs.

West must step up with the ace of clubs, since otherwise South would draw trumps and run the diamonds. But now South reaps his reward for leaving a trump in the dummy.

West cannot lead a fourth heart since dummy would be able to ruff it. South would then get to his own hand with a diamond or a club to draw trumps and claim his contract.

ANSWER: Bid one heart or pass.

With 11 points in high cards and one point for each doubleton, you have the material for an optional opening bid. Some experts would open this hand, others would pass. Any sensible player would bid one heart if the queen of hearts were changed to the king.

FISH AND GAME

Several Changes Noted In Licenses And Tags

By AL GIDDINGS

The sports shops that are licensed agents for the Department of Fish and Game have received the 1970-71 hunting licenses and tags. There are several changes this year which should be noted by both the agents and the license buyers.

THERE WILL be a pheasant stamp this year instead of pheasant tags. The new hunting license application forms have been redesigned to include space for the pheasant stamp, and, like the 1970 fishing license applications, they also commemorate the centennial of the fish and game commission and department.

The new hunting application forms are to be used for each license issued, so the licensee will have a license that will accomodate the pheasant stamp. Do not renew expired licenses by placing the new license over the old one. Every hunting license buyer should complete a new application.

LEGISLATION ENACTED last year placed mountain lions among the protected game animals, requiring the new lion tags this year. The fee for lion tags is $1 per set. The lion tags come in sets of two; but there is no limit on the number of lions a person may take. However, each lion must be tagged.

If a person uses both tags purchased by him, he may take or mail the cover (instruction sheet) of the tag set to a Fish and Game office and obtain another set without fee.

The additional no-fee lion tags are available only through the Fish and Game Department offices. With an estimated population of 600 lions throughout the state of California, it will be a rarity for anyone to need extra tags.

OVER THE weekend, there seemed to be fewer violations out on the abalone beds. At the Palamarin Ranch near Bolinas in the National Seashore, 24 of the 58 people checked by the ranger had limits. Jim Rose, the ranger checking the area, reported that one person found a 10-inch abalone on a rock out of the water.

THE GAME wardens decided to try a night fishing check at the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and some of the Sausalito hot spots for stripers. Would you believe there were even some people crabbing at 3 o'clock in the morning? And one bass fisherman was casting a bugeye in another closed area. Even in the thick fog of the night people were out.

Legal fishing time in San Francisco and San Pablo bays is one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset. If you use the tide book for the sunrise and sunset tables, be sure you add the one hour to compensate for the tables being written in Pacific Standard Time instead of Daylight Saving Time.

THE STRIPED bass fishing was still slow, though a trickling of fish was checked, most in the Sausalito area to the Golden Gate Bridge, generally taken by shore casters. They are a hardy bunch, usually starting at dawn. The largest fish noted was a 30-pounder. Things have just got to start picking up!

MARIN PREP ALL-STAR GAME

Redwood Coach 'Stuffed Ballot Box'

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Back in the mid-1950s, the fans in Cincinnati stuffed the ballot baxes and succeeded in electing all eight Redleg regulars to the National League All-Star team's starting lineup.

Seven players from Redwood High School were in the starting lineup for the first Marin County Athletic League North-South all star game last Thursday night in San Rafael.

Unlike the Cincinnati fiasco, the fans had nothing to do with Redwood's coup. Nor, for that matter, did the coaches from the other teams, who proportioned the South fairly with eight players from Redwood, four from Tamalpais and two each from the league's last place teams, Marin Catholic and Drake.

It was the South coach, Al Endriss from Redwood, who decided that only shortstop Jim McCammon of Tam was worthy of starting among his MCAL champion Giants. Rick Fox, the other non - Redwood starter, was the only catcher on the team.

Both Endriss and North coach Mike Quinn of San Marin eventually used all 16 players on their rosters. Quinn started four from his club, three from Terra Linda, and one each from San Rafael and Novato.

On paper, Endriss did the right thing. All seven Giants were either first or second team all league selections. Yet this was an all-star game, not a Redwood game. If he intended to play everyone, how much would it have hurt to start one of the players from Drake? And perhaps another from Tam? That still would have given Redwood five players on the field, more than any other team.

Endriss, of course, coached third.

The North won the game, 3-2.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON Gary Hughes of Marin Catholic, who founded and organized the game, was asked by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department if he thought some additional seats would be needed that night. He thought not.

Late in the game, the standing room only crowd having spilled out of the stands and along both outfield lines, Hughes was trying to figure out a way to charge admission to the fans who had accumulated in the softball field stands in centerfield.

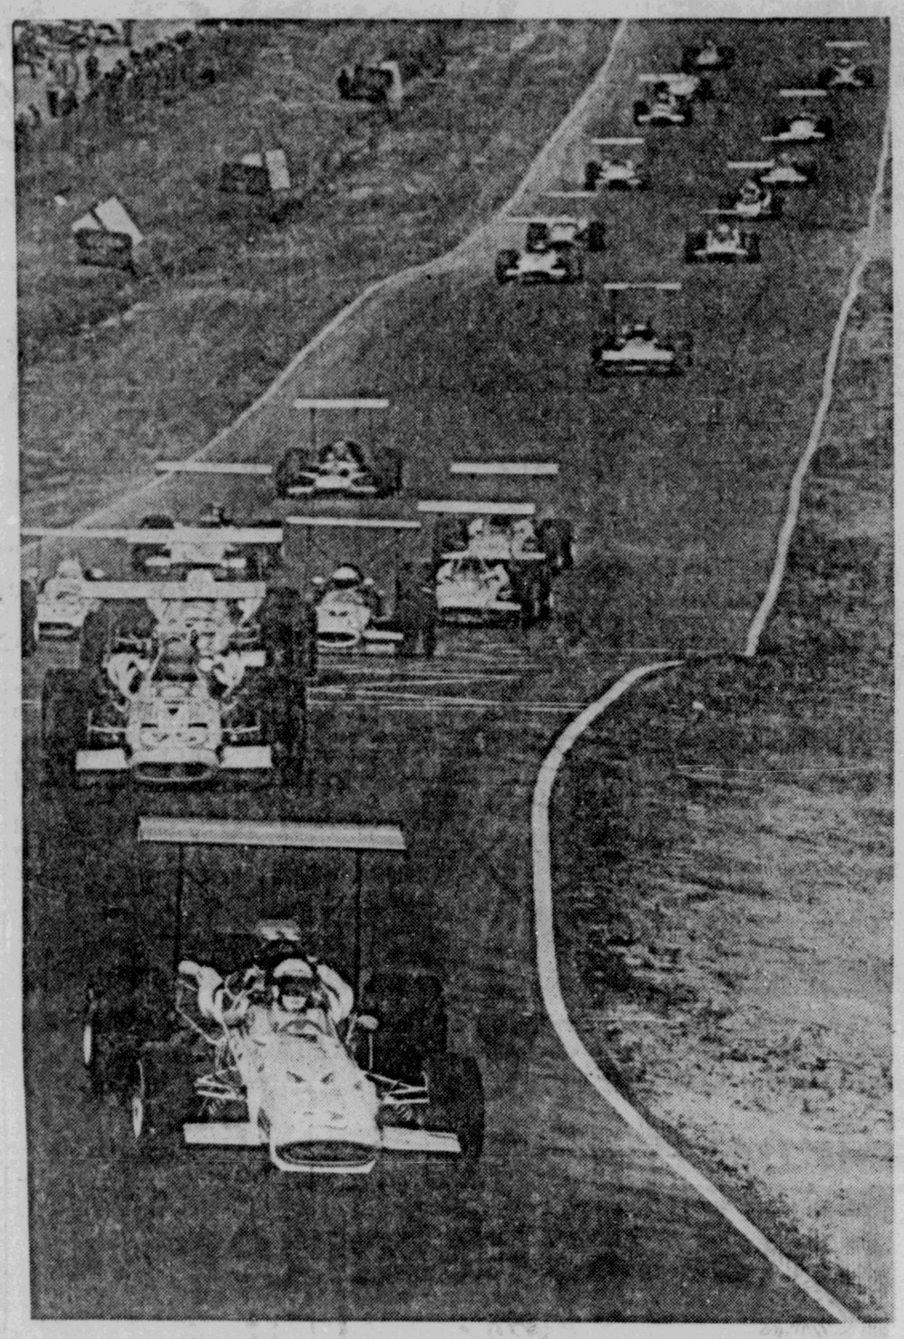
"Next year we'll get them," he said with an anxious smile.

In addition to everything else, Hughes was responsible for the baseballs used in the game. It was not strange, therefore, for him to disappear in back of the stands in pursuit of a foul ball.

It was a little strange, however, to see a 200-pound man fighting with 10 Little Leaguers.

TERRA LINDA'S star centerfielder Dewey Forry, who played for the North and singled home two runs in the first inning, will report tomorrow to the Los Angeles Dodgers rookie team in Ogden, Utah. He signed Sunday with the National League team for something in the neighborhood of $25,000.

The only other Marin county player drafted by a major league team this year is former Novato shortstop Tom Corder, who this season wrapped up a successful career at San Jose State. Coincidentally, he was also signed by the Dodgers and assigned to Ogden.



FORMULA CARS POINT TO SEARS

This scene will be reenacted at Sears Point International Raceway this weekend when the Formula A Grand Prix cars compete in the Continental Series race. The field will include series leader and defending champion John Cannon. It will be a two-day show under sponsorship of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Tennis Grand Prix

NEW YORK (UPI)—The International Lawn Tennis Federation, with the apparent agreement of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, has joined with a soft drink company, Pepsi-Cola, in establishing a $200,000 tennis Grand Prix.

The outline for the project was announced Monday, with the corporation putting up $125,000 and the additional $75,000 expected to come from 17 events which will be used to determine the top players.

Point values will be placed upon winning and placing in each of the 17 events, with the top point total worth $25,000 and the first eight men going into a $50,000 Masters tournament slated, tentatively, for Japan in December.

Koss Softballers Defeated, 1-0

A sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning gave San Mateo a 1-0 win over Paul Koss Supply last night in the second round of the Golden Gate Traveling League Tournament.

The loss drops Koss Supply into the loser's bracket. They will face Livermore next Friday night, with the loser of that game being eliminated from the tourney.

Petaluma's Joe Nystrom fired a four-hitter for Koss Supply but was the losing pticher.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Officials for Saturday's 10th annual Coaches All American football game anticipate a crowd surpassing 40,000 making this year's game the largest in history.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Cigars and Hits For Bob Watson

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The 25-year-old utilityman of the Houston Astros became a father a few hours before the Astros' game with San Diego when his wife gave birth to a seven-pound son, Keith. He promptly went out and collected three hits against the Padres to back Don Wilson's three-hit pitching and gave Houston a 4-1 victory.

Watson has been in the Astros' starting lineup for only six games, since last Wednesday when Joe Pepitone, who has some back alimony problems, had to leave the club to appear in civil court in New York. Watson has hit successfully in each of the six games and has collected 10 hits in 24 trips to the plate.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound Watson was thrilled at the birth of his son. "My wife has been expecting a baby since June 10th but she waited until we got back from the road trip," he said.

Watson was also pleased to have a place in the lineup and he'd like to keep a spot after Pepitone returns. He is supposed to be an outfielder-catcher but he's been limited to first base duty since he hurt his arm running into an outfield wall last year. But he thinks he can play the outfield again now.

"I think my arm is good again and I think I can play anywhere," he said as he pointed to his locker where he has several different gloves stored.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 6-0 and 3-2, New York beat Chicago 9-5, Los Angeles topped Atlanta 4-2, San Francisco routed Cincinnati, 13-6, and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh, 6-1, but lost the second game 1-0 in 10 innings.

In the only three games scheduled in the American League, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 4-3, Baltimore beat Boston 9-8 and Oakland nipped Kansas City 2-1.

Byron Browne doubled in two runs in the sixth inning to lead the Phils to the second game victory over Montreal and the doubleheader sweep. Browns, who hit a two-run homer in the first game, wiped out a 2-1 Montreal lead with his double and gave the victory to Rick Wise. In the first game, Woody Fryman pitched a four-hitter to beat Bill Stoneman.

Jim Nelson pitched a six-hitter and Matty Alou singled in Gene Alley from second base in the 10th inning to give Pittsburgh the second game victory over St. Louis. But the Cards won the first game when rookie Jerry Reuss pitched a nine-hitter. The Cards rocked Dock Ellis, who pitched a no-hitter on June 12th, for five runs in the second inning.

Wes Parker, Bill Sudakis and Bill Grabarkewitz tagged Phil Niekro for homers as Los Angeles beat Atlanta. Alan Foster and Jim Brewer, who retired only the final batter, combined for a nine-hitter.

Don Clendenon, who had failed 10 straight times as a pinch-hitter, hit a three-run homer in the eighth to snap a 5-5 tie and lead New York past Chicago. The victory moved the Mets to within 2 1-2 games of the Cubs in the East Division and was the sixth in the last eight games for the Mets. The have lost four of the last five.

Golf

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Judy Torluemke Rankin birdied six holes in the final round Monday as she struggled out of eighth place to win the $25,000 George Washington ladies golf classic.

Mrs. Rankin, 25, of Midland, Tex., toured the course with a 68 as she edged out fellow Texan Sandra Haynie by one stroke for the $3,750 top money in the 54-hole affair.

Miss Haynie, of Fort Worth, held the lead after 36 holes on the 6,150-yard Hidden Springs CC course.

The tournament final had been delayed Sunday by rain.

Baseball

ATLANTA — Left-hander Larry Jaster, who as a rookie four years ago tied a National League record by shutting out the Los Angeles Dodgers five times in a row, was on his way back to the minors today.

The Atlanta Braves optioned the 26-year-old reliever to Richmond of the International League after he failed to impress with a 1-1 record, no saves and a 6.85 earned run average in 22 innings.

BOSTON (UPI)—The American League enjoyed one of its biggest weekend attendances of the season when over 320,000 turned out for 18 dates on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The report issued by American League headqua ters Monday showed that three Yankee games at Boston set the pace at 94,73 and also included the top single crowd, 32,311 on Friday night.

Wills, who received the injury while sliding into second base with a double, is expected to be out at least a week. He is hitting .268 this season.

Swinging Senior Golfer

By RALPH CHATOIAN

George Kerrigan, veteran golfer from San Rafael, won't have to travel very far this year for the U.S. Golf Association's National Seniors tournament.

After travels to the east, south and midwest for the last five National Seniors, the 62-year-old Kerrigan will be able to stay right here in the Bay Area for the 1970 Seniors, scheduled in September at California Golf Club, South San Francisco.

Past national tournaments have taken him to New York, Atlanta, Tucson, Wichita and Phoenix. Best he did was in 1967 when he reached the quarter-finals in New York.

Kerrigan, an investor who was in the insurance business in his younger days, also is a regular competitor in Northern California Seniors play. In one of the Norcal tourneys he tied for overall low score but lost in the playoffs to three-time winner Cornelius Bertolone.

TOUGHEST COURSE

Northern California Golf Association Seniors tournaments are held at Spyglass Hill golf course in Monterey and Kerrigan, who has played on courses all over, rates it "the toughest course I have ever played."

Last year he had low gross score in the age 60-64 division, 80-82-162.

A member of the Meadow Club in Fairfax, Kerrigan is the seniors champion of the club and held club championship honors in the open class for five years, 1954, '55, '56, '61 and '64.

Born and reared in Palo Alto, Kerrigan did his early golfing at Harding Park and Sharp Park in San Francisco. He began the game when he was 28. He has been living in Marin County for 20 years and has been a member of the Meadow Club since 1952.

BEST IN MARIN

An acquaintance of Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, 53-year-old former California State Golf champion, Kerrigan says, "I'm not in his class. Mat is the best golfer in Marin County, counting any age." Palacio will be eligible for senior events in two years.

Kerrigan, a five-handicapper, says he gets in "around three rounds of golf a week." Being his own boss ("I've been my own boss for as long as I can remember"), he can always find the time for golf, which makes it admittedly convenient for him. Owner of an office building at 710 C Street in San Rafael, he has his office located there.

MARRIED CHILDREN

He is a father of one son and two daughters, all three married.

Showing all the young guys he can still play a mean game of golf, he almost won another club championship last year at the Meadow Club, losing by just one stroke to Ken Gelatti.

"I lost it on the 18th hole when I double bogied," he admitted.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's Not Even Right To Feel Safe With Six Trumps

It's natural to think of conserving your trumps when you have only four of the little beauties, particularly four weak trumps. When you have a solid six-card trump suit, however, you tend to think that they'll last forever. Bridge has a way of teaching us one of life's sad lessons: Nothing is forever.

SOUTH RUFFS

West led the queen of hearts and continued, forcing South to ruff. Declarer then drew trumps, after which he had only one trump left. Beginning to feel a chill breeze on his back, South led the jack of diamonds, hoping to "steal" the trick. If West played low, South could safely switch to clubs.

Too clever to fall for South's little ruse, West stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led another heart, forcing South to ruff with his last trump.

NO WAY OUT

Now there was no way out. South could take his six trumps and three diamonds, but then he was through. Whenever South led a club, West would take the ace of clubs and defeat the contract with another heart trick.

Despite his wealth of trumps, South should have thought of the morrow. After ruffing the second heart South should draw only one round of trumps. Then, leaving one trump in the dummy, South should lead the jack of diamonds.

A THIRD HEART

West takes the ace of diamonds and leads a third heart, forcing South to ruff for the second time. Leaving the trumps alone, South must lead the ten of clubs.

West must step up with the ace of clubs, since otherwise South would draw trumps and run the diamonds. But now South reaps his reward for leaving a trump in the dummy.

West cannot lead a fourth heart since dummy would be able to ruff it. South would then get to his own hand with a diamond or a club to draw trumps and claim his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
S-♠ 8 7 6 4
♥- Q J 10 9 3
♦- A 4
♣- A 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart or pass.

With 11 points in high cards and one point for each doubleton, you have the material for an optional opening bid. Some experts would open this hand, others would pass. Any sensible player would bid one heart if the queen of hearts were changed to the king.

Dual Power Plants

STANTON, Mo. (UPI)—The odds are against having an electrical blackout at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here. The cave has two individual power supplies. One source lights the cave's extensive upper three floors and the second the lower two floors. Should either power source fail, an instant relay switch activates to carry all cavern lights.

ALMANAC

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1845 the Congress of Texas agreed to the territory's annexation by the United States.

In 1947 the House enacted the Taft-Hartley Act over the veto of President Truman.

In 1964 Gen. Maxwell Taylor was appointed ambassador to Saigon, replacing Henry Cabot Lodge.

A thought for the day: Irish poet James Stephens said, "Women are wiser than men because they know less and understand more."

Remote Arctic Town Will Get Airstrip

BATHURST INLET, N.W.T. (UPI) — A 3,000-foot airstrip is scheduled to be built this summer in this remote Arctic community, according to the Arctic Development Digest.

Situated on the northern coast of the Mackenzie district in the Northwest Territories, Bathurst Inlet was first explored by Sir John Franklin in 1821. It was another 100 years before the first permanent settlement of Europeans was established.

Although caribou, grizzly bear and musk oxen still roam freely in the vicinity, the Digest says the original Hudson's Bay Company trading post has been converted into a "comfortable lodge."

'MAD SCHOOLMASTER' KILLER

Parole For Ex-Marinite

VACAVILLE (UPI) — Former Marin school teacher Verlin J. Spencer who gained fame in 1940 as the "Mad Schoolmaster" by gunning down five fellow school employees in Pasadena, won parole yesterday after 30 years of imprisonment for the slayings.

The state parole board decided the 68-year-old killer will be released Nov. 9 to work in Hawaii with the John Howard Society, a social service agency for ex-convicts.

Spencer is at the California Medical Facility here.

He started his teaching career in 1926 at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School and in 1927 moved to the San Rafael Grammar School where he taught arithmetic and woodshop until 1928.

Spencer wrote that he wanted a $200 increase in his yearly salary of $1500 because of extra curricular activities he performed. He claimed having initiated elementry debating, the school newspaper and individual study methods for students.

The school countered with a $100 increase proposal, but Spencer stood firm. So did the school and in June of 7928 Spencer was no longer employeed in San Rafael.

Nicknamed "Doc" by inmates, 68-year-old Spencer was a south Pasadena Junior High school principal when he committed the series of slayings on a spring day in 1940 then fired a bullet into his own chest in a suicide attempt.

Max May, Vacaville's program administrator, told Spencer the news. He said the impact did not hit Spencer at once.

"Initially he didn't show any reaction," May said. "There was nothing in terms of facial expressions or surprise or anything else. He sat for a while and sort of reminisced about how long he'd known us."

But later Spencer was "delighted," May said.

"He's a good tennis player," May said of Spencer. "He still plays almost every day. He won the institutional championship a couple of times, and he's still a top competitor."

He recalled that Spencer had not had any disciplinary problems while serving his time. A spokesman for the state corrections department called him a "model prisoner" and reported that he had been kept under minimum security for the past 20 years.

He led an active life behind bars. He worked as a clerk in prison psychological and aptitude testing programs. A candidate for a doctorate degree at USC at the time of the killings, he took technical courses in radio and television while behind bars.

Spencer, who suffered a nervous breakdown at the start of the 1939-40 school year, was described by some psycholo-

Test On Vote Age Is Next

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon reluctantly has signed the Voting Rights Act and ordered an early court ruling whether it is constitutional for Congress to lower the voting age to 18.

Nixon Monday signed the measure which would enfranchise between 10 and 11 million persons between 18 and 21, and extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act under which more than one million Negroes won the vote in the South.

The President, as he has before, said it was unconstitutional to lower the voting age by statute rather than by constitutional amendment. He ordered Attorney General John N. Mitchell to seek an early court ruling on that issue.

SOME CONCERN

Nixon also, expressing concern that the young might raise their hopes only to have them dashed, asked Congress to press ahead on a constitutional amendment in case the new enfranchisement law is overturned.

However, it seems certain the House, at least, merely will sit by and learn the fate of the new law before making any move toward an amendment. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., Chairman of the key House Judiciary Committee, already is on record to that effect.

Celler also has doubts about the law's constitutionality, but feels there is an outside chance it will prevail, giving the vote to those 18 or older in all national, state and local elections.

In any event, Celler's panel already faces enough important legislation to occupy it for the rest of the congressional session, including the administration's high-priority crime bills.

JOINS NIXON

In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has generally opposed lowering the minimum voting age, joined Nixon in hoping for an early ruling on the new federal 18-year-old voting law.

A spokesman for the governor said that Reagan "joins with President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell in hoping the court will render a swift decision on the constitutionality of the legislation."

The Republican governor, running for re-election to a second term, has said he has an "open mind" on the issue but also expressed some "reservations." He previously said that allowing 18-year-olds to vote would enable politicians to organize campus youth for work on election campaigns and could threaten academic freedom in the classroom.

740,000 Protest Security Treaty

Japanese Marchers Clash With Police

TOKYO (UPI) — National Police said 740,000 persons demonstrated throughout Japan today against Japan's renewal of its military security pact with the United States. It was the largest antigovernment demonstration ever staged in Japan.

The daylong demonstrations flared into street fighting in Tokyo tonight between radical students throwing Molotov cocktails and swinging steel bars and police using aluminum shields and plastic face masks and wielding clubs, waterhose and teargas.

In Tokyo, where the largest crowd demonstrated—estimated by police at 130,000-Molotov cocktails hurled by students lit up the night as the flaming gasoline spilled into the streets. Buddhist priests in brown robes and rice straw sandals marched with Communists, Socialists, union members and students, beating drums and chanting prayers.

The largest antigovernment demonstration previously reported was on June 4, 1960, also against the security pact, when 505,000 persons took to the streets.

There were battles for control of the key railroad tracks near Tokyo and fights near the British Embassy near the 17th Century Imperial Palace grounds where emperor Hirohito lives. Police closed the huge plank doors of the palace and placed heavy guards on duty. Police nearby captured a student car loaded with firebombs and steel pipes.

The rail yard riots broke out before dawn as did other demonstrations throughout the nation. By 3 p.m. police had arrested 157 persons, mostly students, throughout Japan, they said. A total of 135 anti-American demonstrators was arrested Monday.

Some passenger and freight trains were halted near Tokyo while police with clubs and aluminum shields battled to drive the students away from the tracks.

There was fighting at a rail station near a suburban U.S. Air Force base and on the busy Yamate commuter line.

Short strikes were called throughout the day today by a score of labor unions, including railway workers who maintain Japanese freight trains used to haul U.S. munitions and other military supplies.

Thousands of workers, students and housewives gathered at dusk in parks around the nation to shout their protests against Japan's military alliance with the United States.

About 70 Japanese pacifists chartered six harbor boats and sailed among sea-going vessels anchored in Tokyo Bay delivering speeches over loudspeakers against the military treaty.

About 2,600 staged a sitdown strike on the tracks of a railroad station near a U.S. airbase in Tokyo's western suburbs.

Riot police, protected by aluminum shields, waded in with clubs swinging and handcuffed 73 of the students before order was restored.

Edward Hageman Selected To Marin Planning Panel

Edward Hageman, a 54-year-old building designer, was named to the Marin County Planning Commission today on a 3-2 vote of the board of supervisors.

Hageman, of Sleepy Hollow, will succeed Michael R. Praszker of Mill Valley, who quit the at-large post earlier this year because of business pressures. The term expires in July, 1971.

The appointee was nominated for the post by the Marin Builders Exchange and is a partner in the San Rafael firm of Hageman and Eklund Building Designers. He is national vice president of the American Institute of Building Design and a member of the California State Board of Architectural Design.

Meyer was a last-minute nominee of supervisor Michael Wornum. Other candidates were attorney Arnold M. Greenberg of San Rafael; former Fairfax councilman Adelaide Wilson; Hugh Dougherty, currently the fourth supervisorial district representative on the commission; Dr. William F. Upton, former commissioner; Stephen Kramer, San Rafael real estate consultant; John Russell of Greenbrae, a landscape architect, and Niels Schulz Jr., also a former commissioner.

Hageman's three winning votes were believed to have come from Chairman John F. McInnis, William A. Gnoss and Louis H. Baar, with Peter R. Arrigoni joining Wornum in the vote for Meyer.

Said Hageman after his appointment, "I realize there is concern for ecology and conservation and that I'm the representative of the building industry, but I feel I'm for development and construction but with good taste."

Hageman, of 310 Hidden Valley Lane, has a wife, Bette, and two children. He is an Air Force veteran of World War II.

Squabble Over Subdividing Novato Area

By THERON A. NEWELL

It was horses versus people, septic tanks versus sewers, large lots versus urbanization of the unincorporated areas around Novato yesterday at the Marin County Planning Commission meeting. (See another story page 28.)

After more than two hours of arguments the commission voted 4-2 — with commissioners Hugh Dougherty and Margaret Azevedo against — to delay decision pending more information on the entire problem of subdividing rural Novato.

Involved is approximately 30 square miles bounded on the east by Highway 101 and on the south by big rock Ridge. The vast area includes the entire watershed of Novato Creek, north to Mount Burdell and West of Stafford Lake.

Chairman Walter F. Freitas was to ask for information from the public health department, the planning staff and sanitary engineers on facts pertaining to the West Novato, Indian Valley and other suburban areas.

Rowland Darnell of the county planning staff, presenter the plan to increase the lot size from 7,500 square feet to one-half and one-acre lots.

He was backed by George Douglas Vaughn, of 1862 Indian Valley Road, who represented West Novato Associates, a newly formed organization of residents of the area. He presented a petition with 219 signatures asking for the increase in lot size.

"This is rural America; we want elbow room, fresh air and horses," Vaughn said, adding that providing large lots today would solve tomorrow's problems.

Edwin V. Grundstrom, of 1709 Indian Valley Road, a member of the Novato Sanitary District board, said that the sewage effluent was coming out of the septic tanks and polluting the ditches of the area. "It is 19 years too late to make this proposal for larger lots, because there are at least 200 nonconforming lots and houses in the area," he said.

He pointed out that the sanitary district had tried unsuccessfully for three years to get sewers into the area to solve the sanitation problem.

He estimated that it would cost $4,000 to put sewers in front of acre lots, making development too expensive.

Darnell questioned Grundstrom's figure of houses, but Grundstrom cited areas of heavy density where houses were on 7,500-square-foot lots or less than half an acre.

Ralph T. McGrath, of 1796 Indian Valley Road, read a letter from Dr. Carolyn D. Albrecht, Marin County health officer, in which she reported that of 80 septic tanks inspected in the In-

U.S. Planes Pound Major Supply Lines

SAIGON (UPI) — American B52 bombers raided Communist supply lines and other targets in Cambodia and Laos today, military sources said.

The eight-engine bombers dropped hundreds of tons of bombs in the raids, the sources said, hitting the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in eastern Laos and an area of Cambodia described only as its northeastern region.

The U.S. Military Command said Monday that American participation and penetration in the aerial war over Cambodia are not affected by the 21.7-mile limitation on U.S. ground operations there or the deadline one week from today for withdrawal of all American ground forces.

B52s have bombed Cambodian border areas since the Allied thrust into the country began May 1, and jet fighters have reportedly penetrated 100 miles beyond he border.

In ground fighting in Cambodia, the Viet Cong were reported to have attacked the village of Prek Tameak outside the capital of Phnom Penh and to be tightening their hold on the centuries-old ruins at Angor Wat.

Two major government setbacks were reported in Laos.

Vientiane dispatches said the Communists captured Nongboua Village, the government's latest strategic position 12 miles from Saravane, thus dashing hopes of recapturing Saravane.

North Vietnamese also overran a government position at

Suspect Hunted In Police Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police broadcast an all-points bulletin today for the arrest of a man in the sniper-slaying of patrolman Richard Radetich of Ignacio.

Inspector Walter Kracke in the Homicide Bureau described the wanted man as Joe Allen Johnson, also known as Wesley Johnson. He said the wanted man is a male Negro of about 30 years.

Johnson, who lived at Hamilton Air Force Base as a youth, was at one time sent to Marin Juvenile Hall and after escaping and stealing a car in 1960, was sentenced to the California Youth Authority by Marin County officials.

Inspector Guio Battaglia of the Marin Sheriff's Department said that his office has no record of Johnson after 1960, when Johnson was 16 years old.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto yesterday authorized a $5,000 reward for the capture and conviction of Radetich's killer. The reward is the maximum allowed by city statue.

In addition to seeking the man in connection with the Radetich case, police have a warrant charging him with the attempted murder of a police officer last December.

Johnson was arrested then during a shootout at a Western Union telegraph office on Market Street, was wounded and then escaped from a hospital, Kracke said.

Kracke said the Police Deqartment has witnesses connecting Johnson with the assassination of Radetich, 25, who was shot in the head last Friday while writing out a citation in the Haight-Ashbury District for an automobile with illegal license plates.

The hunted man was last seen in San Francisco, his home, the night Radetich was killed, Kracke said.

Radetich was the third policeman to be killed in San Francisco this year. His funeral was held yesterday.

Kracke said that as far as police can determine the wanted man is not connected with any political or racial organization.

Study Urges Public Lands Law Revamp

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal laws dealing with public lands need a thorough overhaul to eliminate conflicts and meet the changing demands of modern America, a special commission reported today.

This conclusion — and hundreds of recommendations for change — resulted from a five-year, $7 million study of the old statutes by the Public Land Law Review Commission.

The commission proposed, in a 342-page report to President Nixon, some revisions that could have political reverberations, such as:

—Reimbursing states for tax revenues they lose because of sparse population on public land

—Adding new fees for use of federal land.

— Adding environmental protection clauses to all public land laws.

—Setting aside some areas for more extensive timber production.

One third of the nation is federal land, most of it in the West. Alaska is 95 per cent federal property. Ninety per cent of the rest is in California, Oregon, Washington, Utah, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming, Ida-

Bill To Ban Enforced Busing Draws Attacks

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The chairman of the Senate Education Committee today condemned legislation prohibiting compulsory busing of schoolchildren as "bad" but said it probably would pass his committee as now constituted.

"I wouldn't vote for it," said Democratic Sen. Albert Rodda of Sacramento. "It's a bad bill. It'll have to move along with other legislation. I'm not going to give it any priority."

He said that his committee "as constituted would pass it." The bill would forbid a school district from transporting any public school student for any reason unless his parent gave written permission.

Rodda noted that the fate of the bill may depend on whether Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, is present when a vote is taken in committee. Schmitz is a candidate for Congress and a special election to fill the vacant seat will be held next week.

Schmitz is regarded as the favorite. If he won, he probably would resign his state Senate seat before a committee vote was taken on the bill.

The Senate Rules Committee then could replace Schmitz with an antibusing member, a probusing member or not replace him at all.

Author Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, denied in debate prior to Monday's passage the measure had any connection with preventing integration.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, warned the bill would "outlaw" Berkeley's current school setup. He denounced the proposal as "a state action to promote segregation in the schools."

But Wakefield told Mrs. Brathwaite the bill simply required that "when you move that black child you have to get permission."

Marin Girl Wins At Wimbledon

Sharon Walsh, 18, of San Rafael won her first round match in the All-England Tennis Championships at Wimbledon, England today by defeating fellow Californian Patti Hogan of La Jolla, 8-6, 6-3.

United Press International reported Miss Walsh, a recent graduate of San Rafael High School playing in her first Wimbledon classic, was the second American to advance today in women's play. Earlier Julie Heldman of New York downed Australia's Fay Moore, 6-4, 6-1.

The Nixon's other daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, will be unable to attend.

Julie told newswomen Monday that her husband's part-time summer job with the Washington Senators baseball team will keep them in Washington. They are also preparing a trip to Japan June 30.

Gets Divorce

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jackie Gleason and Genevieve, his wife of 34 years, obtained a divorce Monday after a hearing in state Supreme Court.

Gleason had filed for divorce in 1968, a year after the state's divorce laws were liberalized to make two years of legal separation grounds for divorce. They have been legally separated since 1954.

To Stanford Panel

STANFORD (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has been named to an advisory council to the Stanford University School of Business.

Trip For Peace?

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI is expected to use his trip to Southeast Asia later this year to make a renewed appeal for peace in Vietnam, Vatican sources said today.

He may again offer the offices of the Vatican toward obtaining peace, the sources said, but it was not known whether he would have any concrete proposals to make.

The Pope plans to visit the Philippines and Australia in November in the longest trip ever made by a Roman Catholic pontiff.

Bill To Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Monday passed and sent to the Senate a bill to remove prohibitions and criminal penalties against importing, mailing, transporting and advertising birth control pills, devices or information.

Current federal law carries penalties of up to $5,000 in fines and-or five years in prison for such activities.

Golden Eagle Pass

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House voted Monday to renew the Golden Eagle pass with which Americans can use national outdoor recreations for a flat fee.

Thet House went along with the Senate in voting to increase the annual fee from $7 to $10.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Hartke, D-Ind., has proposed increasing Social Security benefits 20 per cent by Jan. 1, 1972, to offset effects of inflation.

Indians Invade Park; Some Flee

LASSEN NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—U.S. Forest Service rangers early today arrested 22 Indians who invaded Lassen Volcanic National Park to claim the land as their own. This was their second attempt.

Shasta County sheriff's deputies said the 22 persons were charged with violating a federal regulation banning open fires in places other than in designated areas. They were booked at county jail in Redding.

A sheriff's spokesman said the Indians built "a fairly large bonfire in a meadow" in the park. He said they drove into the park shortly after midnight "like any other camper," but were "kept under constant surveillance."

Those arrested included 17 men and five women.

A month ago a caravan of 40 cars tried to enter the park but were turned back when they were met by rifle-carrying rangers. There were no arrests.

The park was closed by park supt. Dick Boyer for several days because of a threat of another invasion.

The Indians then traveled to a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. employe campground near Big Bend where they set up camp. In all, 49 Indians were arrested there on charges of trespassing.

Most of the Indians involved in the invasions in Shasta County belong to the Pit River Tribe.

They claimed that some 3.5 million acres in Northern California were illegally taken from them by the white men in the mid 1800s during the Gold Rush days.

Attorneys for the 49 arrested filed an action Monday in Redding with Judge William Phelps, asking dismissal of the trespass charges.

They cited a 1964 ruling by the U.S. Indian Claims Commission that the tribe's land had been taken "taken without compensation" by white men in 1853.

3 More Facing Obscenity Count

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Three students on the staff of the UC Riverside campus newspaper were charged Monday in an obscenity complaint for reprinting a photograph that resulted in the arrest of two editors of the UCLA campus newspaper.

Charged wits publishing allegedly obscene material were Richard Maxwell, 21, editor of the Highlander, John Zaller, 23, a staff writer, and William Ellege, 21.

The photo, which appeared in the UCLA Daily Bruin last month, depicted a couple making love in a cemetery. The two UCLA editors were arrested on the same charge two weeks ago.

Up Teacher Pay, Hayakawa Asks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, urging a 5 per cent cost of living pay boost for state college faculty members, contends it is unfair to penalize professors who "supported academic responsibility...along with the trouble making minority."

Dr. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College, was speaking at a news conference Monday concerning a proposal in the Legislature that all state employes except teachers be granted the increase.

"You have not heard of riots at Humboldt State or Stanislaus State or Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo," he said. "Even San Francisco State College has had a delightfully quiet and productive year."

MINIS OUT ON PICKET LINE BIKINIS IN,

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Bikinis were the uniform of the day Monday for stewardesses picketing World Airways, Inc., in a labor contract dispute.

Stewardesses had decided not enough attention was being paid to their six-week strike and shed their miniskirts for the scanty swim suits.

On strike are more than 400 employes of the charter airline, including pilots, flight engineers and navigators, all seeking 20 per cent wage boosts and fringe benefits.

Negotiations broke down 10 days ago but the line says it is maintaining operations.

Some Jury Progress

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Eight jurors tentatively were approved Monday in the murder trial of four "Manson Family" members. A defense attorney tried to force a meeting with the young woman expected to be granted immunity from prosecution as the state's key witness.

During the third day of jury selection for the Tate-LaBianca slayings, Daye Shinn, attorney for Susan Atkins, complained that defense lawyers had been unable to speak with Linda Kasabian, 20, another cult member.

Although Mrs. Kasabian also has been charged in the killings, her trial has been delayed until August and she is expected to be granted immunity for her testimony against hippie chieftain Charles Manson and the others.

Criticism For Critics Of Critic With Agnew In The Middle Of It

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew today took the Washington Post and The New York Times to task for criticizing his call for the resignation of Harvard student Joseph Rhodes Jr. from the White House Commission investigating campus unrest.

In similar letters to the editor appearing in today's editions of both newspapers, Agnew asked whether the papers' editorial reactions would have been to demand the resignation of a "conservative person" if he had made statements similar to those attributed to Rhodes, a Negro.

The Post responded in a 700-word editorial on the same page that there was "an even chance that we would have done just that."

The Times did not reply to the Vice President's current letter. However in an editorial Thursday the newspaper said Agnew's criticism of Rhodes for "verbal posturing" at first glance looks like "deliberate parody."

"The basic issues continue to elude him," the Times said. "...The real issues are war and peace, social justice and racial equality. The students are certainly unwilling to accept political strategies that rely on thinly disguised appeals to the instincts of prejudice and fear."

In his letter to the Post Agnew said its editorial of June 19 failed to note that "his feelings about the appointment of Mr. Rhodes were based on a number of statements by Mr. Rhodes, among which was assertion, unsupported by any evidence that 'Governor Ronald Reagan was bent on killing people for his own political gain.'"

"Ask yourself and answer honestly—what would your editorial reaction have been if a conservative person on a panel investigating police deaths from left wing militant action stated, 'Ralph Abernathy was bent on killing people for his own political gain.'

"Of course, we know Mr. Abernathy would not do that; but we also know that Governor Reagan would not do that. . ."

In its reply, the Post said it welcomed the letter as a "breakthrough in direct communication as far as we are concerned."

"Answer 'honestly' Mr. Agnew says, and we shall: there is at least an even chance that we would have done just that—that we would have fallen victim to the distorted and disabling perspectives of which we have written before and from which we hardly consider ourselves uniquely (or even uniquely) free. It is, at this moment of heightened and hate-filled national argument, especially important that everyone beware of his own predispositions and built-in biases and blindness on certain questions," the Post editorial said.

"And in that regard, we ask the Vice President to give a little thought to his own perspective on things. For even as Mr. Agnew was expressing his indignation over the motives and crimes Mr. Rhodes ascribed to Governor Reagan and conjuring up another situation in which the same principle might be at work, he was also delivering one of the most godawful, slanderous attacks on a collection of former and present Democratic office-holders he has yet come up with—suggesting that somehow Averell Harriman was personally responsible for the enslavement and death of thousands upon thousands of persons and that he has been acting throughout from a combination of gullibility and discreditable motives."

Israeli Copters Inflict Damage On Egyptian Base

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel said its helicopter-borne commandos crossed the Gulf of Suez early today and inflicted heavy damage on an Egyptian military base 42 miles inside Egypt. Cairo said Israeli victory claims were imaginary and that the Egyptians inflicted heavy casualties.

The Israeli commando raid was the third such strike in 12 days. A Tel Aviv spokesman said the commandos shelled the post at Bir Araiyida, 42 miles inland from the gulf and 80 miles southeast of Cairo. He said the post was the military administrative headquarters for the area.

The spokesman and an Israeli military correspondent said the Israelis destroyed two armored personnel carriers, each with four or five soldiers aboard, and that all were killed. The spokesman said all the Israelis returned safely and suffered no casualties.

A Cairo spokesman said the attack occurred in the Zafarana area, which is on the coast, and that three Israeli helicopters landed two vehicles and a number of troops "in an attempt to attack an isolated observation post." Orders were given to attack and the Egyptians killed or wounded 20 Israelis, he said.

The Cairo spokesman said four Egyptians were wounded.

"The enemy was not able to reach its objective and what it is claiming now is nothing but the fabrication of its imagination," the spokesman said. "It seems that Israel now is depending on its imagination to issue military communiques."

An earlier Cairo statement sad the attack came at 2:30 a.m. and that the Israels inflicted neither damage nor casualties.

Tam Budget Gets Tentative Nod

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night hesitatingly approved a $10,045,407 tentative budget but made it clear that the approval was granted only to meet legal requirements that the district have a tentative budget by June 30 and that major revisions will probably be made before final adoption in August.

If adopted as now proposed, the district's general fund tax rate would climb to $2.165 per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of two cents over the present rate. Total tax rate this year is $2.29.

The proposed budget is an increase of $578,199 over this year's and includes a 6.7 per cent pay raise for district teachers, a pay package that will cost taxpayers an additional $357,165 this year.

The proposed budget does not include increases for the district's classified personnel since salary negotiations are still going on. An indication that a long battle over classified salaries looms came in a seperate item last night when trustees acted to extend the deadline on negotiations from June 30 to Sept. 30.

The trustees pored over the budget for nearly three hours last night and then almost balked when Business Mgr. Frank A. Cassou asked them for tentative approval.

"There are a lot of questions I still have. This is really the first time I've studied this," trustee David D. Ring said. Several other trustees agreed, but Cassou explained that their approval was only to meet a state requirement that the board take tentative action on a budget by June 30.

"You can still make changes in the budget right up through the month of July," Cassou said.

Cassou said that the board will have to approve a budget for publication on July 20 and set a public hearing and final adoption in August.

A breakdown of the proposed tax rate, exclusive of bond interest and redemption, shows $1.90 for general operation; 5.1 cents in district payment for teacher's retirement fund; 2.5 cents for payment to classified retirment fund; 1.6 cents for social security payment; 8.9 cents for health and welfare premiums; 5 cents for the community services programs and 3.4 cents for the Opportunity School — a total of $2.165.

Cassou said that the district's assessed valuation jumped approximately 8 per cent this year when only a 4 per cent hike had been expected.

This raised a question from Ring: "That's one of my concerns about the budget. The taxpayer may be right in asking why the tax rate should go up when the assessed valuation jumped so much."

Ring said he also questions the 6 cents override for the community services program, which last year carried a 3-cent tax.

The trustees indicated they would study the budget in the next few days and will be prepared to ask specific questions at the July 6 meeting.

A student representative from Redwood High School's Executive Council told the board that his organization had drafted a letter asking the trustees not to budget money for transportation of athletes to away-games but instead use the money for transportation of students to school. The board last year was forced to curtail the free bus transportation to school from many areas.

Trustees indicated that the entire matter of the athletic budget, particularly the transportation costs, would be a matter of close scrutiny in the upcoming budget sessions.

"The matter of the athletic budget has been hanging over us for a long time and I don't want it to hang over us for another year," board chairman Bette Wallace said.

Novato Council Delays Teen Center Decision

The Novato City Council and parks and recreation commission could not agree last night on a teen center, whereupon the council assigned $38,000 to unallocated reserves in the 1970-71 budget for park use or partially for a teen center.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown had included $7,000 in the budget for a teen center.

Councilman Joseph Gargiulo said a teen center was a "must."

Commissioner John Kassenbrock said he would support a teen center "when someone presents plans for a teen center that do not duplicate existing programs.

"Nobody knows what is to go on at the teen center, including the teen-agers," he said. The commission had held two meetings with teen-agers on a proposed center.

"They want us to turn over a building to them and they would run it without supervision. Why within a few months, it would turn into a pot smoking house," said Commissioner Jack Hollclaw. He said that the vast majority of teen-agers were too busy to need a place to congregate "just to drink coffee."

The council favored some development at Novato Creek Park for the pre-history museum access road, some work at the tank site on Seventh Street and work on Pioneer Memorial Park.

It could not agree on the amounts for each, so put the $38,000 in unallocated reserves for future decisions.

The council then reviewed the complete budget again, adding a little to one account and taking from another. It wound up with a budget of $2,073,485 for next fiscal year, $850 more than proposed by Brown.

It will require a tax rate increase from the present 81 cents to $1.05 per $100 assessed valuation. This breaks down in to 48 cents for general fund operation, 26 cents for parks and recreation, 1 cent for bond interest and redemption and increases the street construction tax from 6 to 30 cents.

The council discussed but took no action on requests for salary increases ranging from 2.5 to 17.5 per cent.

The first public hearing on the budget will be at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House. It will be an item in the regular council agenda.

Burglary Suspect, 18, To Face Jury Trial

Robert William Lane Jr., 18, of Kentfield was termed either a narcotics addict or in danger of becoming one by two doctors whose reports were submitted to Marin Superior Court yesterday.

A jury trial was set for next week on a charge that he burglarized a car on April 28 and a further hearing on the addiction matter for July 13.

Motorcyclist Fair From 101 Accident

The California Highway Patrol said he was thrown from the motorcycle while attempting a hill climb beneath Highway 101 at the Petaluma River bridge.

Trustees Set Election To Fill Vacancy

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night set Sept. 15 as the date of a special election to elect a replacement for Gloria Melbostad, who resigned last month effective July 1.

The trustees debated for nearly 30 minutes before deciding on the Sept. 15 date. They also considered putting the matter on the Nov. 15 general election ballot.

Persons interested in filing for a spot on the Sept. 15 ballot must do so before July 15, board chairman Bette Wallace said last night.

Mrs. Melbostad, who had been a trustee since 1964, resigned last month because her new job as a history teacher at the College of Marin took up too much of her time, she said.

The district's election will coincide with special school board elections in Mill Valley and Sausalito, trustees noted and the cost of the special ballot will be shared by all three districts.

Retiring Trustee Pleads For Integrity By Board

A call for integrity in dealing with the public has been issued by Gloria W. Melbostad of Mill Valley in her "swan song" as a trustee of Tamalpais High School District.

Mrs. Melbostad, who has resigned from the board effective the end of this month, reviewed her feelings after nearly six years of service in an article in the Board Bulletin Board, a monthly publication of the district.

"Any institution or organization, to do the kinds of socially valuable things we want it to do, must have a solid foundation of integrity," she wrote. "To me that means making decisions in an open and forthright manner based on valid and carefully weighed considerations, not on favoritism or inside politics."

Prime responsibility for assuring that everyone believes the structure has credibility lies with board and superintendent, she suggested. (Tam district will have a new superintendent, Wilber D. Hawkins, taking office at the same time Mrs. Melbostad leaves the board.)

"That crucial man at the top, the superintendent, must be a symbol not only of the purposes of the district, but must demonstrate his faith of open techniques and firmness in sticking to decisions openly arrived at," continued the retiring trustee, who tendered her resignation because, she said, she has become a teacher at College of Marin and lacks time and energy to devote to both assignments.

She noted that making decisions in this manner is not easy and sometimes leads to unpleasant confrontations. She then sounded a warning:

"Understandably, perhaps, some people would prefer the traditional pattern where matters are settled behind closed doors by maneuvering between boards and administrators. For some this method of operation has become so established over the years that it functions almost automatically and the pattern becomes increasingly rigid."

Noting the recent calls for accountability by the schools, she wrote:

"The new word is 'accountability,' but let's not forget about that old fashioned term, 'responsibility.' "

Mrs. Melbostad said her own work as teacher had made her realize the importance of making students understand the teacher cares. But, she added: "To me the teacher who is perpetually competing in a popularity contest for student approval is the antithesis of responsibility. Conviviality is no substitute for academic achievement."

She suggested that the school district must resolve the argument over priorities between teaching factual material and relevance or understanding.

"Such questions must be weighed by the individual teacher. . . But there must be an overall framework that is developed by, agreed to, and understood by the entire school community," she concluded. "At the moment I feel such a framework is lacking in the district."

Nixon Vetoes Bill On Hospital Construction

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon may be facing another determined confrontation with Congress over his veto of a hospital construction bill that unanimously passed the House and the Senate.

At issue is a bill authorizing $1.2 billion in grants over a three-year period beginning in 1971 to continue construction of hospitals and other medical facilities as part of the Hill-Burton hospital construction program. The medical construction and modernization act — passed 70-0 in the Senate and 377-0 in the House—also authorizes $1.5 billion in guaranteed loans.

Nixon vetoed the measure Monday, calling it "a long step down the road of fiscal irresponsibility." It was his first veto in the current session of congress.

Goldberg Is Favored To Carry Vote

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, in his first bid for elective office, was the slight favorite today in the Democratic primary for the right to face three-term Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in November.

Goldberg, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, squared off against millionaire industrialist Howard J. Samuels after a lackluster campaign that was expected to attract fewer than one million of the state's 3.6 million Democratic voters.

Four candidates battled for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat held by Charles R. Goodell, a Republican Rockefeller appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the assassination in June 1968 of Robert F. Kennedy.

Theodore C. Sorensen, a speech writer for the late President Kennedy, was rated the slight favorite. He had party's endorsement in the race against Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, Rep. Richard D. McCarthy and Paul O'Dwyer, the peace candidate and the party's 1968 nominee.

Correct Tax Rate

Marin County Supervisors' approval yesterday of the county library budget will raise the tax rate 2.5 cents to 22.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The Independent-Journal erred in its report yesterday saying the increased would be added to a rate of 22.5 cents.

dian Valley area, 50 per cent had failures in the tank or leeching line.

Dr. Albrecht urged nothing less than two-acre lots where there was no sewer because the land could not absorb septic tank leechings.

"It's the key issue because the health hazard is the outstanding problem there today," retorted Harold Bloom, of 1853 Indian Valley Road.

Bloom was backed by Franklin Gustafson, of 1970 Indian Valley Road, a member of the North Marin County Water District board who said it would make dividing his place too prohibitive because it would cost $18,000 per acre with a sewer.

Thomas Keena who owns 20 acres adjacent to the city limits at 610 McClay Road, summarized it, saying, "It's horses or humans."

Mrs. Philip J. Leonard, of 2220 Oak Knoll Road, said she bought her house so she could have horses.

John G. Wiersma, of 1615 Hill Road, objected to bulldozing of hills and trees for subdivisions, wanting to keep the landscape as it is.

"It's a lot of property and a lot of people; we could do a better job if we could have more time," Freitas said, asking the commission for a delay until its July 13 meeting.

gists as the victim of a persecution complex. Others said he had accused his superiors of "trying to get me out of here as principal."

An expert marksman, Spencer had been principal of the junior high school for two years when he arranged a meeting on May 6, 1940, with officials of the school district at South Pasadena High School.

There was an argument. He shot and killed them with his target pistol—the same weapon he used for practice sessions with a tin can on a soap box.

Killed were George C. Bush, 64, superintendent of the district, John Alman, 50, principal of the high school, and Will R. Speer, 52, district purchasing agent.

In an outer office he shot Miss Dortha Talbot, 30, Bush's secretary. She was left paralyzed with a bullet in her spine.

Spencer then got into his car and drove to the junior high school a few blocks away. There he fatally shot manual arts instructor Verner Vanderlip, 35, and art teacher Ruth Sturgeon, 45, who died a few days later.

An hour later police found Spencer unconcious in the locked cafeteria of the junior high school. He had a self-inflicted bullet wound under his heart.

Later, in the hospital he was told that four of his victims died instantly.

"Are only four of them dead?" he was quoted at the time as asking. "Too bad they didn't all go—and me too." Witnesses said he smiled and lapsed into unconsciousness.

He was sentenced to five life terms for murder.

Poukate, 12 miles southeast of Saravane, and captured an air navigation beacon used by U. S. Air Force planes bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail to the east.

In South Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported an Army transport helicopter shot down Monday 17 miles southwest of the Central Highlands city of An Khe, wounding three Americans. Seven other Americans were wounded in 14 Communist shelling attacks during the 24-hour period ended at 8 a.m. today.

A military spokesman said the attack on Prek Tameak, 15 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, began as a skirmish Monday afternoon but had developed into a major battle today.

Cambodian military sources said the South Vietnamese had strong reinforcements ready to move into the area if necessary and were patrolling the Mekong River to make sure the Communists made no attempt to cross to the Phnom Penh side.

An increasing number of Norh Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are gathering in the 25 square mile temple and shrine complex at Angkor Wat 180 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, the military spokesman said. It is considered so sacred by Cambodians they have declared it a noncombat area.

ho, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado.

The commission recommendations would change some policies dating back to pioneer days. It suggested doing away with the Homestead Act, under which thousands of farmers have settled in the West. It would change the way mining and oil drilling leases are worked out.

The report said much of the commission's work had to do with sorting out the overlapping bureaucracy that touches on public lands. It should all be streamlined and made easier to follow, the commission suggested.

Federal responsibilities should be consolidated more and the committees in Congress that deal with public land matters should be boiled down to one committee for each house of Congress, the report said.

The commission chairman, Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., recognized change might come slowly because of the many voters and taxpayers who could be affected by the commission's recommendations.

Javits Will Seek Aid For Railroads

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sen. Jacob J. Javits and Rep. Ogden R. Reid, both New York Republicans, plan to submit identical bills in both houses of Congress today providing up to $750 million in emergency funds to aid the nation's railroads.

Coming on the heels of the bankruptcy petition filed by the Penn Central Transportation Co., operator of the nation's largest railroad, the bills also call for the appointment of an ad hoc joint congressional committee to investigate all aspects of the railroad industry.

Master Plan For Hilarita Units Approved

The Tiburon City Council last night approved a master plan for development of the Hilarita site, permitting a maximum of 112 moderate income housing units on eight acres.

The 3-1 vote came after more than one-and-one-half hours of discussion by the council and interested citizens who packed the council room, and announcement of passage brought sustained applause from spectators.

The Tiburon Ecumenical Association, an alliance of churches, is the project sponsor.

Stewart Hopkins of the Hill Haven Property Owners' Association said he opposed the plan because "Tiburon needs an instant slum like it needs a hole in the head."

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood, speaking for the move, won applause when she asked, "How can a redevelopment of the area depreciate the property value?"

Asst. City Atty. Richard Breiner said the plan may be changed at the specific plan stage, but substantial changes would require further council action.

In a related matter, the city council established a committee under former Mayor Gordon Strawbridge to study the feasibility of acquiring a 4.8 acre portion of the Hilarita site for development, along with some adjacent areas, as a park.

The Tiburon City Council also:

CABLE TV — Appointed Councilmen Ellinwood and Albert H. Sennett to study the franchise application of Cable TV of Marin to hook up some areas not presently served by franchisee Clear View Cable Systems, Inc., and to continue to serve in areas of Tiburon annexed after Cable TV of Marin was. Discussion was set for July 27.

LOCAL TRANSIT — Voted to express approval of commute operations of Marin County Transit Systems, to Tiburon and to recommend to the public utilities commission that three routes affecting the city, which the firm has applied for, be approved.

MARK TERRACE — Banned parking on the northwesterly side of Mark Terrace and appropriated $400 to build barricades to prevent cars from rolling into a house at the bottom of the hill on Mark Terrace.

UNDERGROUND WIRES — Postponed until July 13 a hearing on progress of utility companies in removing overhead wires from the previously designated underground wiring district.

HILARY DRIVE — Voted to place a stop sign on Hilary Drive at Maravista Court and to remove the stop sign at the corner of Theresa Court and Hilary Drive.

CLUSTER ZONING — Set for July 13 a hearing on cluster zoning, zoning for densely populated areas separated by open areas.

MAR WEST SLIDE — Authorized the city engineer to spend $2000 on studies preliminary to repairing the landslide damage to Mar West Street. Application to the California Disaster Office for financial assistance in the project has been made.

Greek Tragedy's Patron No Joker

Recently the theater received a mailed request for 24 tickets, accompanied by a check signed, "K. Euripides."

It wasn't a gag. Kodross Euripides, a Greek Cypriot who has lived in England for 15 years, was bringing his wife and 22 friends to see "Medea."

Kentucky Playhouse Scene For New Films

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Hollywood filmmaker Bert Tenzer says he will use Pioneer Playhouse, the State Theater of Kentucky, to produce low-budget films.

Tenzer said the pictures will be produced in local surroundings, with the playhouse used as a sound stage.

Can Drive Paying Off

I-J Special Report

GOLDEN, Colo. — Adolph Coors Co.'s cash-for-cans program has, at its five-month point, resulted in the recovery of more than a million pounds of aluminum — some 26 million cans — at the dime-per-pound price set by the regional brewery, the company has announced.

The program (also underway in Marin), which applies to all aluminum containers, has recovered 1,139,075 pounds thus far and has netted $113,907 for civic organizations and individuals. Some groups are averaging more than $200 per month, the company said.

Early estimates that 2.5 million pounds would be recovered and recycled by the end of 1970 have had to be revised upward. Now, the company estimates, some four million pounds of aluminum will be purchased by its distributors by Jan. 1, 1971 at the dime-a-pound rate.

That would mean a $400,000 payout to those who pick up the cans.

The aluminum recovery program will be continued indefinitely, Coors officials said, as part of a company effort to help keep America clean.

Other states in which the program is underway are Colorado, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Utah.

Russia Wooing British Royalty

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet government wants Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip of Britain to visit Russia as a sign of Britain's independent role in world politics, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the Kremlin has tapped several recent British visitors, men of some influence in London, to tell Buckingham Palace of its interest in a royal visit.

Soviet sources have said such an invitation was suggested informally in 1957 by Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, then visiting London as the Soviet premier of the day in company with party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Room For Loving

MENTONE, Tex. (UPI) — There are more than five square miles for every resident in the western Texas county of Loving. Latest population estimates show only 124 persons living in the county of 647 square miles. Mentone, the county seat, is the only town.

Fairfax Gets Proposed Tax, Budget Hikes

A proposed $556,171 1970-71 budget with a 15-cent tax rate increase was presented to the Fairfax City Council last night by City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet.

The budget proposal was not discussed by the council last night.

The $556,171 in proposed expenditures is $14,049 more than this year's budget, but $11,189 less than this year's estimated expenditures.

Estimated revenue for 1970-71 is $556,171, including $42,057 transferred from reserves.

If adopted by the council, the 15-cent tax increase will raise the city's tax rate to $1.89 per $100 assessed valuation.

SALARY BOOST

The budget proposal includes a 5 per cent salary increase for all full-time city employees, and estimates spending $371,493 for personnel.

Some $112,957 is proposed for materials and supplies, with an additional $5,000 reserve, and $66,721 is proposed for capital improvements.

Major increases in the proposal include the $19,066 proposed for central services, up $9,091 from this year. The proposal includes $9,000 for repairs to the city office building.

The proposed $148,132 for the police department represents an $11,665 increase, and the $127,232 proposed for the fire department is $11,961 over this year's budget.

OTHER OUTLAYS

The proposed expenditures, with this year's figures in parentheses, for the three public works divisions are: engineering, $4,500 ($4,000); streets, $80,815 ($109,074), and street lighting, $20,000 ($18,950).

Other city departments are: city council, $9,850 ($10,050); administrator, $26,156 ($26,455); treasurer, $830 ($780); attorney, $6,500 ($4,900) and planning commission, $2,140 ($2,010).

Retirement, $44,416 ($41,243); audit service, $750 ($750); insurance, $10,700 ($8,885); community promotions, $1,750 ($1,000); building department, $11,548 ($10,842); animal services, $3,300 ($4,000); park, $18,725 ($19,362); recreation, $14,661 ($14,228), and a new expenditure of $100 for civil defense.

Nickel Chewing Gum May Be Thing Of Past

NEW YORK (AP) — Now there's even more reason not to talk while the flavor lasts—chewing gum costs have risen.

"Nickel gum has been a nickel for so long," lamented a Beech Nut, Inc. spokesman Monday as he told of a pack's suggested retail price rise to six cents.

He said increased raw material and labor costs have pushed the wholesale price of a box of 20 packs from 60 to 80 cents.

Fairfax Rejects Plea To Clear Slide Debris

The Fairfax City Council last night rejected an appeal to clear debris from a winter slide at 29 Canyon Road because the owner of the property has filed a claim for damages against the city.

The council had authorized $3,400 April 13 to remove the debris, even though the home of Peter A. Wynne, which was destroyed in the slide, was not within the Fairfax city limits.

The authorization was held up, however, when Wynne filed a claim in May against the city.

Last night, Richard T. Tarrant, San Rafael attorney representing Wynne, again asked the city to finance the debris removal and promised that such action would not be construed as admission of city blame for the slide.

He pleaded that the Wynnes were financially wiped out with the slide and didn't have the money to clear the debris.

He said the claim against the city was filed only to meet a 100-day deadline to file, adding that he did not believe the city was to blame.

He declined however to withdraw the claim.

"We're nice guys, but they've got a knife at our throat," Councilman Francis J. O'Connell said.

The council voted unanimously to reject the appeal, but Mayor Frank J. Egger told Tarrant to contact the city if Wynne would agree to drop the suit.

The Fairfax City Council also:

APPEAL — Rejected an appeal by Councilman Robert R. Souza of a planning commission decision granting a conditional use permit to Max Holsinger for property on Fawn Drive. Souza claimed the permit was in violation of the city's private road ordinance.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of William D. Chapman Jr. from the planning commission for personal and health reasons, and Paul C. Steinmetz from the design review board. Steinmetz had submitted his resignation earlier, but was asked by the council to reconsider. He is still resigning. Egger announced that applications for both positions would be accepted.

GLASS — Referred to City Atty. Wallace Myers a proposed ordinance banning glass containers in the ballfield area of the city park. Councilman Lee Nelder suggested the proposal be amended to allow canteen operators to bring bottled liquids for sale onto the ballfield as long as they do not sell the liquid in bottles.

FIRE TRAILS — Referred to Myers and Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton a proposed ordinance concerning autos parked on fire roads and public road easements.

TRAFFIC — Passed a resolution providing for four stop signs at the intersection of Manor and Scenic roads. In addition, because no record could be found of it having been done officially in the past, the council appointed Police Chief James R. Orr the city traffic engineer.

TREES — Referred to the park and recreation commission a proposal by Egger for an ordinance providing that for every tree the city is forced to destroy, two trees be planted in the city.

FUNDS — Passed a resolution to notify the state department of public works that the city intends to accumulate funds available to it under the federal Traffic Operations to Improve Capacity and Safety program during fiscal 1969-70 and 1970-71 to use for traffic studies prior to June 30, 1972.

ANNEXATION — Directed the planning commission to hold a special meeting to consider prezoning two pieces of property west of the city which are being considered for annexation.

ROAD — Put over for further study a request from Willetta Taft of 104 Crest Road that Crest Road from beginning to her property be established as a city maintained road.

MEETING — Put over the rest of its agenda until 8 p.m. next Monday. The city's first budget session will follow completion of the agenda items.

U.N. Birthday Rituals Begin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city that gave birth to the United Nations has begun celebration of its 25th birthday on a note of confusion.

A noon ceremony Monday in Union Square included international music and folk dances and beauties representing many countries. But there were also problems with sound equipment and it took an hour to raise flags of 36 member nations on the facade of Macy's department store.

The Silver Anniversary celebration will take on a true international flavor Thursday and Friday when statesmen from 125 of the 126 U.N. nations arrive. Only troubled Cambodia will not be represented.

Petaluma Council Begins Review Of Proposed Budget

The Petaluma City Council found little to quibble abut last night in the first of a series of reviews of he proposed $3,119,473 budget for 1970-71.

Most discussion was limited to cost of materials, supplies and departmental services since City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer was absent due to illness.

Salaries and proposed capital improvements will be delayed until the completion of preliminary studies, the council said, as it scheduled more meetings for today at tomorrow at 7 p.m.

The recommended budget of $324,111 for the police department brought questions as Police Chief Larry D. Higgins disputed the city manager's reduction for repair service for patrol cars from $6,400 to $5,400. He said he could not foresee spending less on repairs.

City Engineer David A. Young also asked that some of his requests that were cut by Meyer be reinstated. He said that costs for street lighting had been set at $64,000 but were cut to $62,000.

Young noted that nearly $60,000 would be spent this year and said the cost will be much higher next year since some stronger lights have been installed in old sections of the city and new lights would be added in the growing subdivisions.

The city engineer also asked that his request for $225 for travel and meeting expenses not be cut to $75 as recommended by the city manager.

Young said that other departments have been allocated more funds and that his staff should also have the opportunity to attend regional professional meetings.

The boy, Michael Blass of 200 Bolinas Road, was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Thomas Henry Walker, also of 200 Bolinas Road, which collided with an auto driven by Gail Jane Melnick, 27, of 150 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross, on Sir Francis Drake near her home.

San Rafael Elementary, High Budget Given Tentative Nod

Tentative budgets of $4,830,843 for the San Rafael Elementary School District and $4,968,635 for the high school district were tentatively approved by the San Rafael Board of Education last night.

Lewis S. Pollock of 9 Knoll Way pointed out that higher elementary district budget spending proposed before defeat of tax increases June 2 could be financed without creating a deficit.

Supt. John F. Plank said, however, he could not recommend that as it would be deficit financing, since it would require using all or nearly all of reserves accumulated from the current year. The board went along with him, acting chairman John C. Pfeiffer stressing that the tentative budget is "a living document" subject to change up to the first week in August.

Principal cuts were in capital outlay, slashed $31,620 in the elementary district and $52,729 in the high school district, and maintenance of plant, reduced $82,824 in the elementary district and $47,857 in the high school district.

Board member Paul L. Jones worried that these meant deferring maintenance and improvements that might hit the districts with heavier loads in 1972.

The tentative budgets call for a 6.8 per cent cost of living raise for employees — up from the 5 per cent considered earlier — but do not include fringe benefits for teachers which are financed from a special override tax. (This tax will be sharply reduced, requiring re-budgeting, if Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax reform package becomes law.)

Administration costs were reduced by $30,217 in the elementary district and $23,834 in the high school district. Part of this was by eliminating positions, and part by transferring some positions from "administration" to "teaching." Instruction costs were reduced also, however — $33,729 in elementary and $52,874 in high school — by eliminating some positions, programs, and supplies. Board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was worried by cuts in the "more able learners" program which he feared would emasculate the program, and by reduction of time allotted for supervision of vocational training.

There was a brief discussion of saving $28,000 by adopting a busing plan proposed by John Thompson, transportation supervisor. Thompson's plan would use fewer buses with fewer stops, requiring students to wait longer for buses and congregate at the remaining stops in greater numbers. The board decided not to try it this year.

Kramer entered repeated objections about the form in which the budget was submitted to the board, complaining it lacked clear detail and failed to show amounts budgeted for this year although it showed amounts spent.

Not included in the elementary district total was $127,000 for a new building at Laurel Dell Primary School to replace that condemned under the Field Act. This also will be financed from a special override tax — one not affected by the governor's finance bill.

Board president Herman L. Childress Jr., who has missed budget discussion while away on a trip, will be back for the first meeting in July, Pfeiffer reported.

Board, Principals Head Off Student Fund Raid

A raid on the student body treasuries at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools was forestalled last night by objections of the principals and two members of the San Rafael Board of Education.

Supt. John F. Plank, in reducing the high school district budget, eliminated athletic supplies which he proposed to buy from the student body treasuries. Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte said the supplies had already been ordered.

Asked by board member Carl J. Brown how it had been possible to order the supplies yet eliminate them from the budget, Plank replied: "We've loaned the money and will try to get it back."

Principal Alan W. Ellsberg of San Rafael High School objected: "If we really believe student government is something more than play," the students should be allowed to decide whether they wished to buy the athletic supplies. "If they say no, would you discontinue athletics?" he asked.

Principal Frank Stocking of Terra Linda High said he agreed the students "should be involved in supporting the athletic program," but "I also believe they should be in on making the decision."

Acting chairman John C. Pfeiffer wanted to "leave it up to the administration."

This brought a blast from board member Lawrence I. Kramer Jr., joined by Brown, against allowing the superintendent to raid the students' funds without the students' permission.

Pfeiffer then agreed the athletics supplies should be paid from district funds.

Actually, however, the tentative budget for the high school district which the board approved does not include anything for the athletic supplies that Plank proposed to have the student bodies buy, although Pfeiffer said several times "this is budgeted." The amount, about $8,000, will have to be added to the $4,968,635 budget total for the high school district.

The board last night also agreed to pay a 9 per cent architect's fee for jobs under $100,000, but stuck to 8 per cent for larger jobs. The move came as the board approved a $127,000 contract with Marshall and Bowles architectural firm for the design of a new building at Laurel Dell Primary School. The firm had asked for a sliding fee scale which would have paid it 10.8 per cent. It got 8 per cent.

The firm had askedf orasliding feesc alewhich would have paid it 10.8 per cent. It got 8 per cent.

Three Tape Recorders Stolen From School

Three tinted windows were broken to gain entry. Police said a microphone amplifier was also removed from the building, but was found discarded outside.

Salaries Delaying Mill Valley Budget

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Mill Valley City Council, marking time until it resolves the question of city employees' salaries, last night made minor deletions and revisions in a record $2,002,703 budget.

Councilmen eliminated $1,000 earmarked for traveling expenses to the League of California Cities convention this fall and decided not to repave the downtown parking lot, a $3,500 saving, but decided to leave the money in the reserve fund.

In all, the council discussed some $768,000 of proposed allocations for materials, supplies and services, but made no other change.

The budget's biggest question mark, the $1,063,493 proposed for salaries, remained unresolved. City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has been meeting with representatives of the Mill Valley Employees Association in an attempt to agree on salary requests.

Cunningham has proposed a 7.5 per cent raise for most city employees, who have asked that salaries be increased to 5 per cent above the average of 17 cities chosen by both parties.

Salary discussion is expected to occupy most of the next budget session, set for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall. The council also may consider the parks and recreation budget.

Councilmen briefly talked about the parks and recreation budget after several members of that commission showed up at last night's meeting in the gallery of the library.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said he was concerned about widely circulated reports that his department was responsible for a $38,000 deficit which the council must recoup in fiscal 1970-71.

The deficit stems from the cost of moving the community recreation center to its present location at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue.

"Reports in the newspapers have made it sound like the budget is in the hole due to my mismanagement," Dimitratos told Mayor George E. Wickham. "That's not so. Why blame the Parks and Recreation Department?"

Cunningham said that the deficit is included under the 1970-71 parks and recreation budget because that is how last year's auditor's report categorized it.

"It's still there because the general fund is at the legal taxing limit of $1 (per $100 assessed valuation)," Wickham said. "We have to carry it somewhere."

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke suggested that the $38,000 was not the department's fault, but the city council's, which last year approved the moving of the recreation center.

"Let's just say that the deficit was assigned to parks and recreation," he said. This appeared to please everyone.

After further wrestling with the budget, which Cunningham said would require a tax rate of $3.115 per $100 assessed valuation, up from this year's $2.42, it became apparent that no significant changes could be made until salaries are discussed.

Councilmen talked briefly about capital improvement projects, but made no changes. They agreed to consider this part of the budget at another session July 1 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

To Earth-based observers, the sun appears a hundred billion times brighter than any other star, National Geographic says. However, the sun would seem puny if matched at the same distance against such brilliant stars as Rigel, which is 15,000 times more luminous.

City Of Buffalo Fined: Pollution

Dr. William E. Mosher said the city violated the county's sanitary code in the operation of an incinerator and dump on Squaw Island in the Niagara River.

The city was accused of allowing open burning at the dump. The county code prohibits all types of open burning.

Dr. Leary's Son Given Probation

SANTA ANA (UPI)—John Bush eary, 20-year-old son of Dr. Timothy Leary, was sentenced Monday to three years probation for possession of marijuana and LSD.

Leary appeared in court following a 90-day psychiatric examination at the California Institution For Men at Chino which was ordered the day of his conviction, March 11.

Appearing in court in conservative attire, shorn of his beard and with relatively short hair, Leary told Superior Court Judge Byron McMillan he planned to return to college.

Bank Gal's Uniforms

TOKYO (UPI) — Fuji Bank, Japan's largest commercial bank in terms of deposits, has put all its women employees in uniforms designed by Pierre Cardin. Summer uniform is a one-piece dress, winter a two-piece dress, both navy blue with white piping. Fuji Bank, founded 90 years ago, operates branches throughout Japan.

Beached Shark Bites Boy's Leg

The boys had dragged the shark ashore when it flipped itself over and bit Faulkner.

Fire rescue units rushed the teen-ager to Hollywood Memorial Hospital where he was reported in good condition.

Opposition To Further Support Cuts

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday voiced strong opposition to further cuts in state support that could cost the county $550,000 next year.

Telegrams opposing passage of Assembly Bill 525 were authorized after County Administrator David L. Nichols reported proposed blanket reductions of state support in the bill could add as much as 13 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the county tax rate.

Nichols, who lamented the loss of state funds in the presentation of the 1970-71 county budget, said the bill would reduce state spending on all programs by 2.25 per cent.

Last week he said that the reduction in state support for state mandated programs was a major cause of the $7 million budget increase. He said that if the assembly bill passes, that figure would have to be raised even higher.

Turning to other pending legislation, supervisors endorsed Senate Bill 403 as authored by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, which would authorize an additional clerk for both the Southern Sonoma and Central Sonoma municipal courts and increase the salary of superior court reporters to $13,800 per year.

$886,000 Park Plan Nearing Completion

The proposed park master plan should be in final form next month, the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission heard last night.

Chairman Ronald E. Rasmussen said that final changes requested by school districts with adjacent park property now are being incorporated into the plan by the architectural firm of Ribera and Sue.

Rasmussen said the plans would then be formally presented to the commission and city council and work begun on finding a means of financing the park improvements estimated to cost $886,000.

The preliminary plans included the development of grounds at Alicia Park adjacent to the John Reed School to include turf and irrigation improvements and additional recreation facilities such as tennis courts and a tiny tots playlot.

Projects for Benecia Park included picnicking facilities, softball fields, handball courts, gymnastic area and expansion of swimming pool facilities.

Rasmussen said that many avenues will be explored in searching for financing and may include a bond issue or applications for federal grants.

The commission also heard a report from recreation director Thomas West that all summer recreation programs have been well attended and successful; and gave tentative approval to the Sonoma County Sheriff's League to use Alicia Park and pool for a picnic on Aug. 1 or 8.

Kentfield's Staff Gets Pay Increase

A 6 per cent pay raise for the administrative staff was approved last night by the Kentfield School District board.

Cost of the increase will be $5,400 a year, reported Supt. Anthony G. Bacich. The raise covers the superintendent, the principals and guidance personnel. Six per cent is the same figure approved for classified employees earlier, and offered to teachers. Teacher salaries are still under negotiation, Bacich said.

The board also heard Stanley T. Smith, of the district citizens advisory committee, ask for more board involvement in the committee's study of long-range district planning.

Requests by nine parents that their children not be transferred to new schools because of attendance boundary changes were granted. Bacich said most were proposed transfers from Adaline E. Kent School to Wolfe Grade School of pupils who will be sixth graders next fall. In 1971, the children would have to return to Kent to enter seventh grade, he said.

The Kentfield School District board also:

BUSINESS MANAGER — Hired Emma Wright as business manager at $10,000 a year. She has been acting business manager since the death of Elizabeth Beatty in January.

SETTLING — Asked architects Corlett and Spackman of San Francisco to send a representative to the July 13 meeting to discuss settling of a 1965 addition designed by the firm for the mutli-purpose room at Kent School.

MEETING — Adjourned to a meeting at 8 p.m. July 13 in the library of Wolfe Grade School.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold SOCIAL Shares For Income, Growth

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a widow and have 335 shares of Standard Oil of California. Have $10,000 due in insurance. Should I stay with Standard Oil and buy more or invest in another stock? — D.C.

A. Standard Oil of Calironia shares have been under pressure as a result of the platform fire in the Gulf of Mexico. The possibility of SOCAL's failure to maintain safety devices is now under investigation. If financial reparation is necessary, the effect on earnings is expected to be minimal.

Heavy selling by institutions dropped SOCAL from Vickers' list of 50 largest institutional holdings for the first time in 20 years. Also influencing its market activity are prospects of flat or lower earnings for 1970. Eastern Hemisphere product prices are expected to be generally lower than in 1968, taxes are to be increased approximately $20-$50 million and labor and materials costs will edge up. However, SOCAL's excellent position in major exploration areas and ability to maintain and increase its share of production and markets should allow the company to revive earnings growth.

Shares should be held for income — 6.8 per cent yield — and long-term appreciation prospects. For diversification purpose, use new funds to invest in short-term, high-yield corporate bonds or another income issue, such as Boston Edison Common.

Q. I am interested in Energy Fund, a no-load mutual fund. I would appreciate any comment you could make on this for investment. — W.R.

A. Energy fund emphasives stocks related to energy sources, components and equipment as well as issues of companies which indirectly benefit from technological advances in this field. Although the fund's performance record for 1969 (-15 per cent) and thus far into 1970 (-12 per cent) has been only average, the 90 per cent gain reported for the 1963-1968 interval is an indication of the fund's potential under more favorable market conditions.

The over-all quality of investments is high; and the portfolio turnover rate is modest. With long-term appreciation as its goal, the fund appears well-suited for investment.

Tight Cash Worry Sends Stocks Down

Losers on the New York Stock Exchange led winners by a margin of more than 3 to 1 in slow trading.

Analysts said that investor concern over the tight cash position of major corporations was stimulated by the bankruptcy petition of the Penn Central railroad subsidiary.

Trading in Penn Central stock was delayed in opening again. The issue did not trade until the closing minutes of Monday's session, when it closed off $4.60 at $6.50.

Trading in Chrysler was delayed until close to 2 p.m. when it opened off $2.13 at $17 on a volume of 173,000 shares.

Shortly after the delay was announced, Chrysler board chairman Lynn Townsend issued a statement saying the car manufacturer was operating on a profitable basis and that it had no outstanding bank debt in the United States or Canada.

Delays in both stocks were attributed to large influxes of orders. This generally means that there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders and that a price cannot be negotiated on the trading floor.

Profit Drop Expected

NEW YORK (UPI) — General Signal Co. expects its second quarter earnings to be down 15 to 20 per cent from a year ago because of the trucking strikes, Chairman Nathan Owen said Friday. Second quarter earnings last year were $1.02 a share.

Oil Gusher No Longer Reason For Rejoicing

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — "Gone are the days when an oil gusher was reason to rejoice," says one of Sun Oil Co.'s environmental experts. "Today, a blowout just means a lot of wasted oil and a mess that must be cleaned up."

Harold F. Elkin, Sun's coordinator of environmental conservation, doesn't feel water pollution is a new problem but one more highly publicized recently, generating complex technical and legal problems for oil companies.

"Major oil spill incidents have shaken the public confidence in our ability to conduct our operations in a manner that will not harm the environment," Elkin told a recent University of Tulsa study course.

"Oil spills have cost the industry millions of dollars in production — as well as cleanup costs — but such costs are insignificant compared to what these spills have cost us in public confidence and goodwill.

"Oil pollution has brought complaints from ordinary citizens as well as vocal and influential conservationists. Legislative proposals, on both state and loval levels¼ are being considered which will make it more difficult for us to find, produce, and transport oil and other petroleum products required by society. Future development of offshore oil reserves will probably be delayed as a consequence of our offshore accidents. The swift development of oil reserves on Alaska's north slope has been jeopordized.

"The problem has been aggravated by unfavorable, and in some cases unfair, publicity," Elkin added. "But the problem is serious and real, and our industry must solve it.

"If, in spite of the best care, accidental spills do occur, they require immediate coordination of efforts of many company divisions and, perhaps, the assistance of outside agencies.

Firms Alerted On Billings For Unsolicited Advertising

Merchants in Marin and Sonoma Counties, who are members of the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco, are being alerted to a recurrence of that old "gyp" practice — the mailing of invoices for unauthorized advertising, from a disabled American veterans' news publication, a peace officers' publication and another news publication, all in San Francisco.

This is definitely a violation of a California law which requires all solicitations for payment of goods not ordered, that can be interpreted as a bill, to show in large, boldface type: "This is a solicitation for the order of goods or services and you are under no obligation to make payment unless you accept the offer contained herein." The mailings do not contain this statement.

Businessmen receiving questionable advertising notices of this kind are being urged to forward copies to the Better Business Bureau at 414 Mason Street, San Francisco, with the envelope and a statement that the advertising was not ordered.

THOMAS E. DROHAN of Tiburon has been promoted to general manager of the food products division of Foremost Foods Co. in San Francisco. He joined the company in 1961 as a product manager and was named general manager of the grocery products division in 1964. Since last year he has been director of marketing of the food products division. He is a vice president of Foremost-McKesson, the parent firm.

Test Yourself On What A Will Means

By LUIS KUTNER

A will is a lawful and voluntary disposition of property by a person competent to take such action (called the testator, or maker of the will) to one or more donees, or recipients — such transfer of ownership to take effect only upon the death of the testator.

A will can be revoked or changed by a subsequent will, or by a supplementary document called a codicil, which explains, modifies, cancels or adds certain provisions.

The familiar expression, "last will and testament," is virtually meaningless today because will and testament are now used synonymously. But at one time, testament referred to an instrument which disposed of one's personal property (movable articles, such as furniture or jewelry, or stocks, bonds, bank accounts, etc.) as distinct from a will which disposed of real property (land, buildings, crops, and the like).

Changing times have brought other changes in legal practice as related to wills. For many years there was no choice — property had to descend to the eldest child. This is no longer true. One may dispose of one's property as one sees fit with the exception that one may not disinherit his or her mate.

A person's estate (the sum of all his possessions) is made up of many things. Principal assets of most estates comprise the following:

1. Cash on hand and in bank.
2. Personal articles (auto, jewelry, household goods, objets d'art and other personal belongings).
3. Personal life insurance (business life insurance should be considered only in connection with the business).
4. Real estate.
5. Securities (stocks, bonds, mortgages not directly connected with your own business).
6. Business interests (sole proprietorship, partnership interest, stock in a closed corporation, contracts, franchises, etc.).
7. Miscellaneous (professional accounts receivable, commission and salary due, pension fund payments).

On the other hand, certain property is not included in the general assets of an estate, as for example:

1. An insurance policy payable to a named beneficiary and not to the man's estate.
2. United States bonds held in the name of one person and payable on death to another.
3. Property owned by two persons as joint tenants with right of survivorship goes to the survivor.
4. Exempt property, where an allowance is provided for the widow and surviving children (such as homestead), is set aside and not distributed as part of the estate.

BESIDES STATING in written form how the testator wants his assets distributed at his death, a will should provide special instructions for paying the expenses of the husband's last illness as well as funeral and burial expenses; payment of debts; specific bequests of personal belongings; cash bequests to individuals or charities; the handling of real estate; and the creation of trusts.

The will should designate a competent executor (the person authorized to collect and distribute the assets); otherwise the court will exercise its own discretion and appoint an administrator (someone to perform the same function but who has not been named in the will).

The executor should have time to handle the business of the estate. He should be trustworthy and have a considerable knowledge of business affairs. If the estate is large enough, it may be wise to designate a bank to act as the executor as it will have the necessary experience and dependability.

A will should be a carefully written instrument. When anyone makes a will, which should always be drawn by an attorney, he should be sure that it expresses accurately how he wishes to dispose of his property.

Thus, if he has both natural and adopted children and wishes them to share equally in his property, he should state this explicity. If he provides that his "children" are to inherit, it may mean that only his natural children will be entitled to receive his property and his adopted children will be left out in the cold.

If he provides that his married son is to inherit something, he should make it clear if he wants his son's wife and child to receive it if the son should die before the will is probated. Likewise, if he does not want a child to receive anything, this must be made clear.

If the provisions of a will are not clear, a bitter family quarrel may arise and the court will have to guess at what the testator intended.

AS A MARRIED woman, you may make your own will, with full power to dispose of your property as you wish, except that your husband has the same legal right to a share in your estate that you have in his. This share is usually called courtesy, homestead or dower.

You should, in fact, make a will. If you die without one and your husband survives you, he will receive, if there are no children, your entire estate — all of your real and personal property —and your close relatives will get nothing.

Although there are some differences in the disposition of property without a will from state to state, if there are children, they will generally get two thirds of the property and your husband will get one third. If you are single, the property will go to your parents, brothers, sisters and, if any of them are dead, to your nephews and nieces. Remem-

SAUSALITO NURSE-airline stewardess Joyce Lynn Cane chats with patients in Bir Hospital in Kathmandu, Nepal, as she makes her rounds. On leave to work three months as a volunteer with the Tom Dooley Foundation, Joyce taught student nurses medical theory and instructed them in sterile technique and patient care through her own example.

Nursing In Nepal Like 'Nightingale'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Sausalito nurse-airline stewardess Joyce Lynn Cane, who recently returned from Kathmandu, Nepal, says she experienced a "culture shock" on returning to the United States after three months as a Tom Dooley Foundation volunteer.

"Everyone there cares so much and is giving so much," she says. "People here don't seem to care. All they think of is having a good time. It was actually hard to fit back into life here at first."

Regularly employed with the Pan American World Airways, one of 25 major airlines which permits their stewardesses to take three-month leaves to work on foundation programs in Southeast Asia, Joyce instructed student nurses and assisted in the wards of Bir Hospital.

"IT WAS LIKE nursing in the days of Florence Nightingale," says Joyce, who is a graduate of the Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago.

"I saw diseases I had to look up in my medical manual because I had never seen them, but only two chronic heart disease cases. People don't live that long there.

"Fundamental hygiene was part of the teaching I did. I had to explain why you don't prepare food on the floor. When someone is in the hospital his entire family comes to visit. They bring a hot plate and cook on the floor as they do at home.

"But you become impressed with the people," she notes. "The family is so close that there is always someone with a patient, watching or bringing him special concoctions. Sometimes it's hard to tell who is the patient because whoever is oldest in the family gets the bed!"

Joyce admits she had to learn to adapt to conditions as they were and improvise.

"I HAD attended a large medical center where everything was disposable," she explains, "but there was nothing to replace things with there. Six needles had to last eight hours. At first I tried to get the nurses to discard blunt, warped or twisted ones, but I soon found you don't throw anything away!"

Joyce taught the 16 to 18-year-old nurses to work through her own example. When they didn't want to bathe patients with skin diseases, she did it herself until they lost their fears.

Frustration was frequent. "Many medical problems which are simple and relatively scarce in this country are serious and commonplace in Nepal," she says. "It was so hard for me because I know the problems can be overcome.

"Hospital wards are full of patients with TB, meningitis and malnutrition. Fat babies fed rice die from malnutrition. Parents are so hardened they look old. Tears streaming down their faces, they know they can't take their baby to Delhi for treatment of congenital defects."

In addition to working in hospitals the girls serve as teachers of English and health education and assistants in a Tibetan refugee settlement, an orphanage and a leprosarium.

IN KATHMANDU Joyce shared a house with four other Dooley volunteers and an administrator and rode a bicycle to work. Highlight of a holiday period was living with a Nepalese family, sleeping on the floor, eating with her hands and participating in festivities.

"In spite of all the problems," she says, "I learned to relax and forget the rush-rush of American life."

Off To Hawaii For A Weekend Wedding

By MOLLY MARIN

A number of people from the mainland were in Honolulu over the weekend attending the wedding Sunday of Gwen Ann Wittenmeier of Mill Valley and Robert Quinn Palmer III of Honolulu. They included the bride's parents, Mr. and rs. Joseph Wittenmeier, and her brother Gary of Mill Valley, her sister, Mrs. George Mills of San Rafael, her grandmother, Mrs. May Wittenmeier of Burlingame, and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Tobin of Mill Valley.

Cindy, who attended the Reed School in Tiburon and San DOMENICO School in Sleepy Hollow, is now a junior at Molloy College on Long Island.

THE STANLEY Lemishes of San Rafael celebrated their silver wedding at a surprise party given by their son and daughter on Sunday. The couple were married 25 years ago in Reno.

To Clean Shades

After cleaning window shades, let the shade dry throughly, then roll it up to the top of the window and leave it rolled up for 10-to-12 hours. This simple "roll up" trick leaves the shade pristine fresh and as perfectly flat and ironed looking as a brand new one

A Medieval Mood For Fall Fashions

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The real influences on fall fashions this year are the Medieval and pre-Raphaelite moods — not the 1930s — according to the kickoff forecast at the American Designer Showings.

Or they reflect the 19th century pre-Raphaelite influence — when fashion defied Establishment stays and stuffings by going to softer, prettier clothes: the first shirtwaist and skirt, soft dog collars, gently modified leg-o'-mutton sleeves.

THE PEASANT and national dress look is strong in some collections shown Sunday at the Delmonico Hotel. It comes from the Middle East. Or from the Far East or the Russian steppes, the Argentine Pampas, the mountains of Switzerland.

The look means intricate embroidery on leathers and velvets from Oscar de la Renta — or stitched flower patterns on white blouses from Donald Brooks. It means the gaucho look, the poncho, pants tucked into boots, the babushka.

Wools are in natural dark tones; earth, metals, stone. All shades of purple are good; plum, prune, wine, garnet and amethyst. Several tones of red are often blended together. And it's a big year for black.

FABRICS ARE lighter than ever — from thick tweeds with synthetic fibers to metallic sheers to gold and silver brocades at night.

Bordering is extravagant: fur, beading, special weaves.

Costume jewelry is having its day: ornate barbarian pieces, the choker, the dog collar, the pendant necklace and long earrings.

Make-up is brighter, more exaggerated. The face is spotlighted again.

The new romantic theme came out in Maximilian's fall fur collection: a long cape in the darkest black glamour mink — a floor length sable wrap and tied coat for $40,000 — even a man's French mustang lounging coat for $2,000. This first ready-to-wear group will be available in selected stores in the United States and Canada.

John Wetz sees men's clothing becoming more casual. He showed horseshoe-necked sweaters under suits and even dinner jackets. The wrap coat is an "upcoming silhouette," said Weitz. He showed stovepipe pants without creases and knickers like those "evil little school boys" used to wear.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

It's Hard To Be Constantly Compared to An Immature Mom

DEAR HELEN:

Ever since I can remember I've heard how popular Mom was when she was in school. She was the prom queen, and a cheer leader, and had her pick of boys. My picture isn't even in my high school annual, but she was plastered all over hers. I have nice friends, get good grades, but —

I'm almost 15 and have never had a boyfriend. So I hear how it was when she was 15. Her annual stays on the table. Mine gets put out of sight.

I used to be able to talk with Dad, but my folks split up two years ago. Mom says the marriage was a big mistake, and she chose the wrong one. She blames us kids for her not finding another husband, but I think her weight has something to do with it.

Sometimes I'd like to scream that I'd rather be me than her; then I feel guilty. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but how can I stop being — COMPARED?

DEAR COMPARED:

It's rough, knowing that you're more mature than your mother — and trying to keep her unaware that you know. Maybe her case of arrested development might be partially cured if you'd substitute truth for pity. A good start: Hide the annuals — and get her to join a reducing club. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Last night I went to the movies with a new boy. He seemed nice, but he turned out hard to manage.

I let him kiss me once, which was a mistake, because when I was enjoying the picture, he gave me a couple of hickies.

This morning my mother saw the red marks on my neck and now she thinks I am an immoral, free-loving hippie.

Please tell her a bite on the neck doesn't mean all is lost. — P.W.

DEAR P.:

It's as hard to convince a mother hickies are innocent fun as it is to convince me you were so interested in the movie you got too unaware.

Let's concede all is not lost, but next time don't encourage Draculas. They've got more in mind than a nip on the neck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our crowd are absolute friends — I mean we'd really go to bat for each other. And we did. I can't believe it even yet.

It started over a simple little incident, mostly messing around, but one person just didn't see it that way. He went stark raving mad. It was like he exploded. We tried to calm him down, but finally it took three kids (also in the friendship ring), and one of them had to sock him, hard.

Then the guy's older brother (also a friend) got mad at the "big kid" who had hit his little brother, and all hell broke loose. Everybody mixed it up.

I hope this will blow over, but maybe we're broken up for good. Today I got to thinking this is the type of incident that starts wars and rioting. Both sides think they're right, but no one listens to the other.

Teens criticize adults for their wars, but they don't realize they do it themselves on a smaller scale. Can't any of us see how futile violence is? — TEEN WHO SAW THE LIGHT

DEAR TEEN:

We see — But only afterwards, when it may be too late. — H.

To Protect Vacant Home

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Police authorities warn that the vacant homes of summer vacationers are tempting to prospective burglars and suggest all unoccupied homes be made to appear lived in. A house that looks occupied will be less tempting to a burglar.

The Nebraska Extension Service recommends, that vacationers lock all doors and windows securely, leave blinds only partially closed, suspend routine pickups and deliveries, inform a neighbor of your itinerary and where you can be reached, have the lawn cut regularly and notify local police of your planned absence.

Upper Classes Drive More

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — People in the upper socioeconomic levels have the greatest opportunity for exposure to outdoor advertising, reports a University of Nebraska survey.

The survey showed that for men and women with $10,000-plus household income and a college education, two-thirds are in the heaviest motoring group — logging more than 10,000 miles annually.

Meanings And Reasons For Leaving A Will

ber that even your cars, jewelry, and furniture are included in your estate.

If your husband dies first, the fact that he has made a will does not solve everything. What will happen if he has left everything to you and then you die shortly afterwards? Who will care for the children? If you had made a will, you could have provided specifically for their care.

You may have prized sentimental possessions — china, jewelry or art — that you would like to see passed on to a daughter or special relative. The only way to insure that these intentions are carried out is to express them in a will. A will helps prevent family feuds. Quarrels can arise as to who gets the baby grand piano. A will also enables you to leave money to your favorite charity.

Delay Hinted In Opening Auditorium For More Seats

The Marin County Board of Supervisors hinted yesterday it may delay the opening of the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium until the fall of 1971 in order to enlarge its seating capacity.

The supervisors, who are near the end of their budget hearings, learned from Leon G. Kalimos, county fair director, that present plans for an 800-seat capacity at the building would limit its appeal to theatrical booking agents.

Kalimos, former executive director and sole survivor of Fair-Marin, as an official agency, said a 1,200-seat theater would be preferred by quality theatrical and musical performers because it would offer greater financial possibilities. He said only small acts could make money in a theater such as now planned.

Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, said the 400-seat increase would cost an additional $100,000 bringing next year's auditorium budget to about $300,000.

Supervisor John F. McInnis, claiming he wanted to see maximum use of the structure, suggested the board delay a decision on the auditorium until the administrator's staff could draft new budget recommendations. Other board members agreed.

McInnis explained that if the 1,200-seat figure were approved, the structure could not open for another year and therefore funds allocated for its dedication and advance publicity could be transferred for seat addition.

Campanella told the board 1,200 seats would require 70 to 80 per cent capacity use seven days a week to break even.

Supervisor William A. Gnoss, registered shock at the figure and disavowed any connection with the building's approval. The soon-to-retire supervisor explained the structure was conceived following World War I and approved before he was elected after World War II.

Campanella told the board it would cost $529,000 to complete the building and grounds at the 1,200-seat level and about $1 million to complete the project at 2,100 seats.

McInnis suggested completing only the building at the 1,200-seat figure of $300,000 suggested earlier by Campanella.

He added that such action would also mean asking the Marin Arts and Garden Fair to put off its move to the Civic Center grounds for another year.

Other members agreed and requested the administrator's staff to come in with new proposal centered around the $300,000 figure.

The board began June 15 considering the proposed $37 million budget for fiscal 1970-71 estimated to require a tax rate of $2.54 per $100 assessed valuation. This year's budget is $33,261,422 with a tax rate of $2.395.

In other budget action yesterday, the board lost little time approving a demand from Marin cultural groups that $30,000 in county subsidies be reinstated in the budget.

The item, listed in the economic development budget, was deleted in May by County Administrator Alan Bruce over the protests of about 15 groups.

Bruce had reasoned the item was no longer needed as the groups would be given special consideration for use of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium when it opens — previously scheduled for November.

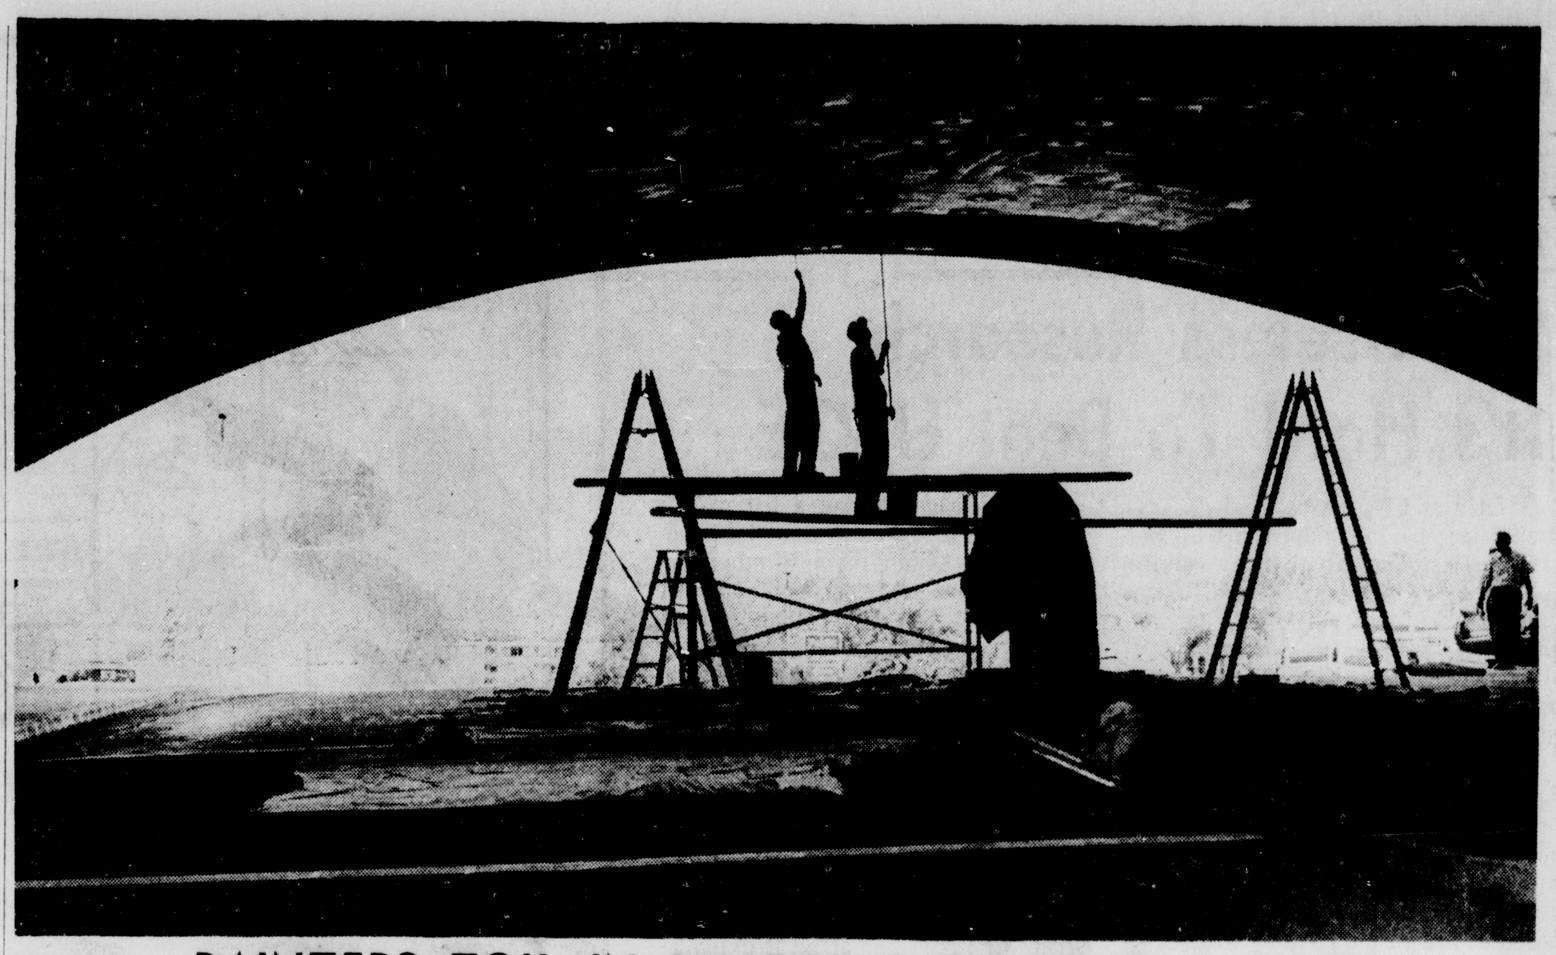
The board, following a brief discussion, unanimously overruled his recommendation.

The Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council did not fare as well.

The council had requested $30,000 to continue county health studies, but Bruce slashed that figure to $8,000. The supervisors, claiming they would not support a function which had assumed governmental powers without being responsible to the electorate, voted unanimously to drop the council from the budget.

About $1,000 was approved to continue the council's secretary on the county payroll until adequate notice could be served that her position was being deleted.

The War on Poverty, Neighborhood Youth Corps, county pound, special recreation services, county grounds, fish and game, recorder, county clerk and elections budgets survived major cuts by the board.



PAINTERS TOIL IN SHADOWS OF CIVIC CENTER

Painters work in the dark, but cool, shade of the main arch as the Marin County Civic Center's administration building gets it first new paint job since it opened in October of 1962. Only the interior public areas of the building, of which the arch is considered a part, are being painted, but it is taking Novato painting contractor John W. Metzger 200 gallons of paint to do it. The $5,400 job was begun June 8 and should be finished this week. (Independent-Journal photo)

Flyers Urge Support For Budget Cuts

Two thousand flyers went out by mail and hand-delivery today from four Marin organizations, urging a big turnout Thursday to persuade the Marin County Board of Supervisors to start over again on budget cutting.

The flyer, headed "Emergency Notice," declares:

"This Thursday, hundreds of taxpayers are going to converge on the Civic Center. We are going to tell the board of supervisors that the tax burden must be reduced. We are going to ask the board to keep this year's budget from exceeding the '69-70 budget of over $33,000,000. This is plenty!"

They were being distributed by the Marin Property Owners Association, Marin Builders Exchange, Marin County Board of Realtors, and Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Other organizations, including home-owner groups, are expected also to urge their members to attend the Thursday morning budget session of the supervisors to plead for cuts, according to Robert A. Roumiguiere of San Rafael, organizer of the all-out effort.

The flyer asks taxpayers to be at the board room in the Civic Center at 8:45 a.m. on Thursday — a quarter-hour before the session is scheduled to begin.

"Maybe this will be the beginning of a county-wide, statewide, even a nation-wide trend to 'hold the line' on government expenditures," says the flyer.

Roumiguiere said he started the move because it became evident the supervisors were not holding the line sufficiently to prevent an increase in the county tax rate.

College Trustees Eye Fall Bond Call

The possibility of a bond issue for the November ballot was raised for the first time last night by the Marin Junior College District board.

In a special meeting to discuss possible financial proposals for November's election, the board discussed a variety of override tax ideas and the bond issue proposal, reported John A. Grasham, superintendent-president of College of Marin. No decision was reached.

Among figures suggested, Grasham said, was a $20 million, 25-year bond issue with the bond service tax rate to be held to 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation or lower. Some trustees suggested that part of the total, perhaps 75 per cent, be earmarked for construction of the proposed Novato campus.

Another proposal was to seek voter approval of an override tax of 15 to 20 cents per $100. That would require only a majority, while the bonds would require a two-thirds vote.

Grasham said the board wants to hold the total tax rate to present levels, and could accomplish that by striking from the presently-authorized 35-cent override whatever amount was approved in November.

The present override is for capital outlay. An override approved in November would provide funds for operating costs, as well, which are currently squeezed harder than capital outlay.

Approval of a bond issue would make money available immediately for construction.

If voters approve none of the November proposals, Grasham said, the district could raise an override tax under existing law to match state funds for capital outlay. A levy of 5 to 7 cents is planned for 1970-71 under the program, but if substantial sums were needed for construction the levy could rise to 50 cents or so, Grasham said. The board wants to avoid using that option since it would raise the total tax rate, he said.

The board will meet again at 8 p.m. Monday in the testing room of the business center to discuss the north campus.

Next regular board meeting will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in Olney Hall.

Group Nets $60 For 'Slave Day'

Sixteen First Baptist Church of San Anselmo youths earned more than $60 Saturday in a fund-raising "salve day" held to send needy youths to summer camp.

Money was still being received this morning for household and yard work done by the volunteers, according to church youth director Wallace Kuroiwa.

The project was originated and carried out by church youth under the direction of volunteer coordinators Nancy Mathews and Stephanie Guaglianone.

San Francisco Man Sentenced For Pot

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday placed Robert Otto Husler, 20, of San Francisco, on probation for one year and ordered him to spend 15 days in jail for a marijuana conviction which he declared a misdemeanor.

Husler had earlier admitted having pot in Marin on Feb. 14.

Man Jailed In Marijuana Case

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday ordered Richard James Fountain, 22, of Novato, to spend 60 days in jail for a marijuana conviction.

He also place Fountain on probation for two years, ordered him to get a job and to submit to periodic testing to determine if he is using narcotics.

Fountain had earlier pleaded guilty to having pot on Nov. 15 in Black Point and on Feb. 28 in Novato. Additional marijuana charges and one of having an unregistered gun were dismissed.

Woman, 29, Denies Possessing Heroin

Carla Jane Lanum, 29, of Santa Venetia, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing heroin and narcotics paraphernalia when arrested in a San Rafael apartment April 23.

A jury trial was set for the week of Aug. 31.

BLUE DAY FOR GREEN FIELDS

Supervisors Slash Parks-Rec Budget Request By $450,000

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Department's dream of sprawling green fields, sandy beaches and bicycle paths was transformed into a rude awakening yesterday as county supervisors slashed about $450,000 from the department's 1970-71 budget request of $900,000.

Embracing County Administrator Alan Bruce's recommendations, the board refused to budget $100,000 for a park in East Corte Madera, $100,000 for a 70-acre facility near the San Geronimo golf course and $50,000 for a bayside park somewhere between Santa Venetia and Black Point.

The supervisors, meeting for their fifth budget hearing, similarly refused department requests for a $60,000 tennis and swim center and a $40,000 service yard. Also deleted was $20,000 for bicycle paths and $50,000 for future park site acquisition.

With strong support from bicycle enthusiasts in the audience, Supervisor Michael Wornum tried twice to have bike trail funds reinstated, but to no avail. Both his motions, one for $20,000 and a second for $12,000, died for lack of a second.

Wornum did succeed however, in having $23,000 carried over from the current budget to continue condemnation proceeding against Northwestern Pacific Railroad for a right-of-way along its tracks in Sausalito.

Audience members quickly added that additional funds should be added to make the county's investment meaningful.

John F. McInnis, board chairman, responded that the decision in the condemnation proceeding was still questionable and he would consider the request for additional funds after a decision.

The department's budget was finally approved at $432,428 on a 4-to-1 vote, with Wornum delcaring he would not vote in favor because it lacked additional bicycle trail funds.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who earlier warned he would fight for a park at Corte Madera if Wornum pushed for bicycle paths, muttered a few quiet words to Wornum after the vote.

"You take care of yours and I'll take care of mine," Wornum shot back, glaring at Baar.

Earlier, department director Pierre W. Joske also had one of his top level position requests sacked by the supervisors. He had requested eight additional employees above the 21 already in his department and four were approved by the county administrator's office.

Dissatisfied with Joske's explanation for the need of a park superintendent, the board bettered Bruce's "bare bones" recommendation by denying the new position request.

Other action saw the supervisor's approve $50,000 for site acquisition at McNears Beach and $100,000 for the park's development.

Special Round On Family Aid

The Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee will hold a special meeting tonight to form a request to the Marin County Board of Supervisors to reconsider its decision to cut county supplementation to recipients of Aid of Families with Dependent Children.

The board reduced supplementary aid to present recipients by one-third and to future cases by two-thirds, effective next month, at a budget hearing last week.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice.

Doctor's Office Theft

Thieves between 12:30 p.m. Saturday and 9:55 a.m. Monday took a blank prescription pad, a $60 radio and a $20 desk clock from the office of Dr. Carl V. Shogren, 710 C Street, Suite 10, San Rafael police reported today.

Jury Trial Booked On Burglary Charge

Brian Augustus Baeszler, 22, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burglarizing the San Rafael Animal Hospital on May 23. A jury trial was set for the week of Aug. 3.

Baeszler, a parole violator from the California Rehabilitation Center, was arrested when he was found hiding under a desk in the animal hospital. He told police he was a heroin addict.

Potted Plant Stirs Pot Count

Sheriff's deputies who saw a Mill Valley man carrying a suspected marijuana potted plant down a street in Homestead Valley Sunday arrested him and a companion on suspicion of cultivating pot.

Booked into Marin County jail were David William Decker, 24, of 23 Mono Way, Mill Valley, and Philip James Tolmach, 19, of New York, N.Y. They were later released on their own recognizance and were to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Deputies said they asked Decker, "is that what I think it is," when spotting the plant, and Decker replied, "Yes, it's marijuana. I got it for my birthday."

San Rafael Suspect Nabbed In Car Theft

Walter Lee Duffey, 20, of 132 Front Street, San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of car theft in Marin Municipal Court. He was to return to court today to enter a plea.

Duffey was arrested Saturday afternoon on Jacoby Street in San Rafael when a police officer noticed a great deal of smoke coming from the 1956 Chevrolet which Duffey was driving. A routine check showed the car had been stolen in San Francisco.

For Useless Research, It's Hard To Beat USOE

Marin and Bay Area local governments have paid for their share of special studies. The city hall or county courthouse without shelves full of bulky reports, and stacks of over-size charts and graphs, all gathering dust after having been paid for with taxpayers' money, probably does not exist.

Marin County, for instance, has had so many studies of its transportation problem that making a new one now entails more cost since there are so many old ones to read and rewrite. Fortunately, the county finally disposed of the problem by wishing it onto the Golden Gate Bridge District. That district, after a couple more studies, did what all the studies had advised: moved to expand bus service as the first attack on the problem.

Studies of San Rafael's parking problem recur regularly, providing a dependable share of the income of consultant D. Jackson Faustman of Sacramento.

Just about every city has its downtown studies, its master plan studies, etc., etc. Each leads to another.

EXPENSIVE as these are, however, they sometimes serve a purpose. All are directed at seeking solutions to actual, important problems. And occasionally, the public body that ordered the study acts on it.

Such is not the case with many studies funded by the federal government. It especially is not the case with those paid for from the U. S. Office of Education's share of our income taxes.

USOE, with some fanfare, announced it would undertake a vast program of basic research, beginning this year, to find out what's wrong with American schools.

It recently released a list of the first 19 projects in this "basic research." Among them: whether students in Appalachia perform better in consolidated high schools than in small local schools, the link between personality and job aspirations, the effects of anxiety on computer-assisted learning, the way preschoolers learn mathematical ideas, and the impact of colored illustrations on students' memories.

TO READ THIS LIST, anyone would assume, if he did not know better, that American education was in such wonderful shape that it was difficult to find anything about it to investigate.

The USOE, however, was merely following a basic tenet of educational research, which is: The more obscure and useless the study, the better.

A prime example of this showed up last week.

A research team from Reese State Institute of Behavorial Sciences in Chicago made a study of the egg preferences of students at Hopper College, Evanston, Ill. The team's "research" resulted in conclusions that those who like scrambled eggs have feelings of helplessness, and those who prefer their eggs poached are self-doubting. Fried eggs were linked with guilt feelings, soft-boiled eggs with feelings that life is incomplete. Apparently only the raw egg eater is a normal, healthy being.

The report of this which we read did not mention whether the research was federally funded. It probably was, though.

And its effect on American society will probably be every bit as great as those of the USOE "basic research" studies authorized so far.

Appeal To Owners Of Roaming Dogs

This letter is an appeal to the owners of dogs allowed to roam at will the Dominican area. We live on Locust Avenue and I'm sure that my neighbors are not aware of damage and continuous problems to us which their dogs are responsible for. I speak to the fine residents of our county on the basis of the Golden Rule which should remind us that our responsibility for the animals we own goes beyond providing for them food and shelter.

It is vital to call to your and your readers' attention a serious oversight in what otherwise was a splendid article with photographs of "Marin Designers' Showcase" on the front page of the women's section on June 17. The omission included the address of this outstanding Marin FIRST, which is 1420 Grand Avenue, San Rafael; the hours, which are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day of the week. . .

May I make a very special plug for the beneficiary of all this hard work and dedication, the Volunteer Bureau in San Rafael. The bureau has been in existence for six years, interviewing and placing approximately 3,000 volunteers in community service . . .

Buy That Clutch For Minibike

I, too, read with interest the article about Charles Rivas, a "12-year-old son of a welfare mother." The reply by a Novato woman (in the Letters column) who is upset over people on welfare having normal, healthy outlets for their recreation and pleasure just because they are "welfare recipients" betrays an attempt to hang on to the past.

Charles and his family are to be commended, rather than scorned! Where a boy only 12 years old thinks enough of his family to want to share what little money he will earn playing his drums, then this shows a good family relationship. Welfare funds are there to make sure good family relationships remain. Just because Charles also thinks of his needs does not in the least diminish the fact that he is sharing his earnings with his family.

Buy that mini-bike clutch, Charles. And more power to you for your efforts with your musical talents.

We Worked For It; How Naive Of Us!

"Do you have any idea what it's like to answer a child who asks for a bicycle you can't afford?" was asked of the board of supervisors by a sobbing welfare mother at the budget hearing June 18, as reported in your paper the following day. The proposed reductions in certain county welfare payments prompted this and other bitter remarks. "I hate you - all of you!" was another quoted epithet by another woman.

When I wanted a bicycle at about age 12, many years ago, my father told me that if I would earn half of the cost, he would put up the other half - otherwise, no bike. I worked all summer, at any sort of odd jobs I could find, anything at all, whether I liked it or not. Finally, at the end of summer I had the $15 I needed and became the proud owner of a new three speed bicycle, the first in our neighborhood. In those days we didn't know that if you wanted something and didn't have the money, rather than work for it or do without, you should go to your town or county officials and demand that they furnish the wherewithal! How naive we were then!. . .

In this period of a tight labor market, jobs are available, if one really wants to work (in spite of all the current noise about unemployment), and in the county with the highest per capita income in the state, it is ridiculous to have welfare costs second only to schools. How long will we taxpayers continue to be suckers? Welfare should be for absolute needs, not for just wants!

Bill Would End Predator Program

Ecology is a matter of great concern these days and rightly so. And predatory animals like mountain lions and coyotes are part of the balance of nature, keeping rodents and other small animals in check. Yet the federal government has a predator control program, in which a vast number of trappers and poisoners are employed to kill predatory animals.

HR 15737, to end the government's predator control program, has been introduced by Congressman Morris Udall in the House of Representatives. It provides that if a predator kills sheep or cattle (which is rare) the stockmen can be compensated.

Letters in support to Edward Garmatz, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Senators Cranston and Murphy, and your own congressman, are badly needed now.

Nixon Alliance With Hard Hats Bodes Ill For The Democrats

WASHINGTON — For the first time in more than three decades, the power bloc that has been the solid base of the Democratic Party is cracking. For Democratic strategists looking ahead, the split in the trade union movement is like the initial tremors of an earthquake.

George Meany, the venerable boss of the ALF-CIO, with his gray eminence and secretary of state, Jay Lovestone, at his elbow, gave President Nixon blank-check support for Cambodia. The outpouring of the hard hats in New York and St. Louis followed. The President invited the New York paraders to the White House and the embrace was ratified with a hard hat for the smiling chief executive.

When Mr. Nixon made the pilgrimage to the handsome AFL-CIO headquarters a block from the White House for an appearance before the executive council, Meany had harsh things to say about rising prices and the wage gap. But this was obscured by Meany's benediction for the Nixon war policy, a blessing that he had given to Lyndon Johnson in the years of the escalation.

THERE IS a strong quid pro quo in the Meany-Lovestone position. For several years the AFL-CIO has been getting considerable sums from the Agency for International Development to promote Meany-Lovestone foreign policy in Latin America, Asia and Africa through "free trade unions."

A year ago chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held hearings into the terms of the partnership between AID and the AFL-CIO's subsidiaries, the American Institute for Free Labor. Meany, as witness, shouted angrily as Fulbright questioned the wisdom of turning over funds — more than $30 million at that point — to a non-governmental organization.

"Mr. Chairman," Meany declared, "they were not supplying money to me. This money is used to carry out U. S. government foreign policy."

Aid continues to supply funds to the AFL-CIO subsidiaries. Formerly this money came directly from the Central Intelligence Agency. Aid administrator John A. Hannah recently said that as of today it is only in Laos that some AID funds go for CIA operations.

THE UNIONS that are the core of support for the President's policy in Indochina — the hard hats in the construction industry — have reason to be grateful to government if only because of the hands-off attitude on wages and prices. Nor are they likely to be alarmed by the president's economic message and the promise of an "inflation alert." The alert is many months too late.

These unions have led the wage increase parade. The careful figures prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that contracts recently negotiated in the construction industry average a 15.5 per cent jump the first year and 39 per cent over three years. This compares with an average in manufacturing of 5.5 per cent for the first year and slightly more than 15 per cent for three years. Needless to say, these increases are passed on by the construction industry in the cost of building.

"THE INEVITABILITY of the election of a Republican candidate for President in 1968 was universally conceded," the head of a white-collar union writes. "One force, and one force only, came within an eyelash of reversing that outcome, the AFL-CIO. Maybe there was a place here or there where we could have strained a little harder but it is difficult to give much consideration to such questioning."

The questioning points to 1972 and the Meany-Lovestone stand on the Vietnam War. The Meany front is not entirely united — Jacob Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers filed a dissent. But the ideological shove to the right is powerful.

South Korea Regime Clings To U.S. 'Security Blanket'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Twenty years ago this month President Harry S Truman answered a Communist thrust across the 38th parallel into South Korea with the dispatch of American troops to the Asia mainland.

More than 50,000 American troops are still in South Korea. It is perhaps noteworthy that after 20 years, there still is one phrase common in other parts of the world but not heard in South Korea. It is:

"Yankee, go home."

In fact, the South Koreans currently are going through what is becoming an annual case of the jitters over the possibility that the Yankees might go home far earlier than the Koreans would wish.

As a reason for wanting to pull at least one Army division out within a matter of months, the United States cites "budgetary" pressures and President Nixon's warning to Asian nations that they must take over a greater share of their own defenses.

The Korean reply is a "yes, but..."

They do not share what they describe as the "computer logic" of some members of the U.S. Congress who suggest that man for man the American forces in Korea could be replaced by the 50,000 Koreans fighting in South Vietnam once that war is settled.

It is the American presence, they say, that is important and they insist that 1975 is the earliest date by which the United States safely can remove its forces.

THE SOUTH KOREAN argument is not without force.

South Korean intelligence says that the Soviet Union has stepped up its military aid to the north since 1967, supplying MIG-21's, surface-to-air rockets launchers, torpedo boats and T54 tanks.

North Korea's 350,000-man army maintains eight divisions along the truce line, with another 10 divisins backing them up. Communist infiltrators constantly probe into the south and Pyongyang radio maintains a steady and virulent campaign against the United States and the Seoul governments.

ECONOMICALLY, the south is doing well, better than the north.

South Korea's export target for this year is $1 billion.

The Vietnam war has brought financial gain to South Korea. Many South Koreans have gone to work for engineering and construction firms in South Vietnam, and earnings flowing back to South Korea have been estimated as high as $150 million annually.

Rather than reducing its troop strength in South Korea, the South Koreans believe the United States should send even more, especially after it turns back its Okinawa bastion to Japan.

Good Earth Lost—To Pollution

For years polite people didn't talk about human wastes. Flush and forget was the unspoken maxim. Today, however, we must speak about such things because our trying to hide from unpleasant realities has led to the present crisis in water pollution.

When Pearl Buck returned to this country in the 1930s after many years in the Far East, she was horrified to learn that New York City poured hundreds of tons of sewage into the Hudson River and the Atlantic Ocean each day. Not so much because of the pollution, but because of the absolute waste of potential soil nutrients.

Because her husband had been an agricultural scientist, working in China, where all waste was saved, composted and purified by benign bacteria, then used as fertilizer, the mothods of this county must have seemed very strange.

More than strange. I think of it this way. We pollute our rivers and bays with sewage, while taking valuable electricity to make nitrogen fertilizers. There is of course the problem of making sewage sanitary. But we have licked less pressing, less important problems.

The time may be fast approaching when mankind cannot afford to waste anything.

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

The Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee has reported out his SB 141 with a "do pass" recommendation.

The measure provides for a one-cent sales tax on non-returnable beverage containers. In other words, those no-deposit, no return bottles, most of which are plastic, would have to be financed a lot heavier should the Petris measure get through.

The amazing amount of tax, about $25.5 million, which would be collected for the 1970-71 fiscal year is ample evidence that the Petris bill doesn't deal with peanuts.

The Bill would distribute $15.9 million to the counties for cleanup purposes, and give the rest to the state Division of Beaches and Parks to acquire, improve and develop state beaches and parks.

If the purpose of the Petris measure is to clean up the state, this is a peculiar diversion of the taxpayers 'money.

Of course, there is no end to the amount of money that can be spent for beaches and parks. The public has found that out during the past several years when the department has operated with its hand out for considerably more than its share of the taxpayers' dollar.

Now it has come up with the idea to milk the Petris bill, and seize a part of a new, proposed tax to further its purpose of acquiring lands while the money is proposed to be collected for the purpose of cleaning up the environment.

It follows that if collections from the proposed tax are in sufficient amount to turn a few millions over to the beaches and parks, the tax would provide more money than is needed to do the cleanup job.

Petaluma Blessed With Park Which It Is Unable To Use

The west side of Petaluma is rich in lovely neighborhood parks, but the real potential for recreation lies immediately to the east on Sonoma Mountain.

Since taking over the California Water Co. in the late 1950's, the city has owned 280 acres of land known as the Lafferty Ranch on Sonoma Mountain Road, off Old Adobe Road.

The land has always been talked about as a potential park area and is so shown on the city general plan, but little has been done about it.

Petalumans have gazed up at the mountain at rare times when snow appears in the winter, but not many have taken the drive up there. If they did and enjoyed the scenic view of the Petaluma Valley, perhaps there would be more action and less talk about development of the park.

While the road may never rival the route through the Blue Ridge Mountains in Virginia, it certainly gives views worth seeing. The Petaluma River, valley, Rohnert Park, Sonoma State College and Santa Rosa all lie gracefully at the feet of the string of mountains.

With more urban residents moving to Petaluma, there will be call to leave the rural atmosphere undisturbed.

THE POSSIBILITIES the land holds for outdoor recreation and nature study appear to be endless. That potential has already been recognized by Petaluma educators who would appreciate the convenience of taking their students on field trips to nearby areas rather than to Point Reyes National Seashore or more distant parks that require great advance planning and cause transportation problems.

The main problem appears to be the danger of contamination of the nearby watershed if large numbers of people want to take advantage of the scenic acreage.

The water commission and staff have taken an extremely cautious attitude regarding groups of persons on the land.

ALSO A PROBLEM is the difficulty of policing a large park of nearly 300 acres. The manpower it would require must be considered, as well as the cost of initial development.

Perhaps it would be worth the city's while to study how water problems could be averted to permit residents to enjoy the beauty of the area.

Most cities would give their eye teeth to own 280 acres of rugged and beautiful park land. Petaluma already has it, but can't use it.

Summer Mail From Campuses: A Few Intercepted Letters

Dear Mr. Altshuler,

As admissions director of Nantucket University, I am happy to inform you that you have been accepted in this fall's freshman class. Unfortunately there is some question as to whether we will open in the autumn, since the teachers and students are still on strike. I noted in your application that your father is in the pants business. I was wondering if I might prevail on you to ask him if he would be interested in hiring someone whose experience has been in the educational field, but is willing to learn everything about pants. I am enclosing my resume which I would appreciate your showing to your father at the earliest opportunity.

DEAR MISS COLLENBERG,

I was sorry to receive your angry letter of June 4. I wish to point out that there was nothing personal in failing you in my Scandinavian philosophy course 5A. The fact that you called me a Swedish fascist because I said that your midterm paper on the Chicago Seven trial was not relevant to the period we were studying did not influence my decision to give you a failing grade.

Also, I wish to assure you that the day you took off all your clothes to protest my holding classes on Abbie Hoffman's birthday had no effect on your grades.

Even the telephone call you made to my wife telling her you were having my baby (for your information 12 students tried the same ploy) had no bearing on your F.

The only thing I judged you on was your final paper which you titled, "Hans Christian Andersen Was a Sexist Chauvinist Racist Pig" which I discovered you copied word for word from the underground newspaper, "Sweat."

Sincerely
yours, Dr. Sven Karlson

Woman Injured In Accident In Garage

A 58-year-old San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised chest after her car rolled backwards and pinned her to her garage door at 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Mary Ellen McDonald of 734 Del Ganado Road was trying to get her purse from the back seat when the car moved.

Church Cash Stolen

A sack of uncounted money taken up at a collection at a service at Blessed Sacramento Church in Santa Venetia early Sunday morning was stolen from the church's sacristy, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Driver Gets 45 Days In Hit-Run Case

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday ordered Gerald Thomas Fisher, 42, of Woodacre, to spend 45 days in jail on conviction of hit-and-run driving stemming from an accident in North Marin Dec. 18.

Two additional hit-run charges against Fisher were dismissed at the time Fisher pleaded guilty to the first one.

The judge yesterday also place Fisher on probation for one year and suspended his driver's license for one year.

Fisher had been charged with causing three accidents, one in Bel Marin Keys where he sideswiped a car; one on Highway 37 where he allegedly went the wrong way on an on-ramp, causing a car to overturn and a final one on Highway 101, where he again drove on the wrong side of the highway striking a car and causing it to hit another one head-on.

Three persons were injured in the accidents.

Fisher apparently fled on foot after the last accident, hitchhiked home and was taken to Marin General Hospital by his wife. Hospital authorities called police after treating him for a cut.

23 Collegians Receive Honors

Twenty-three graduating students received scholarships and awards at College of Marin's commencement this semester. Students whose awards were not previously published in the Independent-Journal were:

College of Marin Foundation scholarship — Alice Hofer. Citizenship cup — Curtis G. Rutter and Melanie J. Annin. Scholarship cut — Catherine Stai. Alpha Gamma Sigma state honor roll and life memberships — William S. Gregg, Gregory W. Ball, Ellen Gargiulo, Steve M. Harris and Catherine Stai.

Banks in the United States process 20 billion checks a year, according to National Geographic.

San Rafael Suspect Admits Pot Charge

Scott Wayne Burton, 21, of San Rafael, yesterday admitted in Marin Superior Court that he possessed marijuana when arrested in San Rafael on July 23, 1969.

Judge E. Warren McGuire set sentencing for Sept. 14.

Burton was arrested when he drove up to a house where drug agents had just arrested two young men on charges of possessing marijuana for sale. He had three pot cigarettes with him.

If an actual pole were planted at the South Pole, a year later it would be 260 feet beyond the geographic axis because of the slow movement of the Antarctic ice cap.

Prison Time For Theft Of Yacht

A 30-year-old parole violator who admitted that he stole a $60,000 yacht belonging to San Francisco nightclub owner Joseph Finocchio yesterday was sentenced again to state prison.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court ordered that Duane LeRoy Dittus serve a term to run concurrently with any other sentences he is serving.

Dittus was arrested aboard the Lady Eve III in Tomales Bay on June 3 and was also accused of having property aboard stolen from other San Rafael yachts.

This charge as well as counts of having stolen a boat from a Long Beach man and wrecking it were dismissed when Dittus pleaded guilty to stealing the Lady Eve.

The yacht was reported missing June 1 from Lowrie's Yacht Harbor, San Rafael.

Walton Plea Refused

By PAT ANGLE

Despite a favorable report of progress made this year at Martin Luther King School and pleas from a number of parents, the Sausalito School District board last night refused to reconsider its decision to continue legal steps to remove King Principal Sidney F. Waton Jr. from his post.

Following a one-and-a-half-hour closed session yesterday, the board, by a 2-1 vote, voted to accept the charges against Walton prepared by the former board in May and take no action to reinstate him.

It was clear that many of the approximately 80 persons who attended last night's meeting were waiting eagerly for the opportunity to discuss Walton's dismissal with newly-elected trustees Jerry L. Whitcomb and Dalta Christ, who voted yetserday to go ahead with the firing.

Their chance came when the board discussed plans for a survey of parents to determine how many children will be enrolled in the district next year.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson, the only trustee who voted to drop the charges against the principal, said he felt the survey should include a question asking parents how they felt about the firing.

Whitcomb and Mrs. Christ disagreed and said they thought a paragraph asking parents for any comments about what is going on in the district was sufficient.

"We still don't know if Sid will be principal next year," said Ruby Carter, a Marin City parent. 'Until this question is answered, how can we send in a report on where our children will be attending school next year?"'

Royce McLemore, another Marin City parent, offered to present the board a survey of 201 parents whose youngsters attend King School, a survey she said strongly supported Walton.

Mrs. McLemore told the board 136 of those questioned favored rehiring the principal and 74 opposed his reinstatement. "Will this have any effect on your decision to go ahead with the firing of Sid?" she asked the board.

Mrs. Christ did not answer, but Whitcomb said, "Royce, in all honesty, no, it will not affect my decision."

Whitcomb said he had studied the Walton question "in great depth" in the last several days and "I did satisfy myself. I won't say everything I do is irrevocable," he said, "but I won't allow public pressure to change my decision."

Robert R. Lyon, chairman of Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, a group which initiated the recall election that brought Whitcomb and Mrs. Christ to the board, said he felt the election vote had shown the voting community "has demanded" Walton's ouster.

A parent answered that although the black community has more than 50 per cent of the children in the district, it does not have the numerical power at the polls.

Mrs. McLemore asked how the new trustees, who campaigned on the issue that the former board and superintendent had not been honest with the public, could accept that board's evaluation of Walton.

"We were hoping Mrs. Christ and Mr. Whitcomb would come on the board with open minds and see for themselves what is happening, but it seems they are basing their ideas on what they have heard," Mrs. Carter said.

"If they are going to put charges against Mr. Walton, they should at least make their own," said Danny Horowitz, 10, a King student.

Walton, who had remained silent during the two-and-a-half hour exchange, made a quiet, but eloquent plea for a chance to work with the new board.

"I think I can help you solve your problems," he told the board, adding that in the past he had been "forced to deal with dishonest adults and expected to cover up their lies."

He said he had showed anger and hostility toward the former board "because I was frustrated, because they insulted my intelligence.

"I am certain I can work with you if you are honest Walton said, "and I feel I can put this district back on its feet.

He said he would like an opportunity to work with the new board. "No one can have his own way all the time, me, you, anyone. We've got to find a way to work it out. We ought to sit down and establish guidelines on how this district is run," Walton added.

Seadrift Rezone Plea Is Rejected

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday rejected an application from the William Kent Estate Co. to rezone property in the company's Seadrift development on Bolinas Lagoon from single family to planned multiple family residential. (See another story, page 1.)

Discussion of the application opened with Roger Kent of Kentfield, representing the company, asking that the commission not take action on the application at yesterday's meeting.

He said that much of the opposition to the proposal — and much was evident in yesterday's audience — was due to a lack of communication.

The rezoning had been recommended by the planning department staff.

Alvin Zelver, a San Francisco planning consultant, argued that by constructing multiple family dwellings, the Kent company would be able to leave several open spaces in the development which would not be possible if single family dwellings are built one after another in a row.

The open spaces would protect the views of present Seadrift property owners, he said.

The property owners, however, strongly disagreed. Henry W. Wagner Jr., president of the Seadrift Property Owners Association, told the commission that the members of the association were "almost overwhelmingly against this rezoning."

The height of multiple family dwellings would destroy the low profile of the area, he said.

More than a dozen other property owners, as well as several conservationists, spoke against the application.

Proctor P. Jones of 290 Seadrift Road, had the names of 45 other property owners for whom he spoke in opposition to the plan.

The plan was opposed on the grounds that the multiple family dwellings might upset the natural state of Bolinas Lagoon, create additional pollution in the area, be a fire and earthquake hazard, and open the area to a more commercial type development.

The commission denied the application 4-1 vote. Chairman Walter F. Freitas, who voted against denial, said that he was sorry action on the matter was not postponed. A delay "might have produced a more satisfactory result for everyone," he said and advised Kent that the commission's action could be appealed to the board of supervisors.

Bolinas-Stinson District Sets $210,000 Bond Issue

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board last night agreed to ask district residents to approve a $210,000 bond issue September 15 to finance construction of a one-campus school facility on the Bolinas school site, according to Avis Pattison, district secretary.

The board's attorney, Richard V. Godino, said the increase in the district tax rate which would result from the bond issue cannot be determined until school officials decide what time period to establish for bond redemption. The total tax rate is now $2.325 per $100 assessed valuation.

The bond issue would finance a $218,000 plan to locate all students in one school on one site. Included in the proposal, presented to trustees earlier by architect Richard A. Borgstrom, is purchase of a quarter-acre of land to the south of Bolinas School.

Last night trustees accepted drawings for the classroom building which Borgstrom estimates will cost $34,400 and agreed to pay the architect $2,700 for completed plans.

After a closed session with its attorney, the board authorized Godino to negotiate with Mrs. Arthur Bourne for purchase of the quarter-acre site. The board set a price range for the land which Godino did not divulge.

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board also:

STINSON SALE — Agreed to offer, for public sale, the 1.6-acre Stinson School site for $18,500.

BUS CONTRACT — Extended a contract with Patchett's Bus Service of Stockton for bus service for district students for two years.

BOOKKEEPER — Eliminated the position of part-time bookkeeper from next year's budget, since the district can receive free bookkeeping services from the Marin County Schools Office.

Yes, People Can Indeed Live On Air

LONDON (UPI) — Whatever prospective fathers-in-law may say, people can live on air. At least, certain representatives of the human race may have developed this ability, according to the Nutrition Section of the Australian Department of Health.

In the highlands of New Guinea there are tribes which are of generally good physique although they eat a highly limited diet principally based on sweet potatoes. They rarely have any meat and supplement the sweet potatoes when they can with other root vegetables, corn, leafy greens and bananas.

This is too low an intake of proteins and fats to explain their general physical condition, and Dr. E. H. Hipsley and his associates wondered how they were getting protein nitrogen in view of the basic assumption that it can only be obtained from food.

The weekly Medical News-Tribune said the investigators advanced the hypothesis that the New Guinea highlanders might be able to convert atmospheric nitrogen into useful protein, a metabolic process that has always been assumed to be impossible.

To test this theory, Dr. Hipsley's group measured the amount of food nitrogen intake and excretion of New Guinea highlanders eating their traditional diet and a number of medical students eating their normal diet.

They found that the nitrogen intake of the students equalled their output, as expected. But the tribesmen bafflingly excreted twice as much nitrogen as they had ingested.

Now research is underway to discover if there are microorganisms in the intestines of the highlanders able to convert atmospheric nitrogen into protein.

Court Extends Right To Vote On Bond Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that states may not restrict voting on general obligation bonds to property owners.

In a 5-3 decision in a Phoenix, Ariz., case, the high court said that "the differences between the interests of property owners and. . .non-property owenrs are not sufficiently substantial to justify excluding the latter from the franchise."

Report Cites Year's Progress At Martin Luther King School

A favorable report on academic and social progress at Martin Luther King School during the past school year was presented to the Sausalito School District board last night by King Principal Sidney F. Walton Jr.

Although Walton candidly admitted that not all of the school's problems have been solved during his nine-month administration, he indicated significant strides had been made.

James T. Toliver Jr., King vice principal who, with Walton and teacher Armando Flores, made the presentation, said one of the most heartening achievements was in the area of discipline, a serious problem at the school for many years.

Toliver reported that 356 discipline cases had been referred to the principal's office this year, as compared to 1,100 referrals for the same period last year.

"The most beneficial gain was in the area of parent involvement in solving their children's discipline problems," Toliver said, adding that initial parental involvement often lapped into the area of academic progress.

Walton said the program of teacher in-service training which he initiated this year had been a great success. "This program brought about academic order and progress that previously did not exist," he said. "Morale was high" among teachers, he added.

Flores told the board a poll of teachers to evaluate Walton's performance as an administrator, taken in late April, showed the staff thought the principal was doing "a very good job."

Walton presented the board with progress reported from eight of the school's 26 teachers and said the remaining reports from teachers would be given to the board later this week.

He said there had been considerable improvement in reading, mathematics, language arts and social studies, which the teacher reprots seemed to document.

"At the beginning of this year, I promised the parents one year's academic progress for one year in school and I think we have given this," he said.

Walton admitted the students' ability to use the library was not as good as he would like and said the progress of sixth graders in some subjects, such as language arts, also left something to be desired. He said sixth graders have had to work with substitute teachers a great deal this year, since the class's regular teacher had been out much of the time due to illness.

He said the student grievance procedures he has initiated at King School have provided "a meaningful . . . way to dealing with problems that averts violent confrontation.

"A lot of problems — no solutions — were dumped in my lap when I came here," he said and added he felt many of them had been dealt with during his administration.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson called the report "pretty exciting and quite informative."

The Sausalito School District Board Also:

CLASSIFIED EMPLOYEES — Agreed not to cut 15 classified positions for next year until the board can study the 1970-71 tentative budget. The positions had been recommended eliminated by former Supt. Phillip W. Schneider.

BUDGET — Set a meeting to consider the budget for July 13 at 7:30 p.m. at Bayside School.

SALARY PLACEMENT — Voted to reinstate Toliver's salary to an administrative level of $14,024 a year. Last week Schneider informed the vice principal that, although the former board had agreed to return him to an administrative post next year, his salary was being cut to approximately $11,000, the equivalent of a teaching salary.

ENROLLMENT — Heard a report that district enrollment had dropped during the year from 733 to 687 students.

INTERDISTRICT ATTENDANCE — Heard a report on interdistrict attendance agreements with Mill Valley. Although the board took no action, Johnson said he saw no reason why the program should not be continued next year.

WORK STUDY — Voted to continue the work study program, in conjunction with the College of Marin next year.

TENTATIVE BUDGET — Accepted several tentative budget recommendations prepared by Interim Supt. Robert E. Spain, including a recommendation that Gabe Johnson, community worker at Central School be assigned to the district office until his position and salary can be clarified.

BOYD MUSEUM — Agreed to contract with the Louis A. Boyd Science Museum to provide programs for students next year.

DOCUMENTS — Authorized the interim superintendent to sign certain documents, including contracts of employment and payroll and purchase orders.

2 Officers Charged In Murder Of Viets

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)— Two decorated Army officers accused of ordering their men to fire into Vietnamese homes were also charged today with murder and assault with intent to murder.

A spokesman at this infantry center said the new charges against Capt. Vincent N. Hartmann, 35, Scranton, Pa., and 1st Lt. Robert G. Lee Jr., 23, of Springfield, Mo., alleged the "premeditated murder of a Vietnamese female and assault with intent to murder a Vietnamese male."

Weak In Mind Only

DORDRECHT, Netherlands (UPI) — Mentally deficient persons live longer than normal people because of regular living and eating habits and better medical care, according to a survey by the Dutch Association for Treatment of Handicapped Persons.

Waldo Point Marinas Are Approved

Development of two houseboat marinas in the area served by the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District was approved last night by the district board, president Cyril G. Hansen reported.

The board granted a requisition from Donlon J. Arques to construct the first stage (50 boats) of a 150-boat facility at Waldo Point. Directors approved on condition Arques construct a pumping plant and force main according to district standards and turn ownership of the equipment over to the district.

A 35-unit marina being developed north of Rosedale Canal by George Kappas also was given the go-ahead by the board.

Hansen said the marinas are the first such facilities approved under a new Marin County ordinance setting standards for houseboat marinas.

The Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District also:

ORDINANCE — Set service charges for 1970-71 at $12 for single family homes in Sausalito and $15 for single family dwellings outside the city limits.

CONTRACT — Approved a contract for various engineering services needed by the district with Hoffman and Albritton, San Rafael engineering firm. Rates agreed on by the board include a $60 a month retainer fee, plus hourly rates ranging from $8 to $25, depending on the kind of service provided.

The Marin County Planning Commission Also:

HOUSEBOATS — Rejected a planning department recommendation to deny an R-C-R (resort and commercial recreation district) use permit to George Kappas for 35 houseboats at Gate 6½ in Richardson Bay; directed the department staff to recommend conditions for approval, and continued the item until its next regular meeting, July 13.

SIGN — Upheld the appeal of the Barber Sign Co. of the planning department's decision denying a sign review application for a free-standing sign at the Marin French Cheese Factory on the Point Reyes-Petaluma Road, west of Novato.

LAWSON — Granted Merle Lawson a use permit to enlarge his recreational facility near Dillon Beach. He is to underground all utilities, check with the public works department to see if all new trailer spaces are safe from sliding and grant a 20 foot public easement above average high tide for pedestrian use.

IMPROVEMENTS — Granted the First Congregational Church of San Rafael an appeal from the design committee requirements of an improvement bond on North San Pedro Road. The church is to install the improvements on Merrydale Road, but only a sidewalk on San Pedro Road.

Fairfax Man Breaks Wrist In Accident

The California Highway Patrol reported Robert Benson of 200 Bolinas Road was hurt when his motorcycle hit the rear of a car driven by Michele Curtin, 16, of 325 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, at 9:15 p.m. yesterday on Highway 101 between Marin City and Alto.

School Board Meeting

The Novato Unified School District board, scheduled to hold a special budget meeting at 8 p.m., today, will hold a closed meeting at 7:45 p.m. to discuss naming a principal to Hill Junior High School, according to Supt. James G. Bunker. The open board meeting will not start until 8:30 p.m., he said.

Mieuli Threatens To Split Up Pro Cage Merger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Franklin Mieuli, a stubborn opponent of the already approved professional basketball merger, believes he has enough backing to call for a second vote which might split the leagues apart.

The owner of the San Francisco Warriors of the established National Basketball Association threatened Monday to wreck the merger unless the Denver Rockets of the younger American Basketball Association relinquish what he called their "unethical" hold on a newly signed player. Mieuli said NBA owners approved the merger last Thursday only after assurances that the ABA Rockets would nullify their contract with Michigan State star Ralph Simpson. The Rockets signed Simpson for $1 million despite the fact Simpson had two years of college eligibility remaining.

"At least three owners were ready to vote against the merger until they were assured Simpson's contract would be nullified," Mieuli told a news conference. "And as it was, the merger proposal received no more than the minimum number of votes."

Mieuli said he would ask for a special meeting of NBA executives to reconsider the merger, unless the ABA Denver club agrees to give up Simpson.

"They've got to agree that Simpson will not play in the pros until he's finished with college, and then they've got to realize that he'll be up for grabs at that time—he won't be property of Denver," Mieuli said.

"Under NBA by-laws, three owners can get together to call for a re-vote on an issue. I've already got at least two other owners aside from myself."

The Warriors' owner condemned the practice of signing players before their college eligibility runs its course. He also blasted the signing of players before a draft had been held, a practice used by the ABA in its fight for equality with the older NBA.

"This is nothing new to the ABA," Mieuli said. "They did this with Rick Mount, Charlie Scott, Spencer Haywood and I don't know who else. The NBA always has tried to stay in good standing with the colleges. If the ABA wants to join us they'll have to play the game by the rules."

Simpson was signed last Tuesday, a move which irked NBA owners as they readied for merger talks in Atlanta.

But on Wednesday, one day before the merger meeting, ABA President Jack Dolph promised that the Rockets would be penalized $10,000 and the Simpson contract would be nullified.

Executives of the older league went ahead to barely pass the merger. A minimum of 13 votes was needed, and the count wound up a close 13-4.

One day after the agreement, Denver,President Donald W. Ringsby said, "We're not giving up on Ralph Simpson as a Denver Rocket by any means."

"If the NBA owners had known this before we sat down to vote," Mieuli said, "I'm sure the merger would not have been approved."

Mieuli said if another meeting was called to reconsider the merger, it would be on the grounds that "conditions have changed since we took our vote."

She's Having A Ball, Tennis, That Is

San Rafael tennis star Sharon Walsh, who today was making her long-awaited debut in the Wimbledon classic, has had a ball in her tour of England, according to cards and letters to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh.

"S h e 's been well-chaperoned, too," said Les Walsh this morning as he awaited word of his 18-year-old daughter's first match against Patti Hogan of La Jolla. "Her last letter said she and her doubles partner, Gail Hansen, struck up an acquaintance with two London Bobbies and teamed up with them in a mixed doubles tournament. They've nicknamed the Bobbies 'Daffodil' and Gunghi.'

"Also, Sharon met a d e t e c t i v e from Scotland Yard named Ian Hotchkiss whose wife has taken her on a tour of London — places the average tourist wouldn't see. She'll have a lot to tell us when she get home."

Moore Back On Sports Scene

IT'S GOOD to see Harry J. Moore, assistant principal at San Marin High School, back on the sports beat. Harry, former coach at Marin Catholic and Novato high schools, has hastily organized a late entry from San Marin sector in the Joe DiMaggio League.

CRAIG M U R R A Y, former president of Sears Point International Raceway, is back in the securities business with Waldron & Co. of San Rafael but still active in the late model stock car market.

Murray finished eighth, best of the independent entries, in the Trans-American race at Laguna Seca this spring and hopes to drive his 1968 Camaro in the Trans-Am at Sears Point next September. That's if the Sonoma County motorsports facility is open then.

Jaycees In Charge Of Things

The San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce has taken over the financially troubled raceway for two sports car events, the Continental Grand Prix this weekend and Sonoma Summersport July 11-12, and the financial results of those promotions will determine the track's immediate future.

"If the Jaycees just break even," said Murray, "then they should be given the Trans-Am promotion in September to collect some gravy."

Meanwhile, Filmways, Inc. of Hollywood is still trying to sell SPIR and it ain't selling like hotcakes.

Honest Devil, That Giddings

FISH AND GAME writer Al Giddings is an honest devil, I tellya. I mean, last week Big Al wrote about the favorable upcoming abalone tides, reminded his readers of fish and game regulations, then concluded his article with, "See you there."

Big Al is a warden for the Department of Fish and Game and I think it's pretty big of him to advertise his whereabouts.

And, apparently it paid off, because in today's column our ace field and stream scrivener reports "fewer violations out on the abalone beds." (At times the game warden sounds like the chief of the vice squad.)

By the way, Giddings is one of the best wardens in the state. Why, he's so s t r a i g h t he won't eat poached eggs because he thinks they're afowl of the law.

McCormick Hurls For S.F. Tonight

Mays lashed a pair of homers Monday night, his 16th and 17th this season, to help the San Francisco Giants swamp Cincinnati 13-6.

NEEDS 14 MORE

Despite being in the twilight of his outstanding career, Mays is not merely inching along in quest of his 3000th hit. He's been stepping steadily toward his goal and his batting average proves it. Mays is hitting .290 and needs only 14 hits to reach the magic number.

The homers were among 17 hits by the Giants, who helped Rich Robertson achieve his fifth victory against six losses.

Mays opened the scoring with first blast and doubles by Willie McCovey, Ken Henderson and Dick Dietz made it 3-0 in the first.

But C i n c i n n a t i blasted Robertson for five runs in the bottom of the frame. Manager Charlie Fox stuck with Robertson, who wound up going the distance, allowing only six hits and cracking his first major league in the final inning.

Trailing 5-3, San Francisco exploded for six runs in the third, largely on doubles by Bobby Bonds and Alan Gallagher. Then Henderson tripled home McCovey in the sixth and Mays and Dietz homered in the eighth to set up Robertson's finishing blow.

The victory was the third straight for the Giants but left them a big 14 1-2 games behind the Reds in the National League West. Mike McCormick (2-2), San Francisco's veteran southpaw, tries to make it four in a row tonight against Cincinnati righthander Gary Nolan (7-4).

2 Marin Survivors In Golf

Warren Richter and Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael are Marin c o u n t y 's first qualifying round survivors in the California State Amateur Golf Championship, which began yesterday on the Pebble Beach and Cypress Point courses at Pebble Beach.

Sam Reeves, a cotton broker from Fresno, was the only player to break par as he took the lead with a one - under 71 at fog-shrouded Cypress Point. In second and third, also at Cypress, were Bill Fell with a 73 and San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie at 74.

WIND

Heavy winds and the fog combined to keep the scores high as the field of 203 fought for the 64 places in the match play tournament that begins t o m o r r o w. Forecasts called for the same weather today, indicating that the cut will be made at 15 over par 159.

Richter, a division manager for Union Carbide, toured Cypress in 38-44 — 82 to put him in a bad position for today's second round at tougher Pebble Beach, where scores were generally higher yesterday.

PALACIO'S 84

Palacio, who won the state title in 1936, had a 42-42 — 84 at Pebble and is in real danger of missing the cut.

Two other Marin county players qualified for the state championships, but only Buzz Beattie of Ross entered, and he withdrew yesterday after a horrible first round. Doug Francisco of San Rafael had to skip the tournament b e c a u s e of summer school commitments.

'There is no defending champion this year because Forrest Fezler, the 1969 winner, joined the pro circuit last fall. A number of California state amateur champions have taken that rout over the years.

A'S GET TOMMY DAVIS

Segui Fine As Starter

By STEVE TOOMAJIAN

OAKLAND (UPI) —Diego Segui, undependable in short relief and inconsistent in long relief, may be just what the Oakland A's are looking for as a starter.

Segui made his first start of 1970 Monday night and hurled seven strong innings. But he wasn't around to get the win when pinchhitter Frank Fernandez led off the ninth with a line drive homer into the leftfield bleachers to give the A's a 2-1 victory over Kansas City.

"I got a blister on my thumb around the sixth inning, but I felt real strong," Segui said. "I think the blister will be okay by my next turn, but John (McNamara) decided he didn't want to take any chances tonight."

McNamara, A's manager, inserted the 32-year-old Cuban righthander into the starting rotation when John Odom, top hurler for Oakland the past two years, was put on the disabled list with a bad elbow.

Odom's physical miseries this year have left the A's with Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson as the club's only experienced starters. Rollie Fingers has helped, but he's nowhere near being a consistent distance man. So Segui's test in the rotation is a key to Oakland's pennant hopes.

The wa's, by winning Monday night, stayed 5 1-2 games away from first place Minnesota in the American League West. Dobson (6-6) goes tonight against righthander Dick Drago (5-4) of Kansas City.

A's owner Charlie Finley shelled out plenty of cash Monday to pick up the club's newest face. He's Tommy Davis, former two-time National League batting champ.

Davis, now 31, was hitting .282 with 30 runs batted in for the Houston Astros. But the Astros, figuring Davis' speed and fielding ability had slackened, placed the veteran outfielder on the waiver list. The A's paid the $20,000 waiver price and assumed Davis' estimated $75,000 contract.

"We'll use Tommy as a pinchhitter at first," NcNamara said. "Obviously, I'm happy to get him. With his credentials, he's got to help us."

McNamara now has a surplus of outfielders, all of whom are good hitters. But with Rick Monday on military reserve duty until July 3, and with Joe Rudi scheduled for two weeks later on, McNamara may find the personnel overload worthwhile.

McNamara also is blessed with depth behind the plate. Though he's got only two catchers, both have battled on even terms throughout the season.

Fernandez came off the bench to break a 1-1 tie with his ninth homer, but McNamara said he'll stick with Dave Duncan as the first string backstop for the time being.

Fernandez' blast gave the victory to reliever Bob Locker, who fired two scoreless innings and may be used more frequently in order to take the bullpen load off Grant.

Sal Bando had given the A's a 1-0 lead with his 14th homer in the fifth inning. But in the seventh, Paul Schaal doubled for the Royals and came home when Pat Kelly's grounder went through the legs of A's second baseman John Donaldson.

McNamara was pleased by the work of Locker, who was acquired last week from Milwaukee. He said the Locker, Davis and Steve Hovley deals were wise ones for which A's owner Charlie Finley and the coaching staff worked in concert.

"I'll say one thing," McNamara said. "We've got an owner who's not letting any expense stand in the way of improving the ballclub."

Maggard Thinking Ahead

BERKELEY (UPI) — University of California track and field coach Dave Maggard already is thinking about a second NCAA championship.

His Golden Bears stunned the sports world over the weekend by winning the NCAA championship meet in Des Moines, Iowa, against an outstanding set of teams including Oregon, Kansas and UCLA.

"I would like to fill some vacancies that we'll have next season," Maggard said. "For one thing, we'll need a sprinter to take the place of Don Couser, a member of our champion 440 relay team."

Maggard said his team also could use help in the pole vault, high jump, shot put and distance races.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS

Women Take The Court

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—America's Billie Jean King and Australia's Margaret Court took to the courts today rated even favorites to win the ladies singles title in the 84th Wimbledon tennis tturnament.

Both Mrs. King, three time Wimbledon champion, and Mrs. Court, who has won the title twice, had easy opening round matches and an added bonus in that Britain's Ann Jones will not be defending her crown this year.

(Sharon Walsh of San Rafael will be going against Patti Hogan of LaJolla, Calif., in another opening round women's match.)

Mrs. Jones, who defeated Billie Jean in the 1969 final, announced earlier this year she would not defend the title on grounds the pro-British Wimbledon crowds would demand too much of her in willing another rare British victory.

Mrs. King, of Berkeley, Calif., the No. 2 seed, opens against Miss F. Bonicelli of Peru, and Mrs. Court meets countrymate Suzanne Alexander.

In the opening round of men's singles Monday, Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia was the only seed in trouble, fighting back from 2-6, 5-7 down to 6-3, 6-2 before his match against Russia's Alexander Metreveli was called because of darkness.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., the man many experts figure Laver will have to beat for his third consecutive title, trounced British professional Graham Stilwell 6-3, 6-2, 6-1, outclassing the Briton with the best backhand in the business.

America's top-ranked Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., the seventh seed, overcame trouble with his service which cost him the first set against Jaime Fillol of Chile to advance to the next round, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Clark Graebner of New York, the ninth seed, brought his big service under control to dispose of Herald Elschenbroich of West Germany, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., the 15th seed, advanced when veteran Italian Nicola Pietrangeli returned too late from the World Cup Soccer in Mexico to make the Wimbledon deadline.

FISH AND GAME

Several Changes Noted In Licenses And Tags

By AL GIDDINGS

The sports shops that are licensed agents for the Department of Fish and Game have received the 1970-71 hunting licenses and tags. There are several changes this year which should be noted by both the agents and the license buyers.

THERE WILL be a pheasant stamp this year instead of pheasant tags. The new hunting license application forms have been redesigned to include space for the pheasant stamp, and, like the 1970 fishing license applications, they also commemorate the centennial of the fish and game commission and department.

The new hunting application forms are to be used for each license issued, so the licensee will have a license that will accomodate the pheasant stamp. Do not renew expired licenses by placing the new license over the old one. Every hunting license buyer should complete a new application.

LEGISLATION ENACTED last year placed mountain lions among the protected game animals, requiring the new lion tags this year. The fee for lion tags is $1 per set. The lion tags come in sets of two; but there is no limit on the number of lions a person may take. However, each lion must be tagged.

If a person uses both tags purchased by him, he may take or mail the cover (instruction sheet) of the tag set to a Fish and Game office and obtain another set without fee.

The additional no-fee lion tags are available only through the Fish and Game Department offices. With an estimated population of 600 lions throughout the state of California, it will be a rarity for anyone to need extra tags.

OVER THE weekend, there seemed to be fewer violations out on the abalone beds. At the Palamarin Ranch near Bolinas in the National Seashore, 24 of the 58 people checked by the ranger had limits. Jim Rose, the ranger checking the area, reported that one person found a 10-inch abalone on a rock out of the water.

THE GAME wardens decided to try a night fishing check at the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and some of the Sausalito hot spots for stripers. Would you believe there were even some people crabbing at 3 o'clock in the morning? And one bass fisherman was casting a bugeye in another closed area. Even in the thick fog of the night people were out.

Legal fishing time in San Francisco and San Pablo bays is one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset. If you use the tide book for the sunrise and sunset tables, be sure you add the one hour to compensate for the tables being written in Pacific Standard Time instead of Daylight Saving Time.

THE STRIPED bass fishing was still slow, though a trickling of fish was checked, most in the Sausalito area to the Golden Gate Bridge, generally taken by shore casters. They are a hardy bunch, usually starting at dawn. The largest fish noted was a 30-pounder. Things have just got to start picking up!

MARIN PREP ALL-STAR GAME

Redwood Coach 'Stuffed Ballot Box'

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Back in the mid-1950s, the fans in Cincinnati stuffed the ballot baxes and succeeded in electing all eight Redleg regulars to the National League All-Star team's starting lineup.

Seven players from Redwood High School were in the starting lineup for the first Marin County Athletic League North-South all star game last Thursday night in San Rafael.

Unlike the Cincinnati fiasco, the fans had nothing to do with Redwood's coup. Nor, for that matter, did the coaches from the other teams, who proportioned the South fairly with eight players from Redwood, four from Tamalpais and two each from the league's last place teams, Marin Catholic and Drake.

It was the South coach, Al Endriss from Redwood, who decided that only shortstop Jim McCammon of Tam was worthy of starting among his MCAL champion Giants. Rick Fox, the other non - Redwood starter, was the only catcher on the team.

Both Endriss and North coach Mike Quinn of San Marin eventually used all 16 players on their rosters. Quinn started four from his club, three from Terra Linda, and one each from San Rafael and Novato.

On paper, Endriss did the right thing. All seven Giants were either first or second team all league selections. Yet this was an all-star game, not a Redwood game. If he intended to play everyone, how much would it have hurt to start one of the players from Drake? And perhaps another from Tam? That still would have given Redwood five players on the field, more than any other team.

Endriss, of course, coached third.

The North won the game, 3-2.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON Gary Hughes of Marin Catholic, who founded and organized the game, was asked by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department if he thought some additional seats would be needed that night. He thought not.

Late in the game, the standing room only crowd having spilled out of the stands and along both outfield lines, Hughes was trying to figure out a way to charge admission to the fans who had accumulated in the softball field stands in centerfield.

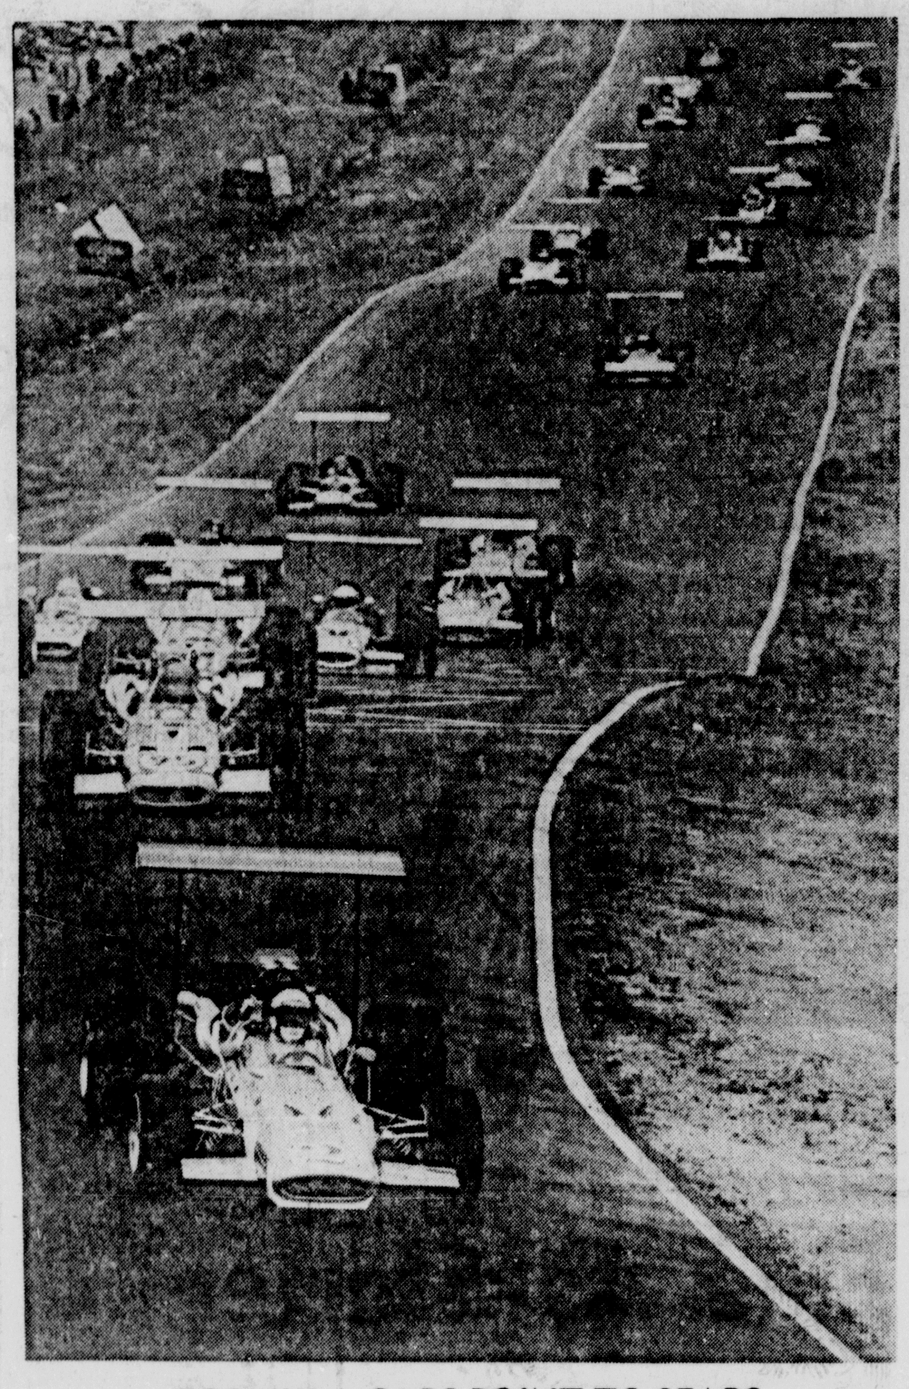
"Next year we'll get them," he said with an anxious smile.

In addition to everything else, Hughes was responsible for the baseballs used in the game. It was not strange, therefore, for him to disappear in back of the stands in pursuit of a foul ball.

It was a little strange, however, to see a 200-pound man fighting with 10 Little Leaguers.

TERRA LINDA'S star centerfielder Dewey Forry, who played for the North and singled home two runs in the first inning, will report tomorrow to the Los Angeles Dodgers rookie team in Ogden, Utah. He signed Sunday with the National League team for something in the neighborhood of $25,000.

The only other Marin county player drafted by a major league team this year is former Novato shortstop Tom Corder, who this season wrapped up a successful career at San Jose State. Coincidentally, he was also signed by the Dodgers and assigned to Ogden.



FORMULA CARS POINT TO SEARS

This scene will be reenacted at Sears Point International Raceway this weekend when the Formula A Grand Prix cars compete in the Continental Series race. The field will include series leader and defending champion John Cannon. It will be a two-day show under sponsorship of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Tennis Grand Prix

NEW YORK (UPI)—The International Lawn Tennis Federation, with the apparent agreement of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, has joined with a soft drink company, Pepsi-Cola, in establishing a $200,000 tennis Grand Prix.

The outline for the project was announced Monday, with the corporation putting up $125,000 and the additional $75,000 expected to come from 17 events which will be used to determine the top players.

Point values will be placed upon winning and placing in each of the 17 events, with the top point total worth $25,000 and the first eight men going into a $56,000 Masters tournament slated,te5..

Point values will be placed upon winning and placing in each of the 17 events, with the top point total worth $25,000 and the first eight men going into a $50,000 Masters tournament slated, tentatively, for Japan in December.

Koss Softballers Defeated, 1-0

A sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning gave San Mateo a 1-0 win over Paul Koss Supply last night in the second round of the Golden Gate Traveling League Tournament.

The loss drops Koss Supply into the loser's bracket. They will face Livermore next Friday night, with the loser of that game being eliminated from the tourney.

Petaluma's Joe Nystrom fired a four-hitter for Koss Supply but was the losing ptcher.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Cigars and Hits For Bob Watson

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The 25-year-old utilityman of the Houston Astros became a father a few hours before the Astros' game with San Diego when his wife gave birth to a seven-pound son, Keith. He promptly went out and collected three hits against the Padres to back Don Wilson's three-hit pitching and gave Houston a 4-1 victory.

Watson has been in the Astros' starting lineup for only six games, since last Wednesday when Joe Pepitone, who has some back alimony problems, had to leave the club to appear in civil court in New York. Watson has hit successfully in each of the six games and has collected 10 hits in 24 trips to the plate.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound Watson was thrilled at the birth of his son. "My wife has been expecting a baby since June 10th but she waited until we got back from the road trip," he said.

Watson was also pleased to have a place in the lineup and he'd like to keep a spot after Pepitone returns. He is supposed to be an outfielder-catcher but he's been limited to first base duty since he hurt his arm running into an outfield wall last year. But he thinks he can play the outfield again now.

"I think my arm is good again and I think I can play anywhere," he said as he pointed to his locker where he has several different gloves stored.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 6-0 and 3-2, New York beat Chicago 9-5, Los Angeles topped Atlanta 4-2, San Francisco routed Cincinnati, 13-6, and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh, 6-1, but lost the second game 1-0 in 10 innings.

In the only three games scheduled in the American League, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 4-3, Baltimore beat Boston 9-8 and Oakland nipped Kansas City 2-1.

Byron Browne doubled in two runs in the sixth inning to lead the Phils to the second game victory over Montreal and the doubleheader sweep. Browns, who hit a two-run homer in the first game, wiped out a 2-1 Montreal lead with his double and gave the victory to Rick Wise. In the first game, Woody Fryman pitched a four-hitter to beat Bill Stoneman.

Jim Nelson pitched a six-hitter and Matty Alou singled in Gene Alley from second base in the 10th inning to give Pittsburgh the second game victory over St. Louis. But the Cards won the first game when rookie Jerry Reuss pitched a nine-hitter. The Cards rocked Dock Ellis, who pitched a no-hitter on June 12th, for five runs in the second inning.

Wes Parker, Bill Sudakis and Bill Grabarkewitz tagged Phil Niekro for homers as Los Angeles beat Atlanta. Alan Foster and Jim Brewer, who retired only the final batter, combined for a nine-hitter.

Don Clendenon, who had failed 10 straight times as a pinch-hitter, hit a three-run homer in the eighth to snap a 5-5 tie and lead New York past Chicago. The victory moved the Mets to within 2 1-2 games of the Cubs in the East Division and was the sixth in the last eight games for the Mets. The have lost four of the last five.

Terra Linda Quint Tops Tamalpais

Terra Linda defeated Tamalpais, 59-54 in the Drake summer basketball league last night in San Anselmo despite a 25 point performance by Tam's James Huff. Bob Buckley had 21 points for Terra Linda.

In other league games, Bob Puitt's 28 points gave Wilson a 55-30 win over the Kettle, and Riordon defeated Balboa, 52-37.

THE SPORTING GENTRY

Swinging Senior Golfer

By RALPH CHATOIAN

George Kerrigan, veteran golfer from San Rafael, won't have to travel very far this year for the U.S. Golf Association's National Seniors tournament.

After travels to the east, south and midwest for the last five National Seniors, the 62-year-old Kerrigan will be able to stay right here in the Bay Area for the 1970 Seniors, scheduled in September at California Golf Club, South San Francisco.

Past national tournaments have taken him to New York, Atlanta, Tucson, Wichita and Phoenix. Best he did was in 1967 when he reached the quarter-finals in New York.

Kerrigan, an investor who was in the insurance business in his younger days, also is a regular competitor in Northern California Seniors play. In one of the Norcal tourneys he tied for overall low score but lost in the playoffs to three-time winner Cornelius Bertolone.

TOUGHEST COURSE

Northern California Golf Association Seniors tournaments are held at Spyglass Hill golf course in Monterey and Kerrigan, who has played on courses all over, rates it "the toughest course I have ever played."

Last year he had low gross score in the age 60-64 division, 80-82-162.

A member of the Meadow Club in Fairfax, Kerrigan is the seniors champion of the club and held club championship honors in the open class for five years, 1954, '55, '56, '61 and '64.

Born and reared in Palo Alto, Kerrigan did his early golfing at Harding Park and Sharp Park in San Francisco. He began the game when he was 28. He has been living in Marin County for 20 years and has been a member of the Meadow Club since 1952.

BEST IN MARIN

An acquaintance of Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, 53-year-old former California State Golf champion, Kerrigan says, "I'm not in his class. Mat is the best golfer in Marin County, counting any age." Palacio will be eligible for senior events in two years.

Kerrigan, a five-handicapper, says he gets in "around three rounds of golf a week." Being his own boss ("I've been my own boss for as long as I can remember"), he can always find the time for golf, which makes it admittedly convenient for him. Owner of an office building at 710 C Street in San Rafael, he has his office located there.

MARRIED CHILDREN

He is a father of one son and two daughters, all three married.

Showing all the young guys he can still play a mean game of golf, he almost won another club championship last year at the Meadow Club, losing by just one stroke to Ken Gelatti.

"I lost it on the 18th hole when I double bogied," he admitted.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's Not Even Right To Feel Safe With Six Trumps

It's natural to think of conserving your trumps when you have only four of the little beauties, particularly four weak trumps. When you have a solid six-card trump suit, however, you tend to think that they'll last forever. Bridge has a way of teaching us one of life's sad lessons: Nothing is forever.

SOUTH RUFFS

West led the queen of hearts and continued, forcing South to ruff. Declarer then drew trumps, after which he had only one trump left. Beginning to feel a chill breeze on his back, South led the jack of diamonds, hoping to "steal" the trick. If West played low, South could safely switch to clubs.

Too clever to fall for South's little ruse, West stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led another heart, forcing South to ruff with his last trump.

NO WAY OUT

Now there was no way out. South could take his six trumps and three diamonds, but then he was through. Whenever South led a club, West would take the ace of clubs and defeat the contract with another heart trick.

Despite his wealth of trumps, South should have thought of the morrow. After ruffing the second heart South should draw only one round of trumps. Then, leaving one trump in the dummy, South should lead the jack of diamonds.

A THIRD HEART

West takes the ace of diamonds and leads a third heart, forcing South to ruff for the second time. Leaving the trumps alone, South must lead the ten of clubs.

West must step up with the ace of clubs, since otherwise South would draw trumps and run the diamonds. But now South reaps his reward for leaving a trump in the dummy.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
S- ♠ 8 7 6 4
♥- Q J 10 9 3
♦- A 4
♣- A 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart or pass.

With 11 points in high cards and one point for each doubleton, you have the material for an optional opening bid. Some experts would open this hand, others would pass. Any sensible player would bid one heart if the queen of hearts were changed to the king.

Dual Power Plants

STANTON, Mo. (UPI)—The odds are against having an electrical blackout at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here. The cave has two individual power supplies. One source lights the cave's extensive upper three floors and the second the lower two floors. Should either power source fail, an instant relay switch activates to carry all cavern lights.

ALMANAC

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1845 the Congress of Texas agreed to the territory's annexation by the United States.

In 1947 the House enacted the Taft-Hartley Act over the veto of President Truman.

In 1964 Gen. Maxwell Taylor was appointed ambassador to Saigon, replacing Henry Cabot Lodge.

A thought for the day: Irish poet James Stephens said, "Women are wiser than men because they know less and understand more."

Remote Arctic Town Will Get Airstrip

BATHURST INLET, N.W.T. (UPI) — A 3,000-foot airstrip is scheduled to be built this summer in this remote Arctic community, according to the Arctic Development Digest.

Situated on the northern coast of the Mackenzie district in the Northwest Territories, Bathurst Inlet was first explored by Sir John Franklin in 1821. It was another 100 years before the first permanent settlement of Europeans was established.

Although caribou, grizzly bear and musk oxen still roam freely in the vicinity, the Digest says the original Hudson's Bay Company trading post has been converted into a "comfortable lodge."
